TOKIO REPORTS WAR DECLARED BY MANCHURIA

Offensive Opened on Japanese Army.

BULLETIN.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 10.—(Tuesday.)—Harbin dispatches today said reports there indicate that Japanese forces in the Nonni river district had retired after reverses suffered during the last 24 hours and were awaiting reinforcements preparatory to a new attack, possibly on Tsitsihar. Chinese, meanwhile, were massing additional troops south of Tsitsihar, the dispatches said.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Nov. 9.—Dispatches from Manchuria tonight said Gen. Ma Chan-shan, provisional governor of Heilungkiang province and commander of the Chinese troops in North Manchuria, had declared war on Japan. The declaration, dispatches said, was in the form of a manifesto to the Chinese nation, in which he declared his determination to "fight Japan to the very last man."

Gen. Ma, according to these dispatches, also telegraphed Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, governor of Manchuria, who was ousted by Japanese troops at the beginning of their occupation of that territory; Chang Tso-hsiang, commander in chief of all Manchurian troops, and Wan Fu-lin, governor of Heilungkiang province, at Peiping, asking that they order all troops in Kirin province to mobilize at Tsitsihar.

Bombard Japanese Positions.

Meanwhile, it was reported that Gen. Ma had gone ahead with his offensive against the Japanese troops in the Nonni river district. This district is where the Japanese recently drove the Chinese forces out of their entrenched positions after a three day battle.

Newspaper dispatches said Gen. Ma's troops had begun to bombard the Japanese positions north of the Nonni river at Tahsin with field artillery and machine guns.

Other Japanese dispatches said the Chinese forces, which are mobilizing at Anganchi, already numbered more than 8,000 men.

Defies Japanese Ultimatum.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

HARBIN, Nov. 9.—Gen. Ma Chan-shan, Chinese commander at Tsitsihar, last midnight flatly refused to meet the terms of a Japanese ultimatum from Gen. Honjo, Japanese commander at Mukden, which demanded that Gen. Ma resign within twelve hours and turn over the Tsitsihar government to Gen. Chang Hai-peng, independence leader, who is said to be a puppet of Japan. Gen. Honjo's ultimatum was delivered to Gen. Ma at noon yesterday by Col. Hayashi, who is attached to the Japanese consulate at Tsitsihar.

The document itself merely demanded that Gen. Ma "show his sincerity within twelve hours." Gen. Ma's chief of staff called upon Col. Hayashi and asked an explanation of the word "sincerity." Col. Hayashi verbally explained that this meant Ma's resignation. This extraordinary procedure is admitted by both Chinese and Japanese official sources.

Chiang Kai-Shek Orders "Fight."

Gen. Ma's midnight reply was to the effect that he is unable to comply because he has not been instructed from Nanking, and as far as he knows, Chang Hai-peng has not been instructed from Nanking to head the Heilungkiang government. It is not known whether this refusal will precipitate a renewal of the Japanese advance northward.

Gen. Ma today was reported to have received a telegram from President Chiang Kai-shek at Nanking urging him to fight to the last ditch.

Gen. Ma is evidently heartened by the arrival of reinforcements of 800 men from Manchuli and by reports that a brigade of Jehol cavalry and Jehol infantry has arrived near Taonan to harass Chang Hai-peng and the Japanese flank.

BATTLE RAGES IN TIENTSIN

BY JOHN POWELL.

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Nov. 9.—The Sino-Japanese crisis today took on the appearance of a definite war. Severe fighting was in progress at several points, extending from Tientsin to Tsitsihar.

THE PROFESSOR TRIES OUT HIS HYPNOTIC POWERS

Banker Leaps to Death from Hotel Window

In view of numerous pedestrians on Michigan boulevard early this morning Curtis G. Dunham, 37 years old, an investment banker from Detroit, Mich., leaped to his death from the twelfth floor of the Congress hotel. He was instantly killed.

Dunham's suicide followed an attempt a few hours before to jump from the same window. This was frustrated by a young woman friend after a thrilling battle for 20 minutes on the window ledge in which Dunham was held over the street by his belt.

Dunham registered at the hotel on Oct. 30 and had been a guest there since that time. He had been a visitor at the hotel at various times for several years. On the present visit he was ill and under the care of Dr. Otto P. Ludwig, the hotel physician, who, after the earlier attempt to end his life, obtained the services of Miss Mildred McClellan, 4168 Clarendon avenue, a nurse, to attend him. She was with him when he made his death leap.

Two Women Tell Details.

From Miss McClellan and Miss Lucille Jordan, office manager of the Walida Hormon Dragees company, importers, in the Straus building, who lives at the hotel and who said she was an old friend and business associate of Dunham, police obtained details of the exciting night in Dunham's room. Miss Jordan said that Dunham, with whom she was negotiating a business deal, had called her about 9 o'clock and asked her to have dinner with him in his room.

While they were waiting for the meal she said she noticed that he talked irrationally. Suddenly he made a leap for the window and was almost over the ledge when she sprang to him and seized him by the belt. He fought her efforts to pull him back for twenty minutes, she said, during all of which time she was screaming for help which did not come. Finally she soothed him somewhat and he permitted himself to be pulled into the room.

Nurse Describes Death Leap.

Miss Jordan immediately telephoned to Dr. Ludwig, who administered a sedative to Dunham, and sent for Miss McClellan to take charge of the patient. Miss McClellan's story took up the sequence of events from her arrival in the room. She said she and Dunham were talking as he sat in a chair near the open window. Apparently, she said, he was under the hallucination that gangsters were after him, for suddenly he shouted to her:

"Get away from in front of that door or you will be shot."

An instant later he started to rise from his chair. Miss McClellan tried to restrain him, but he hurled her across the room and leaped from the window.

Miss Jordan told the police Dunham recently suffered enormous business losses, "running into the millions," and that she believed his derangement was a result of that. She said his father lives in Pontiac, Mich., and that his wife, Genevieve, who divorced him last year, resides in Canada with their two children.

Information from Detroit was that Dunham was an investment banker and had lived there for seven years at the Book Cadillac and Leland hotels. His offices were in the Buehl building in Detroit.

POLICEMAN KILLS POLICEMAN'S SON FLEEING HOLDUP

Robert Zabel, 26 years old, 3906 South Western avenue, fleeing after an unsuccessful attempt to rob Albert Kaplan in the latter's tailor shop at 4551 Sheridan road, was shot and killed early last evening in the midst of a crowd near Sheridan road and Wilson avenue.

Zabel was the son of Police Sergeant Otto Zabel of the North Damen avenue station. The man who killed him was Lincoln Park Policeman Marvin Holden, a friend of the sergeant.

Entering the shop, young Zabel had first demanded to see Kaplan's union card. When it was shown him he drew a pistol and demanded money. Kaplan resisted and tried to wrest the pistol from the robber. Zabel then turned and fled.

He tried to hide in an archway, but a boy pointed him out to Holden, who was approaching. The policeman fired once when Zabel made a second dash for freedom and the bullet struck the fugitive in the back. He died soon afterward.

Sergt Zabel, a veteran of the police force, and once winner of a TRIBUNE hero prize, said that his son had given him a great deal of trouble.

Prince Defies Carol; Elopes with Beauty

PRINCE NICHOLAS.
[Acme Photo.]

The mayor of the village of Tohan, near Bezeu, was compelled by the prince to perform the ceremony yesterday, the reports said.

As soon as the king learned of the marriage, it was added, he ordered all records of the ceremony destroyed and the Bucharest government denied that any marriage had taken place.

Prince Burns Up the Roads.

Prince Nicholas, second son of the Dowager Queen Maria and by reputation one of the fastest motorists in Rumania, burned the highways and country lanes at breakneck speed for 125 miles to reach the village before he could be frustrated by the king, said the reports, which came from border sources.

The mayor knew he should not perform the ceremony without authorization from the king. But, as he was confronted by the determined prince and his slim, dark haired companion, he felt that he could not decline the honor, so he nervously tied the knot.

As soon as the prince and his bride had jumped back into the car and disappeared down the road in clouds of dust, the mayor recovered his presence of mind and frantically leaped to the nearest available telephone to call Bucharest.

How They Met.

"I married Prince Nicholas, who made me do it," the mayor shouted excitedly.

The bride is also known as Mme. Dumicrescu, which was her name before her divorce from the son of a former cabinet minister.

She and the prince met romantically—and characteristically for Nicholas—on a motor highway, where the beauty was in distress with a puncture which she could not fix. When he made up his mind he must marry her and went to the king for royal assent, his brother flatly refused.

Prince Nicholas, reminding Carol it was he whom the king had to thank for his dramatic and triumphant enthronement in June, 1930, turned on his heel and departed angrily.

Timothy Lynch Is Shot Down from Ambush

Two or more assassins, crouching behind bushes, shot and killed Timothy J. Lynch, 50 years old, west suburban labor czar, in the rear of his $50,000 home at 416 North 4th avenue, Maywood, last night.

As Lynch's back was turned toward them, the assassins blazed away with shotguns. Lynch slumped to the ground, alongside his automobile, his head and body riddled with more than 100 slugs. He was taken to the Oak Park hospital, where he died ten minutes later. On another floor, unaware of his fate, was his wife, Nora, a patient in the hospital.

Slaying Laid to Union Troubles.

The police attributed Lynch's murder to union troubles. He was secretary, and at the same time dictator, of the General Teamsters and Chauffeurs union, and ruled with an iron hand.

The immediate background for his killing, detectives said, probably was the murders last July of Barney McCone, alias Murphy, and Herman [The Kid] Diehn, agents of a rival organization which sought to supplant Lynch's. Fred [Frenchy] Mader at the time was thought to be the director of the rival group.

Story of the Killing.

The action of Lynch's murder unfolded swiftly. Lynch had visited his wife at the hospital earlier and had returned home for dinner with his daughter, Mrs. Nora Rigney, 27 years old, and his grandchild, William Rigney Jr., 2 years old. He planned to attend a union meeting in La Grange later.

Lynch's automobile was parked in the private driveway leading into Huron street in the rear of his home. As he stepped out of the door the light from the kitchen threw his figure into bold silhouette for the killers. In another moment he was at the right door of his car, key in hand.

Blast of Shotgun Fire.

Suddenly there was a blast of shotgun fire, followed almost immediately by two more. Lynch fell. The assassins darted down an alley and probably escaped in a waiting car. The police believe only two men killed Lynch, but said the fact a third shot was fired indicated there may have been another. Mrs. Rigney and neighbors ran to the rear and lifted up the dying labor chief. His body was torn by the gunfire, as also was his car.

The Chicago police and the state's attorney's office were notified. A squad of detectives and Assistant State's Attorney Harry S. Ditchburne went to the scene, as did Sergt. Charles Reynolds of the coroner's office.

Police Search for Clews.

Detectives studied Lynch's activities for clews. They were satisfied that labor troubles were responsible, and more or less convinced that outside rivals were involved rather than inner enemies.

Lynch's union covers all the territory in Cook county west of Crawford avenue in Chicago. It was suggested that the Chicago group, which once employed George [Red] Barker, hoodlum, as a business agent, might have been interested in shoving the Lynch power boundary farther west, but this theory was dismissed.

The McCone-Diehn Murders.

The investigation for clews centered on the double murder of McCone and Diehn. These two were drinking in the saloon of George Connors at 7228 Circle avenue, Forest Park, on July 15 when two strangers entered the place and ordered that all present raise their hands.

Without further prelude they fired. McCone and Diehn fell dead. At first the killings were attributed to a robbery, but subsequent inquiry developed another picture.

This concerned Lynch's teamsters' union. McCone and Diehn were allegedly agents of a rival group that intended to smash Lynch's power, it was hinted. Detectives, in advancing this belief, reported that they found three automobiles near Connors' saloon, and that licenses for all had been issued to 12 North 5th avenue, Maywood, Lynch's headquarters.

Union Leader for 30 Years.

Lynch had been associated in an official capacity with the General Teamsters and Chauffeurs' union for nearly 30 years, having held at various times the positions of business agent, president, and secretary, but wielding in all the power of a czar. Twenty years ago he permitted the chauffeurs to join what was then only a teamsters' group, and this added membership increased his power.

In politics Lynch was no less influential, it was said. He served for many years as road commissioner of Proviso township, and his aid was sought frequently by political aspirants, it was reported. Lynch lived in Maywood most of his life and was well liked. Besides his widow and daughter, he is survived by two sons, John and Richard, the latter a former assistant state's attorney.

$1,600,000 BAIN WEALTH HUNTED IN BANK INQUIRY

Vote to Indict Son of Banker.

Sensational evidence showing that John Bain's assets were $1,600,490 shortly before his twelve banks failed was given yesterday in Judge Michael Feinberg's court, where the judge is seeking to uncover assets of John Bain, Inc.

At the same time true bills were reported to have been voted by the grand jury against John H. Bain, the banker's eldest son, and two Bain bank cashiers, charging conspiracy, larceny, and operation of a confidence game.

$175,000 Mortgages Impounded.

During the hearing in Judge Feinberg's court the judge impounded two real estate mortgages for a total of $175,000 which, according to evidence, the elder Bain had put up as security at a loop bank for a personal loan. The evidence has been that Bain withdrew the mortgages from a trust fund in one of his banks.

A climax of the inquiry before Judge Feinberg came during the afternoon with Miss Anna Eunson, Bain's former personal secretary, on the witness stand. Judge Feinberg, questioning the witness in behalf of the receiver of John Bain, Inc., produced a record showing that Miss Eunson had listed Bain's wealth on June 1 as $1,600,490. The Bain banks closed on June 9.

Where Is Money? Judge Asks.

"Tell me where any of that money is?" the judge suddenly asked Miss Eunson. "Where did it go? What did John Bain do with it?"

Miss Eunson, an attractive woman of 35, cool and composed under an all day barrage of questions, answered that she had never discussed the figures with her employer.

The crowd in Judge Feinberg's court, composed of depositors who lost when the banks failed, again became noisy and restless as revelations of amazing transactions in the Bain banks were aired. The judge finally ordered the bailiffs to clear the court if any further demonstrations were made. This produced quiet.

A Reticent Witness.

Miss Eunson, it was brought out, had the power to sign checks on Bain's personal account. She was reticent under questioning, admitting facts only when confronted with the records.

She said she could not remember ever signing checks of large amounts until Judge Feinberg showed her five canceled checks aggregating more than $122,000 all signed by her in behalf of Bain on June 3, 1931, six days before the banks closed. The checks were made out to five Bain banks.

The secretary said she did not know why the checks were issued at that date. Later John McCrimmon, termed Bain's "confidential man," offered an explanation which Judge Feinberg declared unsatisfactory.

True Bills for Son Reported.

The reported true bills against John H. Bain, the banker's son, had been expected. He appeared before the grand jury yesterday with his attorney, Nelson Wettling, refused to sign an immunity waiver, and was thereupon not questioned by the jurors.

He was named in two true bills, according to reports. In the first he was reported named with Hugh M. Leslie, cashier of the Brainerd State bank, on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses and operating a confidence game.

The complainant in this case is August Dietzig. Dietzig is alleged to have been persuaded to give up a first class $7,000 first mortgage in exchange for the so-called collateral trust notes in the Bain banks which have been declared worthless.

Second Customer Complains.

In the second true bill John H. Bain was reported named with Erwin Larson, cashier of the Armitage State bank. John Macie, a bank customer, complained that he paid $770 on a $1,000 gold bond and was then given as a substitute Bain gold notes, also declared worthless.

Assistant State's Attorney Henry Ayers said that his investigation was now being directed against the entire string of Bain banks to determine if there was a general conspiracy among all the twelve banks to substitute poor securities for good ones.

Questioning of Miss Eunson.

Miss Eunson, personal secretary to John Bain for four years, took the stand before Judge Feinberg when his morning session began. She testified that she left the banker's employ last July. She had charge of his personal correspondence and his personal check book, she testified.

Judge Feinberg immediately began to question her concerning the Bain safe deposit box. She said Bain kept a safe deposit box, designated as D790, in the Foreman bank vaults in the Foreman building.

Q.—How big was it? A.—About this square (indicating a box 1 foot square and several feet in length).

Q.—Was there any currency in it? A.—No, sir.

Q.—When did you last enter that box? A.—I can't remember the exact date. It was after the banks closed. I took all the contents out and gave them to Mr. Bain.

Q.—Was it about June 24? A.—Yes, that was it.

Q.—What was in the box? A.—Miscellaneous securities, some few bonds, stocks in some of the Bain banks.

Judge Consults the Record.

Judge Feinberg consulted a record before him.

Q.—Did you open it May 6 at 2:10 p. m.? A.—I may have.

Q.—And again on May 13 at 10 a. m. and 2:40 p. m.? A.—Perhaps.

Q.—Well, on June 2, one week to the day before all the Bain banks closed, this record shows that you went to that safe deposit box at 10 a. m., again at 10:10 a. m., and again at 2:40 p. m. Do you remember ever having gone to that box three times in one day before? A.—I don't remember.

Q.—No one else had the right to go to that box except you and Mr. Bain? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Have you any records that would refresh your recollection of what you took out of that box? A.—No, sir. I kept a list of the contents of the box and Mr. Bain had a copy which he carried on his person. It was not carried in the files. When I left Mr. Bain's employ I gave him my list.

At this point the court instructed Robert Bain, son of the banker, to search Mr. Bain's office for this list. He first directed John H. Bain to do this, but the eldest son pleaded that he was summoned to appear before the grand jury at 1:30 p. m.

Bain's Market Activities.

Judge Feinberg then began questioning Miss Eunson concerning Bain's activities during the stock market crash of October, November, and December, 1929.

Q.—Mr. Bain was a pretty busy man during the stock market crash, wasn't he? [No answer.]

Q.—Very nervous, wasn't he? A.—I couldn't say as to that.

Q.—Here we see a check for $10,000 drawn to Shearson, Hammill & Co. on Oct. 22, 1929, and another for $10,000 on Oct. 30. I suppose those were to make up losses suffered by Mr. Bain? A.—They may have been.

Q.—And here's another transaction. It shows that on Oct. 14, the State bank [the State bank of Chicago, later merged with the Foreman banks] called a loan of $40,000 of his and the Chase National bank called another loan of $20,000. These records show that he paid the loans and then took $60,000 from the Lews company (a Bain concern) to make up the deficit. Do you remember that? A.—I don't recall.

Q.—What was the largest amount of securities ever kept in that box? A.—I couldn't say.

Q.—What did you need such a big box for? Was it ever full to the brim? A.—No.

Q.—Did Mr. Bain hold any bank stock?

In answer to this question, Miss Eunson, in response to persistent inquiry by the judge, admitted that Bain had held at various times stock in the Continental Illinois, Foreman, and First National banks and the Northern Trust company.

Miss Eunson was warned by the court at the conclusion of her morning's testimony not to discuss the case with any one during the noon recess.

Judge Draws Out Revelations.

The more important revelations came at the afternoon session with Miss Eunson still on the witness stand. Judge Feinberg produced a number of canceled checks.

"I show you a check dated June 3, 1931, six days before the banks closed, for the amount of $17,919," he said to the witness. "Is that your signature?"

"It is," said Miss Eunson. "I countersigned it with John McCrimmon."

"What was the purpose of that check?"

"I don't know. I signed it only at Mr. McCrimmon's request."

The judge showed the witness other checks, dated the same day, signed by her, for $6,324, for $33,591, for $41,457, for $24,016.

"How did it happen that all those checks were issued so shortly before the banks closed?" asked the judge. "Wasn't your attention aroused? Didn't you have any curiosity?"

"I did not," said Miss Eunson, calmly.

Q.—Did you call Mr. Bain's attention to the issuance of those checks? A.—I did not.

Q.—You never mentioned it? A.—No.

Q.—Did he ever speak to you about it? A.—No.

Judge Feinberg then renewed his questioning of the morning session concerning Bain's activities in the market at the time of the crash in the fall of 1929.

"I show you a draft made out against John Bain, Inc., on the West Englewood Trust and Savings bank [a closed Bain bank], dated Nov. 1, 1929, for $90,000," he said. "It bears the signature of the assistant cashier of the bank. What do you know of that?"

"Nothing particularly," said Miss Eunson.

The judge produced another canceled check signed by Miss Eunson, dated June 5, 1931, four days before the bank closed. The witness said she knew nothing of the purpose of this check.

"Do you know anything about Liberty bonds passing between the banks and your office in John Bain, Inc?" asked the judge.

"Nothing," replied the secretary, with her usual passivity.

Security List Brought In.

Robert Bain entered the courtroom carrying the list of securities in the Bain safe deposit box which had been requested at the morning session. The list, labeled "In the Box," contained some forty items. The safety deposit box had contained shares of stock in a number of small companies, in several Bain banks, first mortgages totaling about $17,000 and bonds to the value of approximately $15,700.

These were the contents of the box on June 24, 1931, when the contents were transferred from the downtown box to a box in the West Englewood bank, according to testimony.

"Your recollection is now refreshed, I suppose?" asked the judge of Miss Eunson.

"Yes," was the answer.

Q.—And you still say that you never saw any currency in that box or any jewelry or any other type of valuables? A.—Never.

"Made No Reservations."

Q.—Did you ever make any reservations between Jan. 1 and June 30 for Mr. Bain to leave town? A.—No.

Q.—Or any reservations for John H. Bain? A.—No.

Judge Feinberg then displayed the monthly trial balances which Miss Eunson was accustomed to make up for Bain's benefit. These showed the banker's holdings, his liabilities, and his net worth. The statement of June 1, 1931, gave the banker's holdings as $3,920,823; his liabilities as $2,320,133, and his net worth, determined by subtracting the second figure from the first, as $1,600,490.

The judge then shot his questions at the witness concerning the whereabouts at present of this "net worth." Bain has been reported as owing more than $2,000,000 to the banks, with no assets to realize upon.

Miss Eunson was excused by the judge, who said he would recall her after the receiver's auditors had gone over the books.

Miss McCrimmon Testifies.

The next witness was Miss Maybelle McCrimmon, 1303 West 64th street, sister of Bain's "confidential man." Miss McCrimmon, a woman of about 40 years, with reddish hair and a decided Scotch brogue, afforded the spectators mirth by the dramatic throbs she put into answers to questions.

Judge Feinberg in his questioning referred persistently to a trip to New York by airplane contemplated by Miss McCrimmon. He went extensively into the degree of confidence reposed in Miss McCrimmon by Bain, and also inquired if the witness had ever contemplated a trip to Scotland. She said she had no such idea in mind.

Q.—Are you intending to go to New York? A.—Well, I had thought about it.

Q.—Were you going by plane? A.—Yes, I thought it would be convenient.

Witness Becomes Indignant.

Q.—What was the reason for the haste?

Miss McCrimmon became indignant at this question. She sat up straight, a defiant figure in gray tweeds and a closely fitting green hat, and announced loudly: "No reason at all!"

Q.—Have you had a safety deposit box in New York at any time? A.—Never. Anywhere. I vouch for that.

Q.—Did Mr. Bain give you any securities to hold for him? A.—No! Absolutely not!

Q.—Your brother is Mr. Bain's confidential man, isn't he? A.—I know little about it.

Q.—Have you an account in any of the Bain banks? A.—No.

Q.—How soon did you think of going to New York? A.—Well, not till this is over. I should imagine not!

"I wish you would stay in attendance on this court until this inquiry is concluded," said Judge Feinberg.

Two Mortgages Impounded.

A. N. Allen, in charge of collateral trust funds for the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, who had been on the stand during the morning, was recalled in the afternoon.

He had with him the two real estate mortgages, one for $100,000 and the other for $75,000, which had been pledged at the Continental bank by Bain as security for his loan. Judge Feinberg remarked that these documents were important and that he would impound them. The impounding was made over the protest of Allen.

The documents were regarded as confirming testimony at a hearing last week, which was that Bain had transferred the mortgages out of a trust fund in the West Englewood Trust and Savings bank, without paying the trustee, and pledged them as collateral for the personal loan. It was indicated that Judge Feinberg may have to rule on the legal rights of the holders of the securities involved in such transactions.

John McCrimmon Quizzed.

John McCrimmon, the "confidential man" who, he said, lives with his sister, was the next witness. He also was questioned about trips out of town, to New York and to Scotland. He said he first met Bain nine years ago through a cousin, Arthur Farquhar, now in Scotland. It was shown that Farquhar went to Scotland about the time that Bain paid a visit to Scotland a year and a half ago.

Q.—Were you helping your sister plan this airplane trip to New York? A.—Yes. I wanted her to see my old employer down there and see if I could get a job down in South America.

Both McCrimmon and his sister were born in Chile, they testified.

Questioned About Checks.

McCrimmon was also questioned about the checks made out on June 3, 1931.

"Those checks were made out to five Bain banks who sent us in bonds to be sold," he told Judge Feinberg. "We sold the bonds for them and then made out these checks as the proceeds."

"I don't get that," said the judge. He insisted upon further details and finally said to the witness:

"And you want that to stand as your explanation of that transaction?"

"Yes, sir," said McCrimmon.

On further examination, which revealed that the transaction as explained by McCrimmon, had not been recorded in any books, the witness admitted that it was "irregular" bookkeeping.

"O, you admit that," commented the judge. "You're sure this was not a switch of funds from the Lews company to the Bain company?"

"O, no, sir," said McCrimmon.

McCrimmon, it was revealed, had access to safety deposit boxes of John Bain, Inc., but not to Bain's personal box. He said he kept no record of securities put into the boxes or taken from them. Judge Feinberg expressed astonishment at this statement, but the witness persisted in it.

U. S. Yields Records to Judge.

The reported controversy between Judge Feinberg and the federal collector of internal revenue over possession of Bain's records was quickly ended during the hearing. The records had been subpoenaed by Judge Feinberg last Wednesday. Last Saturday a federal subpœna was served and the records were seized by the government.

Judge Feinberg was reported to have been angered by the incident, but a representative of the federal agent told him that the government would be glad to leave the records in Judge Feinberg's court until his inquiry was concluded.

BOWMAN WILL GIVES BULK OF ESTATE TO HOTEL MAN'S WIDOW

New York, Nov. 9.—[Special.]—The will of John McEntee Bowman, president of the Bowman Hotel corporation, who died here on Oct. 28, was filed today in the Surrogates' court for probate. The will, which leaves the entire estate to relatives and friends, disposes of property valued at "more than $100,000."

After making a few special bequests to relatives and friends, the will directs that the residue of the estate go to the widow, Mrs. Clarice Paterson Bowman. A paragraph mentions that no provisions will be made for his daughter, Clarissa Ann, 9 years old, who lives with Mrs. Bowman at the Biltmore hotel.

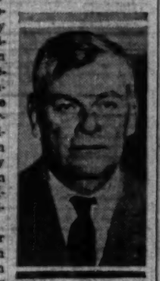
Mrs. Gustave Baumann, widow of an associate of Mr. Bowman of 26 Cours Alberti, Paris, France, receives 10,000 shares of the second preferred stock of the Bowman-Biltmore corporation.

Mrs. Bowman also was directed to select from Mr. Bowman's personal belongings paintings, books or pieces of jewelry and to present them as keepsakes to a number of friends who were mentioned in the will. Among these were William Wrigley Jr., Percy Rockefeller, Ogden Armour, Eddie and Billy Koch, Lawrence Clark, Clifton Baumann, William J. Cummins and James J. Marshall.

NAVY LEAGUE TO FLICK HOOVER IN NEW PAMPHLET

Will Renew Quarrel Tomorrow.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—A new attack on the Hoover naval economy program was being drafted by Navy league officials today as an answer to the report of the Hammond committee which on Saturday upheld President Hoover in his controversy with William Howard Gardiner, league president.



WALTER B. HOWE. [Acme photo.]

Mr. Gardiner will arrive in Washington for a conference with Walter Bruce Howe, chairman of the board of the Navy league. Following this meeting the league's statement in rejoinder will be whipped into shape and after being approved by the executive committee will be made public. Mr. Gardiner, it was said today, has no intention of apologizing for his charge that the President has exhibited "abysmal ignorance" on navies and their missions in war.

Naval Officers Aloof.

The President's committee report was almost the only topic of conversation in naval circles today. Naval officers who had read the report said it was "very interesting," but that was as far as they would go. The row is not theirs, they say, and they are letting the Navy league and the White House do the talking so far as publication is concerned. The league mailed copies of the Armistice day speech delivered at Arlington by former President Coolidge, Nov. 11, 1928, in which the President declared "that a country which makes reasonable preparation for defense is less likely to be the subject of hostile attack" than a country unprepared.

Whether or not congress will make an investigation of the naval situation is a question which apparently will not be answered in advance of the opening of the session in December.

Inquiry Thought Likely.

There are only a few members of either the senate or house now in Washington, but the talk among them seems to indicate that the committees on naval affairs will take up the question when the regular naval appropriation bill comes up early in 1932.

This was indicated today by Senator Swanson of Virginia, ranking Democratic member of the senate committee on naval affairs.

'OLDEST WOMAN' IN CITY DIES; SET AGE AS OVER 105

Miss Mary Hogan, who may have been the oldest resident of Chicago, died yesterday at 10208 South Peoria street, where she had made her home as a boarder for several years. Dr. Leo Sweeney, 9453 South Ashland avenue, who attended her, said that Miss Hogan was something more than 105 years old and that there were reports she had attained the age of [illegible] the death certificate," he said, she might well have been 10[illegible] death was due simply to old age.

Miss Hogan, according to the Rev. D. Croke, pastor of St. Cecelia's Catholic church, was a native of New York and had lived in Canada several years before coming to New York. In his opinion she was at least 105 years old. Mrs. Ida Boyle, with whom Miss Hogan made her home, said that after a recent illness she had been a regular reader of periodicals.

Yes, "chance" is the word, for the longer you live after taking out a Continental Family Income Policy the smaller your saving will be. But if you die early your heirs stand to receive as much as $34,400 even though you pay for a mere $10,000! This would be equivalent to a discount of 71% on the cost of your life insurance.

Let us explain in detail. Suppose you buy a $10,000 Continental Family Income Policy (which costs about the same as ordinary life insurance) and die at the end of six months. Your widow will immediately get a cash "clean up" fund of $1,000 and will further receive a $100 check every month for nineteen and one-half years. At the end of that time she will also be given the full face amount of the policy, making a total of $34,400 paid her on only $10,000 worth of life insurance!

This policy, which is by far the greatest life insurance bargain ever offered, is invaluable to the man with small children. Regardless of how long he lives his wife is sure of the $10,000 for which he pays, while if he dies early she will be given extra protection while her youngsters are growing up. This remarkable policy also includes a $100 a month disability clause and has a constantly increasing cash value. 'Phone your agent or broker about it . . . today!

GOLD AND JEWELS BLAZE AS LONDON HAILS NEW MAYOR

MacDonald's Speech Is Only Somber Note.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Glistening pageantry marked the lord mayor's banquet at Guildhall tonight as a culmination of today's installation ceremonies of Sir Maurice Jenks as lord mayor of London. The lord mayor's banquet has been held at Guildhall since 1501. Tonight's function was in the best Guildhall tradition and was marked by an address on British policy by Prime Minister MacDonald.

SIR MAURICE JENKS. [Acme Photo.]

Hideous hundred guests attended, including ambassadors, ministers, and admirals in their gorgeous uniforms, bishops and judges in their robes of office, and leaders in trade and industry. The guests moved in a sea of color—the scarlet and steel of pikemen, the blue and red of soldiers and sailors, and the dazzling throng of ladies in varied colored dresses and sparkling jewels.

Great Welcome for Premier.

The prime minister wore full levee dress and was accompanied by his daughter, Ishbel. He received a tumultuous welcome. Among the cabinet ministers present were the lord chancellor, Lord Sankey, Stanley Baldwin, Neville Chamberlain, Sir Herbert Samuel, Sir John Simon, and J. H. Thomas.

Following the reception, where the lord mayor and mayoress received their guests, the party moved to the banqueting hall, in which the tables were heavily laden with the historic service of gold plate and heavy silver of the gifts of the ancient city corporations.

Here there was no sign of world depression, economic crisis, or sterling's slump, although the menu was considerably less than the 18th century Guildhall banquet of 75 courses. But tonight there was the traditional turtle soup complete with calipee and calipash, and huge barons of beef borne aloft on little platforms headed by acolytes in white.

Tells of Stabilizing Pound.

The chief speech was that of Mr. MacDonald, who made his first public pronouncement as head of the new national government. He spoke with vigor and punch. The prime minister declared that he and his cabinet colleagues had not met yet and they did not know what he was going to say. Outlining the policy of the government, he declared that, as soon as practicable, steps would be taken towards stabilizing the pound on a definite basis, making it independent of speculative movements.

"The time to stabilize," he said, "must depend, however, largely on factors outside of Great Britain's own control."

He again emphasized that the two chief problems of the nation are balancing the budget and balancing trade. The two man upon whom will primarily fall the burden of solving these problems, Mr. MacDonald said, were Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, and Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade. He appealed for the country's full confidence in the work they have begun —which was taken as a hint by the protectionists that they would not have it all their own way.

Urges Settlement of Debts.

He then surveyed world conditions and warned his audience that a choice must be made between a businesslike and permanent settlement of problems of international indebtedness or "collapse and revolution."

In the view of the British government, the nations of the world, with France and Germany leading the way should come together on a basis of common sense to survey the enormous problems, and agree as to what is to be done when President Hoover's moratorium ends.

"For this no time must be lost," he said. "A series of piecemeal measures of a purely temporary nature will not meet the circumstances. Comprehensive and permanent settlements now are vital. All states must make concessions."

London's business was brought to a standstill for four hours this afternoon when hundreds of thousands thronged miles of sidewalks to watch the lord mayor's show, the first event on the day's program.

Today's procession was the same as all others. There were the usual coaches, the columns of troops, gilded coaches, and a great display of horseflesh. All traffic was halted as the procession passed through the rain in the financial district — Fleet street, Aldwych, and the Strand.

HOW OLD IS ANN?

ANN PENNINGTON.

New York, Nov. 9.—[Special.]—How old is Ann?

This antiquated—and still unanswered—question figured in a court proceeding here today when counsel for Ann Pennington obtained permission from Supreme Court Justice Salvatore Cotillo to withdraw her suit for $100,000 against Lever Bros., soap manufacturers, and the J. Walter Thompson Advertising agency, upon the motion that a settlement had been reached without their efforts.

Miss Pennington had charged that, without her authority her picture had been used in a soap advertisement with the quotation, "I really am 39 years old." She contended that the advertisement held her up to "shame and ridicule and hurt me with the public."

In the answer filed for the defense, Miss Pennington was alleged to have signed a general release last August before her suit was filed, absolving the defendants.

The dancer's attorneys, Abeles & Green, asked Justice Cotillo to fix their fee, which they estimated at $1,000, but the court refused to do so.

U. S. PLANS TAX CASES AGAINST POLICE CAPTAINS

Agents Get Evidence on Officers' Incomes.

The prosecution of a number of police captains on charges of income tax evasion is planned as the next phase of United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson's campaign to "expose a cross section of official gangsterism." Indications yesterday pointed to grand jury action against six or more of Chicago's police captains by Feb. 1.

Assistant United States Attorney Dwight H. Green was summoned to Washington to confer with his superiors there, and it was reported that cases against the police captains would be discussed. Mr. Green is chief solicitor for the Chicago bureau of internal revenue and is a special member of Mr. Johnson's staff, so that he can go before the grand jury with income tax cases.

Investigated for a Year.

The police captains have been under investigation for approximately a year and during that time more than twenty cases have been forwarded to Washington by the intelligence unit of the revenue bureau. Before the cases may be presented to the grand jury, the prosecutors must obtain the permission of the commissioner of internal revenue, and it is customary for them to confer first with the general counsel of that bureau.

It is understood that District Attorney Johnson himself will go to Washington late this month to take up the captains' cases.

Some work remains to be done on the captains' cases, according to federal investigators, and the prosecutors are devoting most of their time at present to preparation of their income tax case against Christian P. Paschen, former building commissioner, who is to be tried in December or January. Action against the police captains is expected to follow the Paschen trial.

Captains' Checks Seized.

In their investigation of the financial affairs of the police officials, federal agents, it was learned, seized 1,400 canceled pay checks from the city. Indorsements on these checks gave the investigators clews to the captains' associates, some of whom are said to have been hoodlums, and the manner in which many of the checks were deposited led to the uncovering of secret accounts.

The agents declare that many of the captains whose incomes have been considerably in excess of their salaries cannot be prosecuted criminally since most of them have families, entitling them to minimum deductions of $3,500 in addition to the salary, which is tax exempt. Criminal cases are not ordinarily instituted unless the alleged fraud is flagrant, but even so the agents say that sufficient evidence has been unearthed to justify the indictment of at least six captains.

The others who failed to make income tax returns on a gross income of $5,000 or more would be assessed delinquent taxes, interest and penalties, and permitted to settle with the government.

It is reported on good authority that less than one-third of the fifty-four captains in Chicago have filed any returns at all, and it is a misdemeanor for any man with a gross income of $5,000 or more to fail to file, even though legitimate deductions preclude the assessment of taxes.

Gangsters Face Exile.

Prosecution of the police officials would extend the government's general campaign against criminals and crooked public officials. Besides the income tax weapon, the government is using the deportation process against criminals who are aliens. Tony [Mops] Volpe, Dago Lawrence Mangano, "Tough Tony" Capezio, Domenico Roberto, and other Capone gangsters are facing exile.

The income tax prosecutions have resulted in the exposure of official corruption. In addition to the indictment of Paschen they have brought about the conviction of Gene G. Oliver, member of the board of assessors, the conviction of State Representative Lawrence C. O'Brien, and the indictment of half a dozen contractors doing work for the sanitary district.

Hurt in Auto Crash

MRS. CLARENCE H. MACKAY.

Jericho, L. I., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—Mrs. Anna Case Mackay, former Metropolitan Opera soprano and the bride of Clarence H. Mackay, chairman of the board of the Postal Telegraph and Cable corporation, to whom she was married last July 18, suffered a cut on the chin, abrasions of the face, and a general shaking up late today in a three car collision on the Jericho turnpike seven miles from the Mackay estate at Roslyn, L. I.

Slightly hysterical and bleeding from the cut on the chin Mrs. Mackay was taken by her chauffeur to the hospital where it was found her condition was not serious, and she left for home shortly before 9 p. m. with her husband.

Whether Mrs. Mackay's injuries will prevent her from giving a concert for the benefit of the unemployed of Roslyn on Saturday night was not learned this evening. Mrs. Mackay, internationally known as an operatic, concert and radio singer, had made her preparations for the concert soon after making her recent announcement that she had retired from the professional music field.

LAW LOOKS INTO THE HOTEL ROOM OF MR. DREISER

Grand Jury Investigates Woman Guest.

Pineville, Ky., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—Theodore Dreiser, the novelist, who came to Pineville with his committee to investigate conditions in the coal fields, has finished his work here. Now the Bell county grand jury, under instructions of Circuit Judge D. C. Jones, is investigating conditions in Mr. Dreiser's hotel room while he was here, with the intention of indicting the author and a woman companion if they find reports which reached the judge are correct.

"It has just come to my attention," said the jurist, "that one of the escorts of the investigating committee went to Dreiser's room and spent the night there. I understand that a party went to her room and that she was not there; also that several witnesses will testify Dreiser and this woman were together. I suggest you indict both if these are facts."

Judge Jones added that Dreiser and the woman, an attractive blond whom he referred to as the writer's concubine, were not registered as man and wife.

Held Up Serving Warrant.

It was learned that a warrant charging adultery against Dreiser and the woman had been taken out by residents of Pineville, and had been signed by Police Judge Joe Page on Saturday, but that it was not served.

The Pineville residents used a novel method, it was said, to determine that the woman remained overnight in the author's bedroom. They reported that, once having seen her enter, they placed a number of toothpicks leaning against the door. Then they went away. In the morning, returning, they discovered the toothpicks undisturbed. The investigators of the investigator were proud that their ingenious bit of work did away with the necessity for an all night vigil in the hotel corridor.

Judge Jones, in charging the grand jury, severely criticized the motives of the Dreiser party in its investigation, asserting that if the miners really "knew the truth they would have escorted Dreiser and his gang to the state line."

Questions Motives.

"If I had been governor," he declared, "I would have sent soldiers to the Ohio river to keep that outfit out of this community.

"They came to capitalize on the publicity they can get out of the trip. They bar religion in Russia and these people would make a little Russia out of this part of Kentucky. I will vigorously prosecute any attempts to teach communism in this county or Harlan county."

Dreiser Denies Charge.

Bristol, Tenn., Nov. 9.—(AP)—A denial of a charge of adultery, which led a Kentucky judge to recommend a grand jury investigation of his activities, was made here tonight by Theodore Dreiser in a statement given out by Bruce Crawford, a friend.

"You may say that it is useless for Bell county [Kentucky] to spend much needed money investigating me," said Dreiser.

The author said he did "enjoy the companionship of ladies" and was "fond of their conversation," but asserted it would have been impossible for him to be guilty of adultery as charged in a warrant sworn to in Kentucky but never served on him. He concluded by saying "the perjured evidence of Judge Jones' court would be powerless to prove otherwise."

STRAY BULLETS KILL 2 U. S. DRY AGENTS, BOOTLEGGER'S PLEA

Fort Wayne, Ind., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—Four persons other than two federal prohibition enforcement employes who survived a gun battle between George Adams, bootlegger, and four dry agents when the latter tried to trap Adams on a country road last June witnessed the battle in which Agents John I. Wilson and Walter N. Green were killed, the state's attorney declared today in the opening statement of Adams' trial for the murder of Wilson.

The prosecutor said that four men were in automobiles which were forced to halt because the machines driven by Adams and the dry agents blocked the road, and that these men heard the conversation and saw the shooting.

The defense statement indicated it will try to prove self-defense justified Adams' shooting and that a stray bullet from a fellow officer's gun may have killed Wilson.

Clarence Green, who said he is a "special employe" of the federal government, admitted he and Oliver J. Gettle, the other agent, who survived the battle, had arranged Adams' entrapment.

CONVICT U. S. DRY AGENT OF BEATING UP MAN IN RAID

Two Others with Him Are Acquitted.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—Following seven hours deliberation a jury in the United States court tonight returned a verdict of guilty of third degree assault against Fred Wilson, federal dry agent, for beating Alton Baird, 27 year old son of an Irving, N. Y., hotel man, July 8, but acquitted Wilson's companions in the raid, Edward Baker and James Mahoney. All three enforcement agents were tried on charges of assault, second degree.

Wilson will be sentenced Nov. 23. The maximum penalty for third degree assault is one year in federal prison.

The case was given to the jurors late today by Federal Judge John Knight, after summations by Glenn Woodin, district attorney of Cahutaqua county, who has been conducting the prosecution, and Richard H. Templeton, United States attorney, who is defending the three agents, Edward Baker, James Mahoney, and Fred Wilson.

"If these men are freed, it will sound the invitation to other agents throughout the country to adopt similar tactics of force," Woodin told the jury in his summation. He demanded the conviction of the trio.

"If these men are convicted, agents throughout the country will be endangered in the pursuit of their duties," Templeton declared in his summing up of the case.

MIDWEST WARM SPELL BROKEN BY RAINSTORMS

The warm weather enjoyed for the last few days over the middle west broke yesterday. Rainstorms and colder weather were reported in Wisconsin and Iowa. In Chicago a southwest wind sent the mercury up to a record 73 degrees.

The cold and rain in the two neighboring states will move over Illinois today and the temperature may plunge below 50, said J. R. Lloyd, government forecaster. Mr. Lloyd said also that if it became cold enough the rain might change to snow flurries. Tomorrow will be fair and somewhat warmer.

Before the storms struck Wisconsin and Iowa, record high temperatures for so late in the year were reported everywhere. Sunday was the warmest November day on record at Sioux City, Ia., the temperature reaching 78 degrees shortly after noon, but yesterday the high winds and rain came.

The 73 degree mark in Chicago was 6 degrees above the previous highest temperature for Nov. 9. This was 67, registered in 1910. The highest temperature recorded in any November was set on Nov. 19 of last year, when the mercury reached 74.9 degrees.

Free 5 Prisoners Seized After Mayor Is Jeered

Five prisoners arrested Sunday night at the Chicago Stadium after Mayor Cermak had been booed by toughs in the audience were released yesterday after investigation of their records by Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker failed to show anything upon which to hold the men. Mayor Cermak yesterday refused to discuss the incident. The booing was blamed on the tardiness of the mayor, who was several minutes late in firing the starting gun of the six day bicycle race. The race has invariably been started on the dot.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Nov. 9.—Ten men in a lifeboat and one man on a raft, surrounded by considerable wreckage, were sighted today in the Caribbean sea by the pilot of a Pan-American passenger plane on a regular flight from Cristobal, Canal Zone, to Barranquilla, Colombia. The men are believed to be survivors of an unreported sea tragedy.

H. G. Ormsby, the pilot of the seaplane, on his arrival at Barranquilla reported that a high wind and rough sea prevented him from effecting a rescue. A brief radio message broadcast from Barranquilla announced that Ormsby had sighted the men about forty miles due west of Cartagena, Colombia.

The position of the eleven men is over 200 miles from Colon. There are no naval ships available to go to their rescue. A Dutch liner, proceeding prom Costa Rica to Cristobal, tonight radioed that she is speeding towards the lifeboat and expects to reach it by midnight.

JUDGE REFUSES WRIT TO FOES OF VIVISECTION

Superior Judge William J. Lindsay refused yesterday to grant the Illinois Anti-Vivisection society an injunction restraining the city from delivering live dogs from the pound to medical schools for experimentation.

Judge Lindsay sustained a demurrer to the injunction bill, filed by the city and by Attorney Angus Roy Shannon, representing the medical schools.

ALBERT G. MANG, RETIRED BANKER, KILLED BY GUN

Albert G. Mang, 62 years old, an official of the Central Trust company of Illinois until his retirement several years ago, was killed last night when a pistol he was cleaning at his home, 1118 East 46th street, was discharged, apparently by accident.

Mrs. Mang, who is a sister of the late Fred A. Busse, once mayor of Chicago, and her daughter, Helen, heard the shot and ran into the room where Mr. Mang was shot. They summoned Dr. J. P. Campbell and Dr. John A. Graham, but their efforts were unavailing, and the retired banker died soon afterward.

According to Mrs. Mang, her husband was preparing for a hunting trip. There were several shotguns in the room and Mr. Mang had removed five cartridges from the pistol and it was assumd one left in the chamber had escaped his notice.

Mr. Mang had been in good health recently and, according to the members of the family, was taking a keen interest in the propos.1 hunting trip. He was a close personal friend of Charles G. Dawes.

OLVANY'S INCOME WHILE TAMMANY HEAD 2 MILLIONS

New York, Nov. 9.—[Special.]—The income of George W. Olvany, former leader of Tammany, totaled more than $2,000,000 during the four years and a half of his leadership, according to information obtained by the Hofstadter legislative committee. Mr. Olvany is scheduled to take the witness stand at a public hearing Thursday afternoon, if Samuel Seabury, counsel of the committee, can complete his preparations for examination at that time. Otherwise Mr. Olvany will be called to testify next Tuesday. Mark Eisner and James F. Donnelly, law partners of Mr. Olvany in the firm of Olvany, Eisner, Eisner & Donnelly, have been called for questioning in private tomorrow.

SPRAGUE TO ASK $2,600,000 FOR 4 INCINERATORS

Col. A. A. Sprague, commissioner of public works, announced yesterday that he will go to Springfield next week to ask the special session of the legislature to authorize the issuance of $2,600,000 in bonds without a referendum. The money would be used, he said, to erect four incinerators for the disposal of the city's garbage.

The cost of the incinerators has been estimated by Col. Sprague at $2,300,000. The remaining $300,000 would be used to purchase three sites. The city already has one site at 39th and Iron streets where a city-owned garbage reduction plant was formerly situated.

The city now spends $850,000 a year, according to Col. Sprague, for the privilege of dumping some of its waste and garbage in quarry holes and for having the rest of it hauled away. By operating incinerators, he said, the city would save $600,000 annually.

THIRD ACCIDENT IN FORTNIGHT IS FATAL TO YOUTH

The name of Roy McGiven, 28 years old, 2220 South Morgan street, appears on police accident reports three times within the last fortnight. Oct. 27 he tripped and fell on the street, receiving minor injuires to which police administered first aid.

Nov. 3 McGiven was struck by a hit and run motorist at Adams and Carpenter streets. He was taken to the county hospital and released two days later.

Yesterday he took a short cut over the tracks of the Milwaukee railroad at Union street. He dodged a switch engine and stepped directly in the path of a passenger train. He was killed instantly.

MILLIONS LOST BY FARM BOARD ON GRAIN DEALS

U. S. Effort to Stabilize Prices Fails.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—The efforts of the farm board, under the provisions of the agricultural marketing act, to maintain high prices of wheat and cotton, an operation known as stabilization, proved a failure and were discontinued when the board began to see the bottom of the barrel of money it had been furnished by congress.

In 1930 after its attempt to stabilize the price of the 1929 wheat crop the board confessed the futility of the scheme as a means of permanently enhancing returns to the farmer. At that time the losses from the 500 million dollar revolving fund incurred by the board in this operation had been tremendous—just how much the board never has disclosed.

Operations Are Resumed.

Shortly thereafter, notwithstanding the confession of failure, the board resumed stabilization operations in an attempt to keep the price of the 1930 crop above a dollar a bushel. Later it transpired that the resumption of stabilization was not so much in the interest of farm relief as of bank relief. It was entered upon, so the board now says, to avert failure of numerous banks bulging with loans on wheat, the closing of which might have precipitated a panic.

The sluice gates of the revolving fund were opened and day after day, week after week George Milnor, president of the grain stabilization corporation, and his aids stood in the pits of the Chicago, Minneapolis, and Kansas City grain exchanges and bought all the wheat offered—frequently a million bushels a day. For several months the domestic price of wheat, though gradually sliding downward, was held from 20 to 25 cents above the world price. The wheat belt banks were saved, for the time being, at least. Many of them, however, have gone under since.

Withdrawal Announced.

The withdrawal of the board from the second attempt at stabilization was announced last spring when it became apparent that there was not money enough in the treasury to buy and store all the wheat that it would be necessary to buy and store in order to keep the price within shouting distance of a dollar a bushel.

How much the stabilization experiment has cost the taxpayers will not be definitely known until the board disposes of its present holdings of wheat. At one time the stabilization corporation owned more than 800 million bushels of wheat. On July 1 last it had 255 million bushels, that had cost an average of $1.05 a bushel, including carrying charges. On its sales up to that time of both 1929 and 1930 wheat it had lost approximately 40 millions of dollars.

Holdings Reduced Some.

A month ago the holdings of the corporation had been reduced to 193 million bushels by the sale of 47,500,000 bushels to the German, Chinese, and Brazilian governments on credit and 15 millions on the domestic market. Since then 20 million bushels have been sold abroad and 5 millions at home.

The price of wheat has been going up for a month, with the effect of decreasing the potential losses of the board on its holdings. On the basis of current prices, with carrying charges taken into account, the board stands to lose about 90 million dollars on wheat sold since July 1 and yet to be sold, in addition to the 40 millions previously lost, a total of 130 millions.

The cotton stabilization experiment has been in progress about 16 months. The Cotton Stabilization corporation owns 1,300,000 bales bought with farm board funds at 16 cents a pound. The American Cotton Coöperative association has 2,000,000 bales bought at an average of 10 cents a pound, chiefly from funds loaned by the farm board. At current prices the board stands to lose nearly 65 million dollars on the stabilization corporation's cotton, including carrying charges, and 30 millions on the coöperative association's cotton, a total of nearly 95 millions of loss on cotton. As in the case of wheat, this potential loss would be decreased by a rise in the price of cotton.

Loss May Be 130 Millions.

Altogether, therefore, with 130 millions of actual and potential loss on wheat and 95 millions of potential loss on cotton, it is apparent that unless the prices of these staples rise materially the cost of the stabilization venture to the taxpayers may touch 225 millions.

Of its first stabilization operation, the board said it had proved "all that had been hoped for," and "while some contribution was made toward stabilizing wheat prices at no mean cost, in various forms, declines in prices of wheat and other agricultural products, while retarded, were not permanently prevented." The accumulation of the vast amount of the commodity necessary to influence prices had resulted in a "somewhat depressing effect upon prices."

Purchases of cash wheat, the board found, were inadequate to support prices and it was necessary to purchase future sales on a large scale. Cash prices were thrown out of line with futures, with resultant injury to the hedging operations of the millers. The storage capacity of the country was monopolized by the holding of so large a proportion of the visible supply, the millers and other processors suffering from the storage shortage.

For Production Adjustment.

"There is a field for stabilization measures," the board said, but just how large a field it could not determine. It was of the opinion "that no important stabilization efforts could succeed, except temporarily, unless farmers themselves adjusted production to prospective demand."

By March 23, 1931, the board had begun to see the bottom of the barrel. "Stabilization operations," it said, "are emergency measures and entail a heavy cost. The Grain Stabilization corporation has acquired and is acquiring very large stocks of wheat. It cannot indefinitely buy more than it sells or indefinitely hold what it has bought. It cannot follow a regular policy of buying at prices above the market, paying heavy storage charges, and selling below cost."

PLUMP CRUSOES RETURN; MUM ON PIRATE ISLE LIFE

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 9.—[Special.]—The three Robinson Crusoes of Cocos island arrived in town today pale as night club waiters and as overweight as a brace of Iowa Thanksgiving turkeys after their six months of hardships under a blazing tropical sun on the strand that was once a pirate domain.

GORDON BRAUNER.
[Acme Photo.]

The castaways of the Antilles who were rescued by the U. S. S. Sacramento and brought here from the Canal Zone by the Panama-Pacific liner Virginia played the rôles of strong silent men today upon advice of their manager, a Broadway song and dance man named Hal Jerome.

"Real Dough Boys."

Robinson Crusoes of the 1931 model, Mr. Jerome explained to a breathless pack of reporters, are "real dough guys, do-re-mi boys," and only talk when "uncle tells them to wiggle the chin." Consequently the interviews today concerned mostly the prospects of the sale of a signed story, the possibilities of vaudeville engagements and similar matters of vital interest to men returning from primitive life to what has been referred to as civilization. It also was rumored that a motion picture with the Cocos island as its locale soon would make its appearance in our theaters.

The 1931 model Crusoes are Paul Stachwick of Huron, S. D., and Gordon Brauner of Springfield, Ill., each twenty-one years old, and Elmer J. Pallister of San Diego, a gray haired man of fifty-eight. The castaways had close cropped hair and stood grinning broadly as a score of camera men shot theme fore and aft. The lad from Springfield is the fattest of the lot and none of them have any more sunburn than a ribbon clerk in mid-January.

The story of the castaways is that last December they left San Diego aboard a 26 foot yawl, the West Wind, bound for the Canal Zone. They planned to explore the San Juan river in Colombia and write magazine articles. They had no previous sea experience or magazine writing experience, but did not consider either essential.

Somewhere off the Panama coast they struck a big storm and made good in a big way when the yawl sprung a leak and was beached on Cocos, 550 miles southwest of Panama. High seas soon destroyed the yawl, but not before the amateur seamen had salvaged rifles, boxes of ammunition, three comfortable mattresses, hammers, saws, axes, rice, flour, and sugar. There were several deserted houses on the island, relics of a pirate's stronghold on other days.

They ate cocoanuts, shot wild pigs, and fished when they were not following a subterranean river or climbing steep cliffs with the aid of ropes. Late in October Julius Fleischmann's yacht, the Camargo, stopped to stock the island with chickens, pigeons, and geese, which may or may not account for the plumpness of the three castaways. Sailors found a note left in one of the houses and searched for the castaways, but did not find them. The story of the plight of the three men was broadcast to the world by the Fleischmann yacht and an American gunboat steamed out to get them. The gunboat picked them up Oct. 27 and here they are, the heroes of the Cocos.

Under the management of Mr. Jerome, who just happened to be aboard the ship, the castaways already have signed a vaudeville contract. A monthly magazine is bidding for their exclusive story, and there may be something doing in the movie line. The trio wil lremain in New York for the present.

U. S. Investigates Art Suspected as Obscene

Three of thirty-two electroplates of famous etchings that arrived in Chicago yesterday from Germany were held up by Collector of Customs Anthony Czarnecki on suspicion that the plates had been tampered with and made obscene. Mr. Czarnecki said that he intended to send the plates to Washington to ascertain whether or not certain details on the nude figures had been retouched. The plates, shipped to Franklin J. Meine, secretary and manager of the Chicago Book and Art Auctions, Company, Inc., were "Three Sisters" and "Shallow," by Anders Zorn, and "Venus," by James McNeill Whistler.

HUNT JEWELER BELIEVED HELD BY KIDNAP GANG

Police squads from the detective bureau were searching last night for Meyer Gordon, owner of a jewelry business at 800 North Clark street, who is believed to have been kidnaped on Saturday by men who credited him with having possession of uncut diamonds valued at about $200,000. The gems were reported stolen from Joseph C. Newman, salesman for a New York concern, in the loop on Nov. 3.

Gordon was convicted in 1929 of receiving stolen property and sentenced to one to ten years in prison, but a retrial was ordered by the Supreme court.

He was in his office Saturday morning, and when he left placed a notice on the door stating that he would be back after lunch. Some one pretending to be Gordon called the janitor of the building on Sunday and asked if a box of shoes had been left there for him. The police theory was that the kidnapers had made this call.

Six men were arrested yesterday on orders of Chief of Detectives Schoemaker, who announced they were being investigated in connection with another kidnaping. Among them is Dago Lawrence Mangano, Capone henchman. The others are Louis Spenilli, 100 West 55th street; Angelo Caruso, of New York; Paul Palmeri, of Niagara Falls, N. Y.; Frank Chiaravalloti, 1180 South Elmwood Park, Oak Park, and Sylvester Agoglia, 1128 Newberry avenue.

The men seized were said to be wanted for questioning in connection with the kidnaping of Alexander Berg, rich furrier of St. Louis. He was abducted in St. Louis Friday and is now being held for ransom, police believe.

SONS OF RICHEST MAN TO MARRY 2 CINDERELLAS

Prince Seals Contract with $1,200,000 Gift.

PARIS, France, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Sir Osman Ali Khan, nizam of Hyderabad, and probably the wealthiest man in the world, arranged today for the marriage of his two sons and sealed the contract with gifts of $200,000 in cash and jewels worth $1,000,000.

The double wedding, to be performed with gorgeous ceremony here on Thursday, unites the dynasty of the principal native state in India with the house of Prince Abdul Medjid, former caliph at Istanbul.

Prince Azam Jah, 24, heir to the throne of Hyderabad and to the great hoards of gold and precious stones accumulated through the centuries by the Mogul emperors, will become the husband of Princess Dural Shehvar, aged 18. She is slim, brunette, and the epitome of oriental beauty. She is the only daughter of the former caliph.

A Cinderella Touch.

Prince Moazzam Jah, younger son of the nizam, will wed Princess Niloufer, 16, niece of the former caliph.

There is a Cinderella touch to the romance, for since the caliph was exiled from Turkey seven years ago by Mustapha Kemal he has been forced to rely on the generosity of his faithful to keep his household going.

Once he ruled untold wealth. The jewels of the caliphate alone were valued at $300,000,000. Now, at the age of 70, he lives in a suburban villa with one of the sources of his livelihood has been an allowance of $1,000 a month from the nizam. Under the terms of the marriage agreement that allowance is increased to $2,000, and his daughter and niece, who have shared his evil days, are raised to affluence.

Brides-to-Be Made Rich.

The brides-to-be were the recipients of the nizam's gifts of $200,000 cash and $1,000,000 in jewels.

The former caliph, supreme spiritual ruler over 300,000,000 Mohammedans, will himself celebrate the marriage ceremony, which will take place on the birthday of the nizam, most faithful of Mohammedan rulers.

The nizam of Hyderabad has power of life and death over his 15,000,000 subjects and is so wealthy that his gold alone is estimated at $500,000,000. But he has the reputation in India of being a little close.

Has Only One Wife.

The nizam has broken with tradition. His father was reputed to have 300 wives, but he has had only one. It has been his contention that one was all he could afford.

The princess who will marry the heir to more wealth than that held by all the Fords, Rockefellers and Morgans never has worn the veil or lived in the seclusion of the harem. She is thoroughly modern, but she has no use for such western items as lipstick and short hair. Able to speak English, German, French, Italian, Turkish, and Persian, she has been helping out her father by serving as his secretary. Incidentally, she claims descent from Mohammed.

POLICE FREE CAPEZIO; STILL FACES U. S. QUIZ

"Tough Tony" Capezio, Capone gunman marked for deportation, was released from the detective bureau last night. He grumbled about bedbugs disturbing his sleep.

Capezio will appear before government immigration authorities on Wednesday bearing a baptismal certificate or other documentary evidence that he was born in this country.

INDICT BOMBERS CAUGHT IN ACT; SPEED UP TRIAL

Joseph Siegel and Roy Rapp, caught early Saturday as they were placing a bomb on the roof of a bakery, were indicted yesterday. The grand jury returned the indictments, charging attempt to destroy property by bombing, before Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher of the Criminal court, and fixed bonds at $25,000 for each man.

The men probably will be arraigned today, since State's Attorney Swanson said yesterday that he will seek an immediate trial of the case. Prosecutor John Holman said that he would arrange to have Siegel, who was shot through both ankles by Sergt. Michael Toohey as he fled from the scene of the bombing attempt, carried into court on a stretcher.

Rapp was questioned yesterday by detectives. They believe he was only a "hired man" in the bombing plot, and that Siegel is a professional bomber.

FORMER JOCKEY KILLS BROTHER IN THEIR HOME

James Cohrn, 52 years old, 3528 Calumet avenue, a colored painter, was shot and killed yesterday by his brother, Jerry Cohrn, a former jockey, following a quarrel in their home, where they lived with their sister, Miss Henrietta Cohrn. The painter was shot when he tried to stop a quarrel between his brother and their sister.

Jerry Cohrn, who escaped after the shooting, was well known as a jockey on the old Washington Park race track in the early nineties. He later went to Australia, where he is said to have been a jockey for years.

GANDHI ADMITS DEFEAT; DECIDES HE'LL GO HOME

Eager to Start New Fight Against British.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Mahatma Gandhi, India's Nationalist leader, today announced that he would sail for home on Nov. 29. He declared that the round table conference on India was certain to fail and that he wanted to return to India to launch a new fight against British rule.

His announcement followed on the heels of the request of the All-India congress that he quit London and come home. The "holy man" decided there was no use for him to stay today when an agreement was reached by all the Indian minorities to act together.

Hindus Are Infuriated.

This development infuriated the Hindus, who charge that Gandhi's efforts only have had the effect of uniting all the other races and religious sects in India against them. Dr. D. S. Moonje, a powerful Hindu leader, stated that the Hindus, instead of controlling the situation, are now in a minority and will have to change their tactics.

"I have already canceled my continental engagements," Gandhi said. "My eyes are constantly on the events in India, and up until now I have felt it would be wrong on my part to leave England as long as there is any conference work to keep me here. But neither the king nor Prime Minister MacDonald has given me any tangible basis for hope that any of our demands will be granted. I feel now that I am just wasting my time here.

"I am afraid that there are fiery days ahead, but no people ever won liberty without suffering. Before I leave I shall go to the last extreme to avert the disaster which looms ahead. If I fail then I shall return to India with an absolutely clear conscience."

Unite to Fight Boycott.

One result of an accord reached between the British and the Moslems is the organization of the East and West corporation with a capital of over $7,500,000. Prince Aga Khan, moderate Indian leader, is chairman of the board. The object of this company is to develop trade between England and India and counteract the effects of the Hindu economic boycott.

THREE HUNTERS MISSING; FEAR ALL DROWNED

Three hunters, missing since Saturday evening when they started out in a heavily laden rowboat for an island duck camp in the Illinois river near Morris, were believed yesterday to have drowned.

The missing men are Ralph Salisbury, 40 years old, 414 Bridge street, Joliet; Charles Anderson, 38 years old, who lived on the Channahon road outside Joliet, and Daniel Stryker, 42 years old, of Aurora. They departed from Joliet on their duck hunting expedition Saturday afternoon.

SENATOR WALSH HERE TODAY FOR 3 ENGAGEMENTS

Thomas J. Walsh, United States senator from Montana, will spend a busy day in Chicago today, the action starting immediately upon his arrival on the Capitol Limited at 9 a. m.

From the train he will be escorted directly to the Hotel Sherman where he will be the guest of Mayor Cermak, National Committeeman Igoe and other big chiefs of the Democrats. At noon he will speak at a luncheon of the Attic club, 120 West Adams street.

In the evening he will address a banquet of the good will conference of the World Alliance for International Friendship Through the Churches. His subject there will be "Disarmament—Economic Recovery of Human Welfare."

SILVER PRICES SOAR; MEXICO REAPS PROFITS

But Value of Peso Does Not Increase.

the price of silver means an increase in the purchasing power of Chinese money abroad, but a decline in the purchasing power of foreign gold in China. China does not buy her imports abroad with silver, but with the excess of her visible and invisible exports over her imports. These exports are hurt by a rising silver market, it is claimed, since it takes more gold to buy the silver with which to purchase Chinese commodities. Moreover, it is argued, the rise in silver will mean that China will have to give more goods in order to purchase her supply.

Reasonably Stable Silver.

What China and the silver basis countries need, say the experts, is neither a high silver price nor a low one so much as one that is reasonably stable.

India, the other great silver importing country, will not be so immediately affected, it is held, because her currency is linked to the pound sterling. The rupee held its value fairly well during the falling silver market, but fell when England went off the gold standard.

Both China and India have great stocks of hoarded silver, which will be enhanced in value as silver rises. Some popular disaffection may be stilled, therefore, by the upturn in silver, but by virtue of their very name, "hoards," these collections of silver, it is explained, exert little outside influence.

An Unanswerable Argument.

Those who oppose the bimetallist theory—and that may be conservatively figured as including 95 per cent of official Washington—are bringing to the fore what they claim is an unanswerable argument against the silver advocates claim that the world stock of gold is too small a metallic base to uphold the world's credit structure.

If the gold supply was adequate in 1929 and before why, it is being asked, is it not adequate now when the value of the credit and commodities structure it has to bear is a third lighter?

Body of Divorcee Is Recovered from Lake

The body of a woman, identified through cards in her purse as Mrs. Theresa Nelson, 6145 Winthrop avenue, was recovered from the lake at the foot of Granville avenue by police yesterday. Mrs. Nelson, who was about 35 years old, was a divorcée. She was last seen alive when she left her apartment about 10 o'clock Sunday night. It was said she had talked of ending her life because of despondency.

NEW LANDSLIDE HITS PANAMA CANAL AND BLOCKS 46 VESSELS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Nov. 9.—The Panama canal's two giant dipper dredges today pulled up 20,000 cubic yards of earth and rock which had slid into the northern end of the Gaillard cut at the canal's narrowest point and had closed the canal for the third successive day. Forty-six vessels are tied up at both ends of the canal and 18 more are expected to be stopped tomorrow.

The approximate cost of dredging the canal at this point is $250,000. The dredged material is barged and carried to the Pacific. The slide, discovered at dawn today, was 125 feet wide and 25 feet deep. Another slide developed later, narrowing the channel's width from 300 feet to 80 feet. It is stated that there is only the slightest possibility that canal traffic may be resumed tomorrow.

The slide at Gaillard cut, caused by incessant rains, was from the eastern side. It is estimated that the first movement unlodged 130,000 cubic yards of earth and the second 70,000 cubic yards more. Because of the amount of broken rock, it is impossible to use suction dredges.

F. T. HASKELL FILES ANSWER TO WIFE'S SUIT

Frederick Tudor Haskell, capitalist, yesterday filed an answer in the Circuit court to the suit for separate maintenance brought by his wife, Mrs. Lila Hotz Haskell, society matron, on Sept. 22.

Mr. Haskell denied his wife's assertion that he possessed $6,000,000 and received an annual income of $100,000. He added that Mrs. Haskell received $15,000 a year from property in her own name amounting to $350,000.

In the original action Mrs. Haskell, who is the widow of Robert S. Holtz, charged her husband with cruelty, asserting that he had struck and choked her on several occasions. Mrs. Haskell left her husband's home at 1200 Lake Shore drive on Aug. 11. She now is living at the Lake Shore Drive hotel, 181 Lake Shore drive.

Mr. Haskell is 71 years old. He is a pioneer resident of Chicago. Connected with banking since his youth, he is a director of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, Chase Securities company, the Petroleum Corporation of America and the Elgin National Watch company. He also is a director or trustee for many philanthropic institutions.

Public End Fails; Couzens Revises Gift to Jobless

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9.—(AP)—Senator Couzens sent a check for $200,000 today to Detroit for unemployment relief to be administered through a special fund apart from the city government or established welfare organizations. The Michigan Republican said the contribution replaced his offer of $1,000,000 to the city government of Detroit which was conditioned upon contributions of $9,000,000 from others. Attempts to collect the remainder of that fund collapsed.

An ex-wife's suit for $100,000 against her former husband, whom she charges with breach of promise to remarry her, went to trial yesterday before Judge Joseph B. David in the Superior court.

The plaintiff is Mrs. Olive Anne Hall, 2644 Lunt avenue. She was married in 1914 to Harris Lee Hall II., president of the Chicago Case Manufacturing company. They have a son, Harris Lee III. Mrs. Hall obtained a divorce in 1926, along with a cash settlement and an order upon her husband to pay $50 a month for the support of their son.

A year later, she charges, he began to court her again, and in January, 1928, proposed and was accepted. He gave her an engagement ring and other jewelry, her bill states, but on July 28, 1928, married another woman.

Judge David raised a question of law as to whether Mrs. Hall is entitled to recover damages from her former husband while she is receiving payments under her divorce decree.

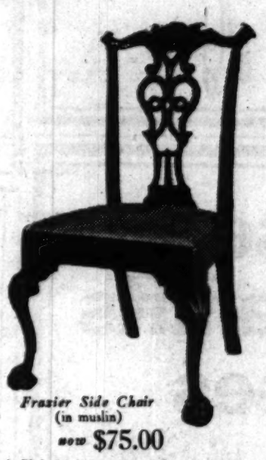
Deerfield Stand, now $13.50
A small and graceful low stand, based on a Colonial candlestand found in Deerfield, Mass. The top is of eggshell Bakelite, impervious to heat and liquids. It is housed in molded maple.



Frazier Side Chair (in muslin)
now $75.00
A Philadelphia chair of graceful Chippendale pattern, made of mahogany. With carved claw-and-ball feet. Definitely a collector's piece.

Duncan Phyfe Library Table, formerly $270, now $135
Made of sawn San Domingo mahogany with drawers banded in satinwood bordered with holly and ebony. The legs, fitted with claw casters, are gracefully carved by hand. The top, when extended, is supported by beautifully fitted brackets with old-time wooden hinges.

Ives Two-Seat, formerly $240 (in muslin) now $120
This quaint and lovely seat closely follows an historic early American original. An unusually sturdy and comfortable design. Most unusual are the wooden arm rests—highly practical too, since it is at these points that upholstery shows most wear.

Brittany Arm Chair formerly $93 (in muslin) now $46.50
Based on an old Brittany original, this chair has sturdy long tenons which are hand-fitted and beautifully joined. The cushion is filled with best grade goose down.

Westover Poudreuse formerly $135, now $67.50

Carlyle Hunting Table formerly $390 now $195
English pollard oak and burled oak panels, with sturdy carving and exquisite inlay, characterize this original design. The style combines Jacobean and French Provincial elements.

PRAISE AID GIVEN CHARITY SHOW AS PILOTS DEPART

Business, Aviation Chiefs Co-operate in Event.

BY HUGH SEXTON.

Twenty famous pilots flew out of Chicago airport yesterday morning after participating in the great charity air show at the Grant park lagoon Sunday afternoon. Almost $18,000 was realized at the air show, which was sponsored by The Tribune, and the entire sum was given to the Chicago Emergency relief fund for the unemployment relief this winter.

MISS MAUDE TAIT.

Among the early departures were those of Hugh Herndon Jr. and Clyde Pangborn, around the world flyers who flew nonstop across the Pacific ocean. They took off in their red Bellanca monoplane, accompanied by Mrs. Herndon. Pangborn was taken on a fast ride to the airport by Louis Wolf, TRIBUNE photographer, after he slept late. He was obviously relieved to get out of Wolf's automobile, remarking that the photographer "did more stunts on the ground than I'd care to do in the air."

Bayles Makes Fast Trip.

Lowell R. Bayles, flying what is considered the fastest land plane in the world, lifted the little Gee Bee racer off the airport and 1 hour and 7 minutes later landed at Detroit airport, a distance of more than 250 miles by air. Bayles was favored by a tail wind, but said he "could have rolled 70 miles an hour faster, if I'd used all the motor's power."

He was followed immediately by Miss Maude Irving Tait, society girl of Springfield, Mass., flying her larger Gee Bee racer. Both are powered by Wasp motors, but Bayles' motor is a new one, highly supercharged, with which he hopes to break the world's speed record for land planes this week at Detroit. E. D. Granville, president of the Springfield firm that manufactures the Gee Bee racers, flew with Miss Tait.

One after another the other famous planes took off from the airport, zoomed down in salute, and headed for their home ports.

The Show Was Success.

The complete success of the charity air show, which was said to have been the most concentrated and diversified show of new types of aircraft and motors ever staged in Chicago, was due to the wholehearted cooperation of Chicago's leaders in the aviation industry, and many firms which donated their products and services to the show.

Outstanding among the contributions was that of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, which gave 4,000 gallons of Stanavo high test aviation gasoline and 75 gallons of Stanavo aviation oil to the participating flyers. This amount of gasoline and oil would sell for more than $1,300. Also, employes of the oil company worked overtime on Sunday servicing the visiting planes.

Another donation that proved of immense value was that of the Franklin Illinois Co., Inc., which supplied a fleet of Franklin automobiles that transported the flyers throughout their stay in Chicago.

Eleven Hotels Give Service.

Eleven of Chicago's best hotels contributed free accommodations to the visiting pilots. They were the Drake, Morrison, Stevens, Palmer house, Auditorium, Sherman, Knickerbocker, Blackstone, Bismarck, Congress, and La Salle. The pilots said they received most courteous treatment.

All the hangars at the airport were thrown open to care for their planes free of charge. These included the Blue Bird, Central Air terminal, Century, Standard Oil, Air Associates, Northwest Airways, and others.

Vincent Bendix, president of the Bendix Aviation corporation, entertained the visiting pilots and others assisting in the organization of the show at a reception and dinner at the Bendix galleries, formerly the Potter Palmer residence, at 1250 Lake Shore drive. Miss Beatrice Lillie and Ernest Truex, starring in the "Third Little Show" at the Great Northern theater, had the flyers and their friends as guests at the Sunday night performance following a TRIBUNE reception and dinner at the Hotel Sherman.

Hospital Unit on Duty.

The Chicago Rapid Transit company's hospital unit No. 1, complete in every degree for emergency medical treatment and with a staff of more than 65 persons, was set up near th speakers' stand in Grant park, ready to function if necessary.

The south park police did excellent work in keeping traffic moving and spectators out of the emergency landing area, while the coöperation of the board's officials was complete.

Courteous motorcycle policemen of the city department escorted the flyers and Vice President Curtis and his sister, Mrs. Dolly Gann about the city. The traffic department of the Chicago police force handled the extremely heavy flow toward Grant park, and returning from it, with its usual efficiency.

The river mouth and Jackson Park stations of the coast guard had five boats patrolling the lake front to act in the event of forced landings in the water.

A running description of the air show events was broadcast to the spectators over a public address system composed of equipment loaned by the Operadio Radio company of St. Charles, Ill.; Kohler of Kohler, Wis., and the Bodine Electric company of Chicago. Money collected at the various entrances to Grant park was picked up by a truck of the Brinks Express company.

Band and Drum Corps.

A 35 piece band was supplied by the Chicago Federation of Music to lead the flyers' parade, and the Melin Romer post of the American Legion sent a drum and bugle corps for the parade.

All the airlines operating out of Chicago entered air liners in the parade of big planes, including the Century Air lines, American airways, United Air lines, Transcontinental and Western Air, Northwest airways, Braniff airways, Continental airways, and Trans-American Air lines.

Officials of airports around Chicago organized groups of sportsman pilots to participate in their parade. Groups took off from Stinson, Chicago, Pal-Waukee, Sky Harbor, Waukegan, and Curtiss-Reynolds airports.

The Royal Typewriter company supplied a machine to the show headquarters established in the Stevens hotel by Maj. R. W. Schroeder, and the Thearle-Duffield Fireworks company supplied aerial bombardments at the beginning and close of the program. The bombardment at the beginning was cut short at the request of engineers of station W-G-N, which was broadcasting the air show descriptions, because of their fear the noise would injure the sensitive microphones. The bombardment cessation was not due to inefficiency, as was previously stated.

Capt. Homer Berry and Art Caperton, pilots of two Sikorsky amphibions owned by Britton I. Budd and Col. R. R. McCormick, flew them on a shuttle service between the ramp and the airport, carrying the famous flyers.

The Chicago Motor Coach company advertised the air show on its buses and suspended the bus line into Grant park on Sunday afternoon. Both the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee and Illinois Central railroads also advertised the show extensively.

Send Blimp to Show.

The Enna Jettick Shoe company sent its blimp to the air show at considerable expense in order to have lighter than air craft represented.

The Illinois National Guard cooperated by lending ground troops to the occasion and by sending the observation squadron of the 33d division, commanded by Lieut. Col. M. D. Mann, to fly in the show.

Maj. Reed G. Landis, chairman of the state aeronautics commission, and George W. Vest, in charge of aviation inspection for the department of commerce in this district, went to considerable trouble to make the show as safe as possible for both participating pilots and the public.

Flying Forecasts

Special flying route forecasts for the period from 9 p. m., Nov. 9, to noon, Nov. 10:

Chicago-Evansville and Chicago-Cincinnati—Increasing cloudiness, possibly showers over extreme north portion by Tuesday morning; strong southwest winds and gales.

Chicago-Cleveland and Chicago-Detroit-Cleveland—Increasing cloudiness, possibly showers over extreme west portion by Tuesday morning; strong southwest winds and gales.

Chicago-St. Louis—Increasing cloudiness, showers probable by Tuesday morning; strong southwest winds and gales.

Chicago-Twin Cities—Mostly cloudy; showers in north and central portions tonight and by Tuesday morning in extreme south portion; strong southwest winds and gales, except fresh to strong northwest over extreme north portion and shifting to northwest over central portion by morning.

Chicago-Omaha—Partly cloudy to cloudy, showers probable in east portion; strong southwest winds and gales over east portion and fresh to strong northwest over west portion, shifting to northwest by morning over central portion.

Route forecasts for 12 hours ending at noon:

Cleveland-New York—Clear sky, except partly cloudy near Cleveland; fresh south or southwest winds near Cleveland and moderate south or southwest winds over and east of mountains up to 1,000 feet, and fresh to strong southwest winds near Cleveland and moderate west, southwest or west over and east of mountains at 5,000 feet.

Evansville-Atlanta—Clear sky near Atlanta and increasing cloudiness near Evansville; gentle southeast or south winds near Atlanta and fresh southerly near Evansville up to 1,000 feet and light variable near Atlanta and fresh southwest near Evansville at 5,000 feet.

AVIATION NOTES

Smokers have won a poll taken of passengers on the New York-Chicago-Dallas planes of the United Air lines, and now smoking will be permitted on all transport planes on the line. Those who wanted to smoke, including women, so far outweighed the nonsmokers that the rule was abolished.

The number of fatal accidents decreased in proportion to the volume of flying, and the number of all accidents increased in ratio to miles flown during the first six months of the year, according to the department of commerce report.

J. F. Tounnisson, assistant airways traffic supervisor, has been appointed in charge of department of commerce air navigation, radio and communication facilities for the district, including the area of the Milwaukee district north of Omaha, east of Iowa City, north of Peoria and north of Indianapolis, not including Peoria and Indianapolis. His headquarters are at United States Airway Teletype station, Department of Commerce, 6000 South Cicero avenue, Chicago.

CITY FIGHTS FOR WIDENING OF STATE STREET

Refutation of the assertions of North State street property owners that the surface of the pavement is in good condition and the street's traffic capacity is more than sufficient was the order of business yesterday in the court of Superior Judge Ross C. Hall. Forty near north side real estate holders are contesting the city's condemnation proceedings preliminary to widening the street and digging a subway.

T. E. Flanigan, office engineer of the bureau of subways for the city, testified in answer to allegations by the owners that North State street was little used. On two days in May, 1930, when tabulations were kept of the traffic between the river and Chicago avenue, Flanigan said 1,908 automobiles used the 178 parking spaces along the street. The street, 68 feet wide, was so congested with parked cars that only two lanes were left for traffic, he said.

C. E. De Leuw, assistant chief engineer for the city, explained 76 photographs which were introduced in evidence. The prints depicted the rough and sunken cobblestone surface of the street, which was laid in 1888.

NORWOOD PARK OFFICIALS NEAR TO FIST FIGHT

Two members of the Norwood Park board attended a meeting of 250 taxpayers of the district last night at 6100 Northwest highway. One was Charles Gindele, who belongs to a minority faction on the board; the other was Carl Peterson, who votes with the majority.

Mr. Gindele told the taxpayers that his own plan to purchase land for a small park at Imlay and Newcastle avenues for $18,000 had been turned down by the majority, which voted to pay $36,000 for the site.

Then Mr. Peterson said that Mr. Gindele was a liar. He also took off his glasses to be ready for a fist fight, but some taxpayers intervened and no blows passed.

The taxpayers discussed a report that equipment for the park was being purchased by the board without competitive bids. John Chapman, president of the board, promised to give a full account of all the expenditures at the next meeting of the taxpayers, three weeks hence, and on this pledge an adjournment was taken.

2 PLEAD GUILTY TO CONSPIRACY IN GAS TAX FRAUDS

Poole Harrison and John F. Connor, officials of the Reliable Oil company, pleaded guilty to the charges of conspiracy to evade the state gasoline tax before Judge John Prystalski in the Criminal court yesterday. Their sentence was deferred.

Both Harrison and Connor are expected to take the witness stand for the state in the trial of eleven other men on the same conspiracy charge.

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE

WHEN IS A WAR? LEAGUE DOUBTS THERE'S ONE NOW

Says Ma Lacks Authority to Declare One.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—(Tuesday.)—(AP)—China has requested the league of nations to send an international force of 4,000 men to police the South Manchurian railway pending a settlement of its disputes with Japan, the London Express says today.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Reports that Gen. Ma Chan-shan has taken it upon himself to declare war against Japan have injected skepticism into the confusion which reigns in Geneva as to the true status of hostilities in Manchuria.

While Gen. Ma, or any other general with an army, may actually make war in the most dreadful form, he may not "declare war," in the opinion of league of nations authorities and international law experts.

Only governments are competent to declare war, it is insisted, and both Nanking and Tokio have made clear that they have no intention of going to war over Manchuria.

Refuses to Recognize War.

Certainly the league—an organization of governments—cannot recognize a formal status of hostilities when no government is willing to accept such status.

This is the technical and legal status—but, of course, to the practical mind, which rejects the subtleties in favor of the facts, the situation in Manchuria assumes the appearance of war.

Soldiers of two nations are fighting and killing each other in the far east, and that is "war," to the average man in Geneva as truly as to the man in the street elsewhere.

Even diplomats speak of the "Chinese-Japanese war" in private, but they would not dare to use such a phrase publicly.

Chinese Scoff at Report.

This conflict of diplomatic language with unofficial recognition of the facts is what causes confusion in international quarters. The diplomatic attitude is: "Don't call it war and maybe it isn't." The other attitude is: "It's war; let's stop it."

The latter point of view is growing here. Then tendency is noted in some quarters, indeed, to disregard subtle technical distinctions between formal war and informal mass killing. It is not forgotten here that the Japanese sank the Russian fleet before the declaration of the Russo-Japanese war.

Chinese in Geneva scoffed at the idea of Gen. Ma declaring war. They said the reports were similar to erroneous rumors that the Japanese consul at Tsitsihar had been assassinated.

It Isn't Done, Chinese Say.

"It is not customary for generals to declare war," a Chinese spokesman asserted. When it was suggested that perhaps Gen. Ma did not know that, he laughed.

But whether or not Gen Ma has declared war, there is no war at present as war is understood under the league covenant. The Manchurian fighting still comes under the head "disorders," or "disturbances."

The Japanese speak of their army's activities as "punitive"—a term which invokes memory of Gen. Pershing's expedition into Mexico in 1916, which was not war.

TOKIO REPORTS WAR DECLARED BY MANCHURIA

Offensive Opened by Japanese Army.

The dispatches did not say which side, Japanese or Chinese, was using the machine guns.

Japanese Version of Riots.

Japanese reports today said the fighting at Tientsin last night began when a faction opposed to Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, Manchurian governor, tried to oust Chang Hsueh-ming, the former's brother, who is mayor of Tientsin. The fighting spread to the edge of the Japanese concession and one Japanese private and one sergeant major were killed.

Alleging that the real motive of the Chinese was to occupy the foreign concessions in Tientsin, the Japanese forces, according to the reports, "in order to protect Japanese lives and properties, as well as the lives and properties of other foreigners, were forced to take drastic action."

30 Slain in Another Clash.

Regarding the situation in Manchuria proper, the official Japanese report said that Chinese bandits had cut the South Manchuria railway's telephone and telegraph line near Haicheng, midway between Mukden and Dairen.

This, it was declared, caused the Japanese to dispatch a battalion of railway guards, who fought an engagement with 1,000 Chinese troops near the junction of the South Manchuria railway and the Yingkow branch line. Thirty Chinese were killed and two Japanese were wounded.

Further engagements between Japanese forces and mixed bodies of Chinese troops and bandits, the Japanese report, occurred north of Ssupingkai, between Tiehling and Kaiyuan, south of Heinmin; west of Mukden, and 12 miles northwest of Saichung. In the latter fight, one Japanese company was said to have wiped out a Chinese force of 700 men. Two Japanese were killed and four wounded.

The Japanese claim Chinese troops have combined with bandits to take advantage of the shifting of Japanese troops to the Nonni river area and are beginning to harass Japanese lines of communication.

Hoover Plans New Peace Move.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9.—White House and state department officials today viewed the latest developments in the Manchurian situation with fresh alarm.

The whole Manchurian problem, together with the new flareup in Tientsin, was discussed today by President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson under circumstances which pointed to some new American peace move. Reports were circulated that new representations were to be made by Ambassador Forbes at Tokio.

It is known that considerable thought is being given by Secretary Stimson to the question of what this country will do when the league powers meet next Monday to consider Japan's answer to the league's demand for the withdrawal of Japanese troops from outside the Manchurian railroad zones. As conditions become more critical in the orient, it is becoming more and more apparent that the Hoover-Stimson flirtation with the league in Manchurian peace moves is likely to entangle this government in future league moves to enforce its demands that Japan and China cease hostilities.

Report Plot to Draw in Russia.

MOSCOW, Nov. 9.—(AP)—A message received by the Tass news agency from Khabarovsk, Siberia, today reported a rumor that proposals had been made to white Russians to provoke a conflict with the soviet republic and draw Russia into the Chinese-Japanese trouble.

An official of the Japanese military mission in Harbin—Osaya by name, who was identified as editor of the Japanese newspaper Kharbinskoe Vremia—was said in the message to have invited the white Russian Gen. Kosmin on behalf of the mission to organize a plot against the Chinese Eastern railway and to arrest prominent soviet officials, such as the consul and the manager of the railway.

He was said to have suggested that the white guards aim at seizing the soviet consulate in Harbin, the management of the railway, its repair shops and depot, the Far Eastern bank, and other soviet economic organizations. He was reported to have promised to obtain money, arms, and hand grenades to aid the plotters in their designs.

MRS. JUDD HELD FOR TRIAL; JOLT GIVEN DEFENSE

Victims Shot in Sleep, Doctor Hints.

Phoenix, Ariz., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, confessed "trunk" slayer of Mrs. Agnes Anne Le Roi and Miss Hedvig Samuelson, was held to Superior court for trial today without bail.

This action was taken by Justice Clarence E. Ice of Phoenix after 11 witnesses had been examined at a preliminary hearing. No indication was given as to when Mrs. Judd will be tried.

The most important testimony today was that of Richard Swartz, an express driver, who testified that neither of Mrs. Judd's hands was bandaged on the night he was called to the Le Roi-Samuelson apartment to transfer the trunk containing the two bodies to the home of Mrs. Judd.

Swartz's testimony contradicts the only story the physician's wife has told thus far, that a bullet wound found in her left hand, following her surrender in Los Angeles, was inflicted by Miss Samuelson during a quarrel which led to the slaying of both Miss Samuelson and Mrs. Le Roi.

County Physician J. B. Maudlin testified that both victims had been shot from above. His testimony was interpreted as meaning that both women had been slain while they slept.

Today's hearing was conducted behind closed doors. Justice Ice ordered the courtroom entrance locked after dozens of newspaper men had filed into the chambers. Hundreds of curiosity seekers jammed the corridors of the Maricopa county courthouse and the sidewalks leading to the entrance of the building. Most of the crowd was made up of women.

JOBLESS MAN KILLS HIMSELF.

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—Ill health and unemployment were assigned as reasons for the suicide of Edward M. Faris, who attached a hose to a gas jet and then stuck it in his mouth.

CAMELS are FRESH

in nature's own mild way!

EVERYONE knows now that Camels are the fresh cigarette.

If inquiry went deeper, it would reveal that Camels are the natural moisture cigarette.

That's important, because in handling fine tobaccos, when you process out natural moisture, you sacrifice freshness and flavor too.

Camel smokers needn't worry about that, because Camels are blended of fine Turkish and mild Domestic tobaccos that are never subjected to violent processing. They need no parching or toasting to make them smooth, palatable, cool.

That's why the Camel Humidor Pack is such a boon to Camel smokers—it preserves the freshness, flavor, natural moisture, fragrance that are in this fine cigarette to start with.

Camels are fresh in nature's own mild way, and if you want to see what that means in unalloyed smoke-enjoyment, switch to them for just one day—then leave them, if you can!

SECOND OF THREE ESCAPED BANDITS CAPTURED IN N. Y.

The second of three robbers who escaped from the lockup of the Shakespeare avenue police station Aug. 16 was captured in New York last night.

He is Robert Kearney, alias Terhey, 31 years old. Of the other two men, one, Michael Romano, was recaptured and is now in Joliet prison serving a term of one year to life, and the other, William Dardowski, is still at large.

Kearney told New York police that he left Chicago immediately after his escape and settled in New York. While a fugitive he committed more than twenty robberies, he said. Most of his victims were owners or employes of cordial stores and hat and haberdashery shops. His New York crime excursions netted him over $6,000, he confessed.

5 TO 23 PER CENT M IS URGED IN UNTY EXPENSE

duction Would Lop Off 675 to 1,000 Jobs.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The county controller states that ...t of at least 15 per cent in the ...'s expenses in 1932 is imperative. He deems such a cut necessary ...ion of what the special session of the legislature does, and if tax assessments and collections continue as ...g last year, he urges a reduction ...5 per cent. These recommendations ...ontained in the controller's estimate for 1932, which the county board ...scheduled to consider this week.

"It will be necessary for us to hew to the line," commented President Emmett Whalan of the county board yesterday. "But if the county could get by for the cost of the reassessment and the taxes could be collected promptly, we could get by without special legislation."

J. Louis Jacobs, efficiency expert, has recommended a minimum cut of 15 per cent in city expenditures, according to precedent reports. Mr. Jacobs told Mr. Emmerson's revenue conferees that such a reduction could be made without impairing service.

Excluding fixed charges, M. J. Faherty, assistant deputy county controller, estimates that $1,963,000 can be trimmed from the expenses of the county in order that the county commissioners may avoid liability under the new budgetary law. That reduction is about 15 per cent.

Mr. O'Connor also urges that $1,400,000 more be cut out to be legally spent. The total, $3,363,000, is 23.6 per cent. It is asserted this will necessitate the elimination of unnecessary jobs.

675 to 1,000 Jobs May Go.

During the fiscal year the county has about 1,800 regular jobs and the equivalent of 900 extra jobs at $6 a day. A cut of 15 to 23 per cent would affect 675 to 1,000 jobs. But the commissioners may be expected to adopt every expedient to avoid such a reduction in employés if they persist in the 1932 budget as in the past.

This is the prospect if the board accepts the 1932 estimates of income. Some of the estimates are unquestionably high if 1929 and 1930 figures of actual income are taken as a guide.

The first of the county's retrenchments this year was to order all employés to work the first half of September without pay. The city government under Mayor Cermak took the action.

Mr. Emmerson's revenue conferees in their report to the legislature stated: "We are in a period of falling rents" and then continued:

"The taxpayer's cost of maintenance for himself and his family has been reduced in the neighborhood of 5 per cent during the last year. His income in most cases has been correspondingly, or even more rapidly, reduced. He is justified in the expectation that the costs of government will be correspondingly reduced."

Detroit Cuts School Pay.

The last city appropriation of Detroit, effective last July 1, contemplates that all of the instructional staff of the public schools shall submit to a reduction of 3 per cent. The Detroit board of education suspended automatic increases in salaries. The Chicago board decided against taking similar action. Laborers in the Detroit department of public works are limited to three days' work a week.

Philadelphia, at the beginning of the year, laid off a part of its employés to keep within its appropriation. Later employés of certain departments were required to take vacations without pay.

The Cleveland board of education has suspended automatic salary increases for one year. Boston has sustained all salary and wage increases, and anniversary wage increases for firemen and firemen.

Teachers Fight Board's Plan for $125,000,000 Bond Issue

Charges of pork barrel tactics were hurled at the school board yesterday by representatives of twenty-five teachers' organizations who met to consider the board's request that their groups endorse bills, to be presented to the special session of the legislature, authorizing $125,000,000 in school bond issues.

After raking the school board over the coals for two hours in a closed session the representatives emerged with an innocuous statement of their conclusions.

"No action was taken," it was said by their spokesmen. "We are reporting back to our component organizations and will report their decisions on endorsement to the school board Saturday."

Urged to Support Bonds.

Saturday members of the school board, led by Trustee Joseph E. Savage, urged to the teachers' representatives that all their groups go to the legislature and back bills authorizing nonreferendum school bond issues—one of $50,000,000 for building purposes, and one of $75,000,000 to replenish the board's cash working fund and pay back salaries and bills.

Comments on the board's proposals in the closed meeting yesterday were bitter. The angry voices of the participants were heard plainly in adjoining rooms.

Among those who took a prominent part in the discussions were James A. Meade, head of the men teachers' union; Irvin A. Wilson, president of the Principals' club; C. C. Willard, former chairman of the legislative committee of the club; Miss Agnes Clohesy, president of the Elementary Teachers' union, and Charles B. Stillman, chairman of the conference.

Called Bomb for Assembly.

Among the comments made were these:

"The $500,000 building bond issue will be the bombshell of the special session."

"The board has definitely and intentionally tied these two bills together. Savage made what was in effect a threat—'if you don't let this building bond issue go through, I won't be interested in the passage of the $75,000,000 bond issue for salaries.'"

"The school board told us: 'Don't go to Springfield and talk about income, tobacco or cosmetic taxes. They are controversial and will imperil our bills.'"

Assail Hasty Building.

"There always has been waste in intensive building programs, costly misjudgment of population shifts. We should stick to the policy of building our schools from tax receipts, not bond issues."

"I'm not convinced that there is a need for the $75,000,000 bond issue, either. They are asking more money than they have a right to. Sixty millions should be enough."

"To get an idea of the voters' reaction to the board's proposed bond issues, I have asked a number of citizens of the garden variety what they thought. Their reply was, 'What? A $125,000,000 bond issue without a referendum? Not on your life!'"

"In 22 years I have seen school boards come and go. I haven't seen a school board yet I could trust as far as you can throw a bull by the horns, except as concerns their own private and political fortunes."

The bond issues which the school board proposes were frowned on at the last session of the legislature and by the governor's revenue commission.

JUDGE APPOINTS RECEIVER FOR UTILITIES CO.

The Midwest States Utilities company, which operates telephone companies in Illinois and six other middle western and southern states, went into receivership yesterday in the United States District court. Judge Wilkerson appointed Lou J. Lester, general manager of the company, receiver.

The petition for receivership was filed by Bowes & Co., insurance brokers, who claim that a bill for $4,637 for insurance premiums is unpaid. The petition states that the company's assets exceed liabilities, but that they are in a nonliquid state.

The company reported 29,079 telephone customers on Jan. 1, and also operated a small power station in Oklahoma. Its activities extend also into Texas, Arkansas, Kansas, Iowa, Wisconsin, and Minnesota.

The concern is not connected with the Middle West Utilities company, an Insull property.

The New BRITANNICA at an unprecedented reduction in price

COMPACT BOOKCASE—A new compact bookcase, made of mahogany, has been specially designed for the 24 volumes. It will meet the requirements of either the large or the small room.

"How can the New BRITANNICA be sold for so small a price as this?"

A SHORT time ago we announced that temporary trade conditions had made it possible for us to offer the latest (14th) Edition of the Britannica at many dollars less than the previous standard price.

This is the lowest price at which the new edition of the Britannica has ever been offered.

Thousands of Sets Already Sold

We knew, of course, that many keen, progressive and prudent people had long wanted to own the Britannica. But we did not expect that so many people would take advantage of this offer so quickly.

Thousands of the sets available have already been sold; it will be wise for you to make sure of your set by ordering it immediately.

All your life you have doubtless wished to own the Britannica.

You have hesitated to buy it, perhaps, because you thought the price was more than you could afford. Here, then, is a great opportunity.

If you want one of these remaining sets at this unprecedented reduction of many dollars from the previous standard price, we urge you to mail the coupon today for full particulars.

More Than Your Money's Worth

Since the price of the new Britannica has been so sharply reduced, those who order it now are securing far, far more than their usual money's worth.

There are two sound reasons for this:

First:—The information in the Britannica is not only superbly comprehensive, explaining to you everything that is worth while, but to own it is to have the final authority of fact or information. It is an essential part of the equipment of every efficiently equipped home.

Next:—To purchase the very latest edition of the Britannica, while the present reduced price is in effect, is to take practical advantage of business conditions which no one expected, and which may never be repeated . . . conditions which enable you to own it for a sum that is almost trivial, when you consider the daily, and unending, usefulness of the Britannica, to all in your home.

To publish the Britannica in its twenty-four clearly printed and beautifully bound volumes—with its 24,000 pages and its 15,000 explanatory illustrations is, usually, a very costly operation—it must be.

But during the slow-business period through which we have just passed, fine paper and press work and binding have been considerably less expensive than usual.

We took full advantage of these unusual conditions—and we ordered that 600,000 volumes of the Britannica be printed and bound; an order equal to the very largest quantity of the Britannica that has ever been produced at one time.

Now—every single dollar of the great sum thus saved we are passing on to those who order while we can still fill orders at the new and LOWER price.

Every child attending (or soon to attend) school needs the Britannica, to help make lessons, and accomplishment, easier.

The business man finds in the Britannica the quick, correct answer to problems of commerce—law—manufacture—advertising and selling—invention—science—business management—and every phase of industrial development.

Women turn to the Britannica for practical information about running a home—health—literature and the arts—economics—charitable movements—and full explanations of the news of the day.

Write for Particulars

Seize this opportunity before it is too late. The time is now—it is the opportunity for which you have been waiting—tomorrow may be too late. Make sure of your set.

Your Money's Worth

Many people may not realize that the twenty-four large and beautifully bound volumes carry 35,000,000 words, the equivalent of 500 ordinary size books. This text is written by 3,500 authorities and is richly illustrated with 15,000 pictures, many in full color, and with 500 maps. Indexed, with 500,000 separate entries, the books are easily and agreeably read.

$5 Down, $5 a Month

Under our Thrift Plan, only $5 down is required to bring the set to your home for immediate use. Balance is payable in a few monthly instalments of $5 or more.

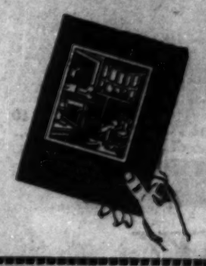
If you will now detach and then fill out and mail to us the address slip you find below, we will promptly mail you complete information about the new lower price of the Britannica. And we will explain our new Thrift Plan—which makes it easy for everyone to own and use this great, authoritative work of reference and education.



WHAT BRITANNICA OWNERS SAY

Willis A. Sutton
Recent Pres., Nat'l Education Ass'n
From the very beginning of school life the seeking mind of a child should be in a position to acquire reliable information. This he gets in the Britannica, unquestionably.

George C. Warner, Glen Ellyn, Illinois
A regular college education has been denied me; but I find its equivalent in these remarkable books.

John Grier Hibben
President, Princeton University
As a source of accurate and interesting information it will be of incalculable value in any household.

Nathan Abbott, La Jolla, California
The most for the money of anything I ever bought.

Ernest M. Hopkins
President, Dartmouth College
The new Encyclopaedia Britannica contains material for a very large degree of self-education on the part of any individual having access to it. The new edition is a surprisingly complete compendium of knowledge. I should not be willing to be without it.

Mrs E. D. Skinner, Glen Cove, N. Y.
I wish it were possible to put the Britannica in every home, especially where there are children. We are simply devouring our set.

EXPECT COOKS TO CROWD NEW CLASSES TODAY

School to Be Opened for North Side Women.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

North side housewives did two days' housekeeping in one yesterday in preparation for attending THE TRIBUNE School of Cookery at the Aragon ballroom, 1100 Lawrence avenue. Today's class will be the first for the north side women.

IRENE RICH.

Many of the women planned to be at the ballroom long before the doors swing open at 12:30 o'clock in order to obtain the 5,000 available seats. Many women had to be turned away from last week's classes on the south side because of the lack of space. The program today will start at 1:45 p. m.

The north side classes will continue until Saturday. Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, nationally known cooking expert, will conduct the school with the cooperation of Miss Mary Meade, TRIBUNE home economics editor. There will be daily lectures, entertainment by professional musicians, and more than 100 prizes given away daily.

Promises Steak Recipe.

Mrs. Chitwood paused long enough in her preparations yesterday to confide that air-minded husbands on the north side are due for a broiled steak treat.

"I'm going to show housewives how to broil a Lindbergh steak," said Mrs. Chitwood. "How could a steak be connected with aeronautics? That's easy. It's all in the garnishing. There will be airplanes all over the top of the steak, made of carrots, and an image of Lindbergh will be sitting in one. You'll even be able to see his helmet.

"Outside of the garnishing, which, by the way, is quite an important item in cookery, I'll show how to broil steak. It isn't as simple as most young brides think. In fact, there's a scientific trick to broiling steak."

Mrs. Chitwood went on to name several other dishes she plans to make today. For instance, if you've never tasted stuffed dewdrop cake, or frozen peach parfait, or coffee souffle pie, or Spanish macaroni, or cranberry pudding, or stuffed carrots, you'll go right home and try them after you see the tempting dishes prepared by Mrs. Chitwood.

How to Use Leftovers.

"A housewife is going to feel especially virtuous after she has utilized leftover coffee in coffee souffle pie and Spanish macaroni," she added. "And her husband will never suspect they're leftovers. And the creator of a cranberry pudding will have a load off her mind all week, because the longer that pudding stands the better it is."

As for entertainment, the headline event today is the personal appearance of Irene Rich, motion picture actress, who is appearing at the R. K. O. Palace theater. It is reported that Miss Rich will reveal some of the favorite recipes of Hollywood stars.

Then, with Phil Maxwell as master of ceremonies, there will be community singing led by Frank Bennett, assisted by Kathryn Bennett at the piano. Ruth Streeter, soprano, and Henry Phillips, tenor, will sing a duet. Sherwood Thatcher, baritone, will give a solo, accompanied at the piano by Miriam Mims.

Cooking school classes for west side women will be held the week of Nov. 17 and the final classes will be on Nov. 23 and 24 at the Coliseum, afternoon and evening. These may be attended by women from all over the city.

STALLED AUTO ON HIGHWAY HILL CAUSES A RIOT

Motorists Stoned for Ignoring S O S.

Portsmouth, O., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—An antiquated automobile crawled up a small hill four miles east of here yesterday. Other automobiles, shiny and glistening with their engines purring with power, glided past in the busiest hours on the Atlantic and Pacific highway.

Near the top of the rise the dilapidated car sputtered and wheezed, coughed a couple of racking coughs, groaned, and died. It settled down in the midst of the passing lines.

Our poured five youths. They wobbled about the car, pushing a gadget here and a thingum there. Those who worked were given loud advice by those who did not.

They tried everything except to breathe into the engine, which might have made it run.

Try to Flag Passing Cars.

The quintet tried to flag down passing machines. None would stop. The youngest picked up a rock and shied it through the windshield of a car. He soon was joined by an older brother, and finally all five decided that was easier and more enjoyable than working on a busted down automobile.

Rocks and clubs flew at the machines. Windshields and windows were smashed and radiators cracked. Traffic halted and cars were backed up for miles in each direction.

The autoists began to retaliate. They were joined by the villagers of nearby Stoney Run. A three hour battle ended by the defeat of the aggressors. Sheriff's deputies rescued the five after they had been beaten, stoned and kicked. Two of them are in serious condition.

Twenty other persons were injured and more than 50 cars damaged.

Last Chapter in Court.

The youths were arraigned today. Two of them were fined $300 and costs for drunkenness and malicious destruction of property. They were Reuben Jarrell, 22, and Steve Osborn, 19. Newton Osborn, 30, and Theodore May, 26, drew fines of $200 and costs for malicious destruction of property. Emmett Osborn, 17, charged with having participated in the attack, was turned over to juvenile authorities.

Examination showed the ancient car merely had run out of gas.

RUNS SPEAKEASY WHILE IN JAIL; GETS NEW TERM

Gene Phillips of Aurora, charged with operating a speakeasy in his home town while serving 60 days in the Kane county jail at Geneva last spring for violation of the prohibition law, was sentenced yesterday by Federal Judge John P. Barnes to serve an additional year and a day in the penitentiary at Leavenworth beginning Nov. 20.

Phillips was allowed until that date to arrange his "business affairs." Evidence presented by Assistant United States Attorney Daniel Anderson showed that Phillips hired a bartender to run his speakeasy in Aurora for him while he was in the Kane county jail.

MAN IS NAMED BY SOCIETY GIRL IN SUICIDE NOTE

Leaves Letter Hinting at Love Affair.

New York, Nov. 9.—[Special.]—Two notes written by Miss Elizabeth Bates Volck before she committed suicide in her apartment at 400 East 53d street, in the fashionable Sutton place district, early today, one directed to Gerald D. Tiffany and the other unaddressed and incomplete, were given out this afternoon by the police.

ELIZABETH BATES VOLCK.

The first note was written on blue ruled yellow foolscap in very legible heavy writing. It finished abruptly. The second note, which was addressed to Mr. Tiffany, was in jerky, uneven writing, indicating the emotional strain of the writer.

The first note read:

"Regardles of what I may have done, regardless of whatever you have done or will do, I want you to realize now this is quits between us. I bear no resentment toward you or our . . . "

The second read:

"Jerry Darling: You see, up until the last I feel as though I had to talk to you. All I wish is for you to always think of me kindly, if you, who are so fine and courageous, can think a decent thought about any one who so utterly lacks that which you so possess to such a marvelous degree.

"P. S.: I leave all my furniture to Diana Durant to keep or sell, according to what she see fit.

"ELIZABETH BATES VOLCK."

GLORIA SWANSON REWEDS FARMER AS FREE WOMAN

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—Gloria Swanson telephoned from Yuma, Ariz., to her business agent, Lance Heath, here this afternoon and said she had just been married in the Arizona city to Michael Farmer, sportsman of Cork, Ireland, Paris, and New York.

Miss Swanson told Heath she would issue a statement which, presumably, will take up her double marriage to Farmer, the first occurring at Mount Pleasant, N. Y., last Aug. 15, when she was ineligible to marry.

She became eligible to wed only this morning when attorneys filed a final decree of divorce freeing her permanently from Marquis Henry Falaise, her third husband.

STORE COLLECTOR ROBBED.

Edward Marshall, 114 East 50th street, collector for Morris B. Sachs clothing store at 6038 South Halsted street, was robbed of $525 in cash and $640 in checks by three gunmen yesterday while in his automobile at West 85th and South Halsted streets.

Want to correct CONSTIPATION without Medicines?

Here's the simple method famous doctors advise!

Then here's good news! Here's a really natural way to correct constipation. It's eating fresh Fleischmann's Yeast, the remarkable corrective food famous doctors advise!

Eaten regularly, Fleischmann's Yeast corrects the sluggishness that is at the bottom of constipation. It actually "tones" and strengthens the "tired" muscles of the intestines, as it moistens and softens the clogging masses of food wastes.

And you feel the healthful effects in a hundred different ways!

You are more energetic. Appetite revives. Indigestion, bad breath, headaches, etc., disappear as yeast corrects their underlying cause!

Try it! You can get Fleischmann's Yeast at grocers', restaurants and soda fountains, and directions are on the label. Start eating it today.

HOOVER ACTION IS ADVOCATED IN HOME BREW CASE

Resolutions Presented to Legion Post.

Resolutions asking that President Hoover take cognizance of a Chicago home brew case were presented to Abraham Lincoln Men's post of the American Legion yesterday while preliminary steps were taken toward a possible reopening of the trial before retired Judge John P. Barnes.

The Legion was asked to come to the assistance of Charles L. Wiley, a haberdasher and owner of a drapery business in the Furniture Mart, who was ordered held for trial on a charge of conspiracy when he came to the defense of Boleslaw Lidikewicz, his janitor, who made a batch of home brew. Attorney Stephen A. Day, son of the late Supreme court justice, W. S. Day, is representing Lidikewicz, but is acting independently of Wiley's defense.

Wiley on Developments.

Wiley's attorney, William C. Dunn, retained by the Crusaders, said yesterday he would make no move until Wiley is indicted. Wiley was arrested after he told Judge Barnes that Lidikewicz was not making beer to sell but for a party of Legion members, whereupon Assistant United States Attorney Walter E. Wiles moved for Wiley's arrest and Wiley was held until a $1,000 bond was provided.

The defense in the defense of the home brew was explained by Attorney Day, who said the Crusaders' policy was not to defend any person accused of anything that savors of bootlegging. Attorney Day's contention is that the searching of Lidikewicz's home without a warrant was illegal. Wiley, both lawyers said, is an innocent victim whose predicament was caused by his plea for the janitor.

Attorney Day served notice on Assistant Wiles that he would appear this morning before Judge Barnes to move that the conviction and sentencing of Lidikewicz be set aside and that he be allowed to withdraw his plea of guilty, which, Day said, was conditional in this language: "If it is wrong to make home brew then I am guilty." The lawyer indicated that he would seek a jury trial.

The Legion Resolutions.

The resolutions offered regarding Wiley, which were referred to the resolutions committee of the Legion post, said:

"C. L. Wiley, while in the act of befriending one who was charged with a violation of the Volstead act, was ruthlessly arrested by a federal officer and imprisoned without being given an opportunity to furnish bail and without the benefit of counsel; all of this without a warrant or complaint filed.

"The rights and liberties of Wiley have been invaded and infringed by a federal officer in his zeal for sacrifices upon the altar of the Volstead act."

The Legion petition then asked that President Hoover be "requested to instruct the officer who caused the arrest to make an apology and whatever restitution may be deemed fit and proper to Wiley," and that the President be asked "to take whatever steps are necessary to assure the people of this nation that their rights and liberties shall not be encroached by overarduous federal officers in their enforcement of the Volstead act or any other laws."

LAWYERS ASK FEES OF $625,000 FROM WANAMAKER ESTATE

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—A bill of $625,000 for counsel fees against the John Wanamaker estate started a contest in the Orphans' court today when the audit of the estate was called before Judge John M. Gest. Lawyers representing the heirs protested that the entire estate was valued now at only $2,000,000, but attorneys for the estate replied that their bill was not excessive inasmuch as they had fought successfully attempts of the state and federal governments to collect inheritance taxes of $10,000,000. Briefs will be filed and a decision announced later.

A bill for $450,000 for contesting the inheritance tax claims was put in by Owen J. Roberts, now an associate justice of the United States Supreme court, the law firm of Saul, Ewing & Saul of this city, and J. Marvin Haynes of Washington. An additional $125,000 was charged as attorneys' fees for the executors.

The inheritance tax claims were opposed successfully on the ground that Mr. Wanamaker was not contemplating death when he transferred his business, valued then at about $50,000,000, to his son, the late Rodman Wanamaker, within two years prior to the testator's death in 1922.

500,000 PUPILS GIVE ARMISTICE PROGRAMS TODAY

Celebration Will Reach Climax Tomorrow.

Observance of Armistice day was begun among a few organizations yesterday, will be marked by others today and culminate tomorrow in a city wide patriotic celebration.

More than 500,000 children in the public schools will take part in programs in their schools today. Schools will be dismissed all day tomorrow. Most of the programs will be held in morning assemblies in the schools.

At the Pope elementary school, 1855 South Albany avenue, 1,000 pupils will parade this morning. State Representative Sol Roderick will address the pupils.

Col. W. R. Matheny, president of the Cook County Reserve Officers' association, and signal corps commander of the sixth corps area, will speak at the Lane Technical High school. Municipal Judge John H. Lyle will speak at the Senn High school. Gen. Frank J. Dickson will address the Lake View High school pupils at a morning assembly and the Rev. Homer C. Bobiitt will speak at the afternoon assembly.

Addressing the Advertising post of the American Legion yesterday in the Hotel Sherman, Ferre C. Watkins, formerly state commander of the American Legion, urged that the Legion oppose with its entire force the President's proposed plan of cutting expenditures of the army and navy.

"These are times when courage and unfaltering decision are needed," said Mr. Watkins. "Strange doctrines are being preached in high places. The nation's defense is attacked and we are forbidden to speak out."

Rotary Celebration Today.

Sydney W. Pascall of London, president of Rotary International, will speak on "Rotary's International Efforts Toward World Peace" at the Chicago Rotary club tonight, when directors of Rotary International, representing eight countries, will be guests of the directors of the Chicago club.

At 11 a. m. tomorrow, the hour of the Armistice, all trains of the Rapid Transit, North Shore, Aurora and Elgin, and South Shore line will stop in respect to the world war dead.

An "Armistice eve riot" will be held in the Rainbo gardens, Clark street and Lawrence avenue, tonight for the benefit of the North Shore Animal Shelter, 4500 North Clark street.

Keehn Speaks in Oak Park.

Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keehn, commander of the 33d division, addressed the Oak Park lodge, B. P. O. E., at the lodge's clubhouse last night. Capt. Edward A. Evers, U. S. N. R., participated in the services. A parade was led by the drum and bugle corps of the Cicero post of the American Legion. The Oak Park and suburban posts took part.

Circuit Judge Philip L. Sullivan, a member of Eaton-Priddy post of the legion, will address the Emil Hirsch Jr. High school this morning. William Metzer and John Vesper, only surviving members of the John Drury camp, G. A. R., will speak. The Eaton-Priddy post will conduct the program.

The Chicago Historical society announced yesterday that because the auditorium of the society headquarters, Dearborn and Ontario streets, is torn up in anticipation of the society's moving to its new building, the society will not hold its annual Armistice day program this year, as was announced in THE TRIBUNE yesterday.

PROBE TRAVEL BUREAU AFTER ROBBERY CHARGE

Investigation of the Automobile Travel bureau, 25 East Jackson boulevard, is to be started this morning by the racket bureau of the state's attorney's office and by the police department on the complaint of two men who were introduced by the bureau to a third, who was to drive them to Florida but who robbed them soon after the start of the trip.

The victims were E. B. Carr, 30 years old, 3039 South Halsted street, and Thomas Cartwright, 56 years old, 1854 East 48th street. Through the travel bureau they were introduced to J. A. Purcell, 2543 Moffatt street, who owned an automobile. All expenses of the trip were to be divided. At Terre Haute, Ind., the three visited a restaurant for lunch. Purcell, on a pretext, left to see about the automobile and drove away, taking with him the money and suit cases belonging to Carr and Cartwright, it is charged.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE PRESIDENT AND THE NAVY.

The board, court, or committee of inquiry appointed by Mr. Hoover to find that William Howard Gardiner made false statements in the Navy league pamphlet has made its report that Mr. Gardiner made erroneous, misleading, and false statements.

The essence of Mr. Gardiner's statement was that Mr. Hoover, with a background of international activities and interests and a pacifist nature derived from environment and temperament, did not use the same wisdom in dealing with national defense that he used in other affairs of state. Consequently he was more concerned in developing international negotiations for the limitation of navies than he was in keeping the navy at the strength permitted by treaties. His economies injured the navy.

Mr. Gardiner said that Mr. Hoover had suspended construction and that in consequence the navy was losing power and soon would be dangerously below the ratio to Great Britain and Japan. Mr. Hoover's committee reports that Mr. Gardiner's opinions and conclusions are not matters of fact and are not to be dealt with in the inquiry, but that his statements of fact are in error and his assumptions as to the President's attitude toward the navy are wholly unwarranted.

The committee found that there had been no secret agreements with Mr. MacDonald at the Rapidan conference and that the administration had not withheld information from the senate. There had been some suspension of building preliminary to naval conferences, but not to the extent or with the effect stated by Mr. Gardiner, and there had been compensating suspensions by other nations. It was not the intention of the economy program to starve or weaken the navy, and, although there had been administrative modifications of the building programs authorized by congress, construction was continuing.

The committee was appointed to defend the administration's treatment of the navy. Its conclusions were announced before its members were named. The investigators included Admiral Hugh Rodman, the fidus Achates of the British admiral, Beatty, and four of Mr. Hoover's personal friends, three of whom are or have been connected with the government. Mr. Hoover in advance said he expected an apology from the Navy league head. No inquiry could have been more thoroughly stamped with partiality from the start. Consequently its report does not satisfy the interest which the controversy has heightened.

If it were admitted that the statements, the accuracy of which is denied in the report, needed correction, as the committee outlines the question, the question still remains whether the American navy is being maintained as it should be maintained under the treaties. Mr. Gardiner says that it is not. The whole purpose of the Navy league's public efforts for the navy is that it should be so maintained.

An impartial committee, interested in the whole subject and in its vital point, the strength of the navy, would not have rushed a refutation through a few secret sessions. The question is the state of the navy. The issue was prejudged. The inquiry did not touch the principal issue.

It has been difficult to obtain sufficient authorizations of ships from congress, beset by pacifists whenever a navy bill is up, to fill out the classifications under the treaties. The treaties themselves are disadvantageous to the United States. In each one of them some particular American interest has been set aside and the peculiar British requirements in sea power have been served. Japan also has obtained concessions of value to it in its location.

No conference has ever embraced the whole subject of sea power from an American point of view. The elements of power omitted have all been such as worked to the advantage of the other navies, elements, for instance, of bases and cruising radius. The treaties have produced an unbalanced scheme of naval ratios even when tonnage in the classifications seemed to check up. British and Japanese needs have been used for treaty models.

Lobbies of internationalists are active in Washington to prevent congress from providing the money to build American ships in conformity with treaty privileges. It is not enough that the United States shall surrender its interests in conference. It must fail, then, to exercise its rights under the treaties.

When congress has been prevailed upon to provide for construction it is then possible for the administration to suspend or delay building, and still further loss in fleet strength results. Great Britain and Japan are seldom, if ever, foolish when they deal with their navies. They are shrewd in making their agreements and they are wise in exercising their rights.

Americans who know that when a nation needs a navy it needs a good one, if it is to be saved the cost and injuries of defeat, distrust the attitude of recent administrations. The opposition to national defense is organized and always active. It does its work through many channels. The Navy league is one of the few organizations of citizens on the safety side. The criticisms it makes of government policy are made for national security.

Mr. Hoover is entitled to an accurate statement of facts. It is not always possible to get an agreement as to what the facts are. Naval statistics are as others. They can be manipulated to support opinions. Inferiority does not always reveal itself in figures. The resentment Mr. Hoover displayed when his navy policies were criticised does not in itself add to the confidence of doubters that in his feeling for national defense there is much friendship for it.

There has been of late years in Washington too much exaltation of the international spirit. Pacifism has extraordinary influence on government, and such things as the Kellogg pact impose upon credulous people, in spite of what they can see any day in the world about them, the illusion of a new era in which nations have ceased to take what they want when they can get it, and in which the weak find their protection in the good will of the strong. Asia today may be taken as the answer to that.

Mr. Hoover has conducted his inquiry into the statements of the Navy league. This ought to lead to an inquiry by unprejudiced investigators into the condition of the navy itself.

ON THE TOBOGGAN.

New York City is, of course, the richest city in the United States, and New York state is the wealthiest of the states. New York state pays more in income taxes to the federal government than any other state and property values on Manhattan island are probably higher than they are in any other region of similar size in the world.

In spite of these evidences of wealth, New York City and New York state find themselves today in much the same condition as are the local governments of Chicago. In New York they have not—or perhaps more accurately, have not yet—reached the point of credit exhaustion. New York City is still able to borrow freely on short and long term at low interest. But how much longer this easy credit can continue is problematical. New York and Chicago have been going the same road. They have been spending in excess of income. The appearance of solvency has been retained by levying each year on paper enough taxes to balance the expenditures in cash, but the tax money itself has not flowed into the treasury. Accordingly deficits have begun to pile up.

This year almost $78,000,000, or nearly 16 per cent of the taxes levied on real estate and personalty in New York City, remains unpaid. Of the 1929 taxes, $72,000,000 was unpaid at the end of the year. Of the 1928 taxes, $62,000,000 was unpaid. Ten years ago the uncollected taxes at the end of the year were only $25,000,000. Plainly, either unwillingness or inability to pay is piling these deficits upon each other in a fashion which ought to alarm New Yorkers, but apparently has made little impression upon them. They will wake up one morning to discover that the city's credit is exhausted.

The process is inexorable, as Chicago has discovered. This year's tax delinquencies must be added to next year's budget. If next year's expenditures for current purposes are not reduced by at least the amount of the deficit taxes must be raised. Those who would not or could not pay the lower taxes are even less likely to pay the delinquent bills plus the higher tax bills which follow, and, of course, the raising of taxes increases the number of property owners who cannot pay this year, whatever they may have been able to do last year.

New York has much to learn from Chicago in this matter, but probably won't heed the lesson until too late. The only true remedy there, as here, lies in a reduction of the costs of government. The attempt to meet municipal deficits with either short or long term borrowing only adds to the difficulty. In the end—and at the pace New York is presently going the end cannot long be delayed—will be found the exhaustion of municipal credit.

Only the other day there were no offers for two small bond issues in Chicago, and Chicago's tax anticipations, though they yield 6 per cent, have no market. That is why there is no money to pay our teachers and other public servants. If New York continues spending at the present pace precisely the same results must be expected. They are as certain and immutable as the rules of addition and the operations of the table of compound interest.

Editorial of the Day

NOW, LET US SEE.

If infliction of the death penalty for murder has the crime deterrent effect claimed for it by its proponents, the murder curve in Chicago should show a marked drop during the next month or two. Four men sat in the electric chair in the Cook county jail early Friday morning and shuddered to death as 1,900 volts of electricity coursed through their bodies. Only once before, after the Haymarket riots, has Chicago inflicted the death penalty upon four men in one day.

A fifth man was to have died yesterday morning, but an insanity plea filed by his attorneys a few hours before the execution resulted in a stay. The fifth man was Frank Bell, 31 years of age, the "squealer." He is the man who testified against his partner in crime regarding their holdup and robbery of a restaurant. He is also the man who informed the warden of the Cook county jail that an escape plot was on foot in the death house and that some of the prisoners had guns. As a result, an automatic pistol and a magazine full of shells were taken from the cell of one of the doomed men and the warden, with his assistant, appeared before the pardon board and testified that in their opinion Bell's sentence should be commuted to life imprisonment. He had saved their lives, they said, and prevented a bloody jail delivery. The pardon board, however, lacked either the wit or the courage to recommend commutation and Bell would have died had the insanity petition not been filed.

Manifestly, if a man—even a man under sentence of death—saves the lives of public officials and prevents a jail break which might become a riot, he is entitled to consideration. Failure to reward him would be unjust, whereas if his sentence were reduced other prisoners might be better behaved.

We confess some doubt as to the value of the death penalty as a crime deterrent, but if the wholesale executions of yesterday have a salutary effect upon the crooks of Chicago, we are willing to admit there is some virtue in the electric chair.

In the meantime, however, Bell should be given consideration. He has earned it.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THIS CHANGING WORLD! What used to be a rollicking joke in the good old days has now become a grim, inescapable fact. Senator Lewis, the Crusaders, the American Legion, oodles of lawyers, and many others in reviewing the case of the janitor who made some four per cent beer down in his cellar for himself and his friends, say he cannot be put in jail for that. The janitor is in jail. But years ago we had many a hearty laugh out of the story of the lawyer appointed to defend a man in jail. He went down to the hoosegow to talk to the man, listened to the story, and then exclaimed: "Why, they can't put you in jail for that!" "I know they can't," said the prisoner, "but, damn 'em, they did."

THE HAPPY DEMOCRATS are appointing "Minute Men" to get out and raise a million and a half dollars to elect Gov. Roosevelt President next year. (It will be Gov. Roosevelt, will it not?) But why so much money. We know lots of people who will vote the Democratic ticket next year and not ask a nickel for their vote.

"FORMER U. S. SOLON to Be Released from Prison."—A yesterday headline. Attention, please, schools of journalism! Here is something, dear children, you must learn early in your preparation for practicing journalism. Newspapers always call a congressman who gets into jail or any serious trouble a "solon"; "Solon Sued for Breach of Promise"; "Trunkful of Hootch Traced to Solon"; "Solon Points to Where He Hid Body," etc., etc. No, dearies, do not ask why. We are just telling you so that after you write your first story about one of our nation's lawmakers you will not suddenly descend in the street with the window still firmly attached to your neck.

A MENDER.

You came to me world-worn and weary,
Rumpled and tattered of feather,
Whimpering and broken of spirit,
Crying to be put together.

I mended the place that was broken,
I smoothed you, and soothed you, and kissed you,
And when you were gone I was frantic
Oh, Lad, if you knew how I missed you.

It seems I'm a fixer, a mender,
And when my poor patients are done
They flutter their wings at my window
And I give them back to the sun.

P. S. McDONALD.

EDUCATION in the problems of marriage is a new course just opened by New York university. One of the first things they ought to take up is the problem of curing father from saying "Oh, oh!" to every little event of the day that mamma has stored up to unload on him when he comes home from the office in the evening. "Dearie, Junior tore his new panties today." "Oh, oh!" "Darling, I made the loveliest peach pie for you this afternoon." "Oh, oh!" "Darling, I won the sweetest crocheted soup tureen at bridge this afternoon." "Oh, oh!" "Oh, dearie, papa wired to say he had to have the five hundred dollars he loaned you, right away." This is a marriage problem that has driven more wives to Reno than any other single cause. We hope the College of the Problems of Marriage takes this matter up right away.

NEWSPAPER PHOTOGRAPHERS intrigue us mightily. Always making some one in a group point an accusing finger at something or other is one thing. Somebody's got to point; there's some kind of law about it. But in taking a picture of gels singing or playing any sort of instrument they invariably make 'em sit on a piano. And yet we see advertisements every day of chairs for sale, all sorts of chairs. They are certainly still in use in offices, studios, and homes. But probably not in newspaper photographers' homes. When you visit a newspaper photographer's charming little bungalow the missus very likely says: "Won't you sit down! Here, sit on this piano; that upright is so uncomfortable. Oh, you have friends with you. Children, run into the dining room and bring in three or four more pianos, so that we can all sit down and have a nice chat." Anyhow, it must be something like that.

AH, K. V. Z., Lydia the Languishing, Ivan Ides, and all of you who are sending in requests for things you want in the Linebook of 1931, too late, too late! The 64 dam pages are now in the hands of the printer and the artist who painted the cover is hiding in a lonesome attic lest we find him and rend him limb from limb. He made us fat. We have our faults, we admit—oh, trifling, silly things, one could hardly call them faults, just cunning little tricks—but, at any rate, we are not fat. But look at our picture on the new Linebook! We ask you, what would you do if such a libel was put in circulation about you? Huh?

ONE WOMAN.

Her eyelids, closed serenely, do not shield
And nurse unquiet dreams of other lands;
She has no mind except for what days yield
In tasks about the house for arms and hands
Grown strong and sure in sweeping, cleaning up,
With beating batters, scouring pots, and sink,
And yet so gentle setting down the cup
From which at dinner time his lips will drink.
How can we pity her whose tireless feet
Weave patterns in and out of rooms all day
When we can hear her voice rise clear and sweet
And see her eyes look straight at us that way?
We who go questing are unmissed, unheeded—
Oh, pity us instead who are not needed.

SPRINKLE BARN FLOORS.

PROF. WORTHEN of Cornell advocates the use of superphosphate on barn floors and in barn gutters, according to the New York Health News. Many health departments advise dairymen to use some powder on the barn floor to keep down odors, and also, indirectly, to reduce the dirt and bacteria in the milk as it leaves the barn.

In some places sand is used. It has the advantage of saving the fertilizer value, of absorbing odors, and of preventing the cows' flanks from becoming soiled. If a farmer has a plentiful supply of good sand not far from the barn, and if he has some clay farmland that is a little too stiff, the use of sand on his barn floor, and its later use as fertilizer will be advantageous.

More farmers make use of powdered lime rock for this purpose. It has the advantages that sand has and others. It absorbs the fertilizer values very well, and it keeps a barn free from odor and from mud. If a farmer has any crop land that is sour, or that tends that way, or that needs lime for any reason, powdered lime rock makes a better barn floor application than does sand. Some farmers think it kills flies. In that they are mistaken. Fly eggs and fly larvae are not killed, or even harmed, by powdered lime rock. They can even stand unslaked lime unless the lime absorbs enough moisture to raise the temperature to the killing point. Another limitation is the fact that the soil on which milk can be profitably produced is generally pretty well supplied with lime. Unless a farmer has some wet sour spots on his land he is not likely to gain much from fertilizers made out of lime and lime rock.

Prof. Worthen says a ton of manure from a cow barn contains 14 pounds of ammonia, 9 pounds of potash, and only 3 pounds of phosphoric acid. To sprinkle the barn floor and gutters with 1 to 2 pounds per cow of 18 per cent superphosphate will add about 50 pounds of this fertilizer to the 3 pounds in each ton, and will thus greatly increase the fertilizer value. Almost any type of land will be benefited by the application of fertilizer that is rich in phosphate. The barn will be free from odors and the cows will be clean. Clean cows mean clean milk. Clean milk is wholesome.

CHANGING OF HABITS.

H. P. C. writes: I send you an advertisement of a cure for diarrhea which I clipped from a paper fifty years ago. I am now 80 years old. Now I read advertisements of constipation remedies, but never any for diarrhea.

1. Can it be that one-half century has changed habits, customs, and foods, and so has reversed the liability to bodily disorders in these particulars?

2. If so, what may be some of the obvious reasons?

3. Country people have told me that the ground corn meal sometimes sold in packages today is more refined in the process and is not as coarse as it was in former days, when it was sold in bulk. Is this one of the contributing causes?

REPLY.

1 and 2. Change in environment is one cause; in customs and habits, another. Fifty years ago much of the water and food was infected with bacteria capable of causing diarrhea. They were not overly clean and much of it was eaten raw. Now foods are cleaner and fresher, polluted water is avoided or sterilized, milk is pasteurized, cooking is better done. For these several reasons, diarrhea and dysenteries have almost disappeared. The increase in constipation has been due principally to change in customs and habits; changes in foods have contributed.

3. The old style meal was more coarsely ground and contained more bran and germ. The product, as it is now marketed, is deficient in these, and, being so, contributes to the constipation problem.

TRAINING BEST REMEDY.

M. F. S. writes: What can be done with a boy almost 12 years old who is a chronic bed wetter? Is it the result of disease or is it merely a matter of discipline?

REPLY.

Training is the best remedy.

A few cases need medical treatment.

PAIN IN THE EYEBALL.

H. E. S. writes: What are the symptoms of glaucoma?

REPLY.

Among the most frequent symptoms is pain in the eyeball. A sense of fullness is present. A peculiar limitation of the field of vision is characteristic. Diminishing vision is another symptom. Careful examination shows increased tension of the eyeball.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—[Friend of the People.]—Kindly place my name on the lists for notification for examinations on the following: 1, stenographer; 2, typist; 3, junior clerk. When are examinations scheduled? R. E. S.

I cannot say at this time when examinations will be held. We have placed the name of the writer on our mailing list for notification of the next examinations called for positions of typist, junior stenographer and junior clerk.

JAMES S. OSBORNE, Secretary,
Civil Service Commission.

OBSTRUCTING SEWERS.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Are people allowed to shove dried leaves and rubbish into sewers along the curbstone? If people are not allowed [2] why don't they enforce the law by fining them? Y. X. X.

1. Section 2704 of the city code provides: "No person shall stop or obstruct the passage of water in any street, gutter or public sewer, culvert, water pipe or hydrant under a penalty of not less than five dollars nor more than fifty dollars for each offense."

2. This is the function of the police and the courts.

CONTRACT MAY AUTHORIZE.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My cook's sister and husband had paid $1,000 on furniture when the husband died and the sister gave birth to a child. Two days after returning from the hospital the furniture company carted away all the furniture, not even leaving a mattress for the baby or the stove to heat the flat. My cook signed that she would pay $30 a month on the balance due. She has been unable to meet this obligation and I now have letters from the company threatening her position and wanting to garnishee her wages. 1. Isn't the sister entitled to some furniture, as she has paid more than half of it? 2. Can't my cook be released from her obligation, inasmuch as the firm has repossessed the furniture? N. O.

1. It seems probable that the contract was so worded as to authorize the furniture company to repossess the entire lot and sell for the buyer's account. The mere fact that the buyer has paid in half would not necessarily mean that it would bring enough on a foreclosure sale to pay up the balance of the contract.

2. On the bare facts that you state no legal consideration appears for the cook's signature.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 10, 1915.

ROME.—The Italian liner Ancona has been sunk in the Mediterranean by a large submarine flying the Austrian colors. It is believed that more than 200 of the passengers and crew perished. Two hundred and ten survivors, some of them wounded, have been landed at Bizerta, on the coast of Tunis. It is believed the Ancona carried some American passengers, though this cannot be said with certainty. The vessel was steaming west in the Mediterranean south of the island of Sardinia when attacked by the submarine.

TOKIO.—For the first time in history the people of Japan and the representatives of the people of foreign lands were present today at the coronation of a mikado when Yoshihito, son of Mutsuhito, acceded to the throne of Nippon. The drawing of the veil of seclusion and the admission of foreigners and of the people of Japan to the holy service of accession was the visual evidence of Japan's transition from the early years when the emperor stood apart in severe separation from the world.

LONDON.—Newspapers of Berlin, as quoted in dispatches from Copenhagen, say the allies already have landed 300,000 men at Saloniki. These are being sent north rapidly. Capture by the Germans of the main Serbian positions south of Kraljevo is announced by Berlin.

LONDON.—"The reorganization and extensive changes which are being introduced in the Russian army," says the Morning Post's Petrograd correspondent, "plainly indicate that the Russians contemplate a long struggle. They are making preparations for a war lasting five years more."

CHICAGO.—Evanston women are going back to the bicycle. In the last few weeks a number of prominent women have taken to the pedals and are seen daily on the streets. Among those who are "biking" these days are members of the families of R. F. De Golier, A. H. Gross, Mrs. C. F. Dwight, John C. Spry, and Miss Helen May Glenn, Mrs. John G. Slade, and Mrs. Rollin W. Keyes.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 10, 1901.

CHICAGO.—Chicago will have the underground trolleys on street car lines—in the business district at least. This is the ultimatum which a majority of the local transportation committee of the city council has determined on as one of the chief conditions of the extension of street railway franchises.

CHICAGO.—Father J. J. Crowley, the excommunicated Roman Catholic priest, whose presence at high mass at the cathedral resulted in a discontinuation of the services last Sunday, announced last night that he would visit the cathedral again today [Sunday]. It is expected that some action will be taken to prevent him from attending the service.

CHICAGO.—The Horse show came to a successful ending last night. Every one of the twelve performances was well attended, the weather during the week was perfect, the quality of the horses shown has never been equaled, and the financial result of the venture is said to be gratifying to the stockholders of the Chicago Horse Show association, which pays the bills and takes the profits. The last performance in the arena was an exhibition of Heatherbloom over the high hurdles.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Armed guards, aided at many points by farmers, captured three more mutinous convicts and kept up an unceasing search in the woods and on the highways in the country between Leavenworth, Kansas City, and the Kansas river for the remaining fugitives from the federal prison at Fort Leavenworth. Twelve have been captured thus far, leaving fourteen still at large.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 10, 1881.

MEXICO CITY.—Ex-President Diaz was married Tuesday night to Miss Romero Rubizo. The ceremony was performed according to civil law. The witnesses for the groom were President Gonzales and Gen. Pacheco, and for the bride Ramon G. Guzman and Manuel Sanvedra.

NEW YORK.—At 1 o'clock this morning there was a pretty general impression that the state had been captured by the Democrats.

NEW YORK.—Early this morning the tenement on the corner of South Fifth avenue and Grand street fell in, burying the occupants in the ruins. How many were in the building is not known.

LONDON.—Yesterday was what is known as Lord Mayor's day in London and was observed as a business holiday. A novel feature of the mayoral procession was the appearance of the American flag, preceded by the fife and drum band of the 4th battalion of London militia, playing the "Star Spangled Banner," and followed at a short interval by a marine band playing "Yankee Doodle." There was a demonstration in front of the American exchange on the Strand and other places.

EDUCATION FOR SALESMANSHIP.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—An arrangement recently made at the Tilden Technical High school should prove of interest to all who are concerned with the progress of rugged individualism and of the hire education in the Chicago area. The purpose of this arrangement is to raise money for the lunch and carfare fund maintained for indigent students. Money cannot, of course, be raised from tax receipts, since this would constitute a dole and would sap the vitality and dull the initiative of the recipients. The board of education, moreover, is bankrupt, and the teachers, who in the past have contributed to the fund, cannot well be expected to do so now, when they have received only one month's pay since last April.

The solution arrived at by the worthy board members and by the enlightened administration of Tilden High school is extremely ingenious and in accordance with the best American traditions. The problem has been turned over to the sales department of a private corporation interested in selling subscriptions to four popular magazines, which have a large circulation and are leading advertising mediums. The gentlemen sponsoring the project magnanimously proposed that the entire student body be converted into an unpaid sales force to sell subscriptions to the local citizenry. In return, the company would turn over 50 per cent of the receipts to the lunch fund and pocket the remainder. This kind offer was at once accepted and all the students are now called upon to devote their spare time to selling subscriptions, with prizes for the best salesmen. Mass-meetings are called during school hours at which the assembled adolescents learn the principles of high pressure salesmanship from spellbinders employed by the company. Teachers are urged by the principal, at special teachers' meetings, to stimulate their pupils to make bigger and better sales. Competition between classes is encouraged and the entire school is divided into rival sales teams.

The advantages of this scheme are obvious. The company secures a large and enthusiastic unsalaried sales force to sell its goods. The faculty and students of a public high school become the salesmen of a private corporation. The lunch and carfare fund is replenished, and the company reaps a handsome profit at no cost to itself. The pupils, moreover, are relieved of a large part of the burden of the ordinary curriculum and receive the best possible training for citizenship in a society of salesmen, advertisers, and bagmen. It is to be hoped that this arrangement will be extended to other high schools and that encouragement will be given to manufacturers of other commodities to avail themselves of this opportunity to do the public schools good. A TAXPAYER.

DEFECTIVE AUTOMOBILES.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—The arguments in your editorial, "Defective Automobiles," seems to me to be superfluous. If I am involved in an accident which I could not have avoided with the best manipulation of a mechanically perfect car, then any defect in the mechanism of my car could have no bearing on the case.

If, on the other hand, I could have avoided the accident by correct manipulation of a mechanically perfect car, then it matters not whether the accident occurred through negligence in driving or through negligence in maintaining my car in good mechanical condition, since either kind of negligence renders me equally culpable.

Of little use then is post-accident examination of a car, except, perhaps, for statistical purposes, which latter are unnecessary if the 25 per cent figure quoted in your editorial is substantially correct.

Would it not be much more to the point to work on the other causes of avoidable accidents, such as laws which have substituted drunkenness for drinking in this nation of ours? LOGIC.

OPTIONAL TAXES.

Delta, Colo., Nov. 1.—When did the payment of taxes in Cook county become optional with the taxpayer? A good while ago I was a resident of Chicago [illegible] for a period of five years, and in all of these years there arrived at a certain time a statement from the county treasurer's office which informed me of the amount of my taxes, the date on which they would become delinquent, and what would happen if they were not paid before that date. And it would have happened. I paid my taxes or I lost my property. I had no option to choose any other alternative.

Why, I ask, do things not happen that way now? And when did it become customary for tax collectors to beg recalcitrant taxpayers to pay a little of their taxes—what they can afford or what they think is right?

I know that taxes in Chicago are outrageously high—as they are everywhere else—but the remedy for that situation, one would think, would be to elect honest men to county and city offices, stop extravagance, and reduce levies rather than to refuse payment after the extravagance has been indulged and the city's borrowings have been spent. How much do you think a bond—any bond—of the city of Chicago is worth now since it has become generally known that tax paying in Chicago has ceased to be compulsory, and has become as voluntary as a tip to a Pullman porter or a subscription to the Armenian missionary fund? A. C. MCCLINTOCK.

SERVANTS OF THE LAW.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Catalina's conspiracy to seize Rome had been exposed, its associates were being tried, for treason. Brutus [not of Shakespearean fame] sat in judgment upon them. His two sons were brought before him. The son of Roman, who loved his country more than himself, loved it better than his sons. He sentenced them to death. An official had done his duty; the republic was saved.

The people of Illinois have pointed Against the prohibition law. The Tribune has thundered against it. That is The Tribune's right; perhaps more, its duty. But in an editorial, "The Volstead Act Touches Bottom," of Nov. 5, 1931, it speaks of the assistant United States district attorney as "brutal" and condemns the court for sentencing a man who had violated a federal law. Some did his duty; the world is grateful for his example. Judge Barnes and Prosecutor Wiles do their duty. The Tribune assails them. Surely The Tribune must realize its error.

In a civilized world each of us give up some of his rights that all of us may enjoy greater liberty. The court that sent Lidlikewicz to sixty days in jail sentenced Capone to eleven years in the penitentiary. The Municipal courts that let speed violators escape blinded their eyes at the gang murders. Should the federal courts allow themselves to be influenced by the arguments of the press, would they not open themselves to the more sinister and deadly influences of corruption and politics?

Strike if you must at prohibition, but for your own good name, and your country's safety, respect those honorable men who see their duty and do it.

MAURICE R. EASTON.

A BRAVE FIREMAN.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—I am writing in the hope that the brave fireman who attended a fire at Logan boulevard and Rockwell street last night will see this.

He evidently was more concerned in looking for a fire in a bureau drawer while his companions were actually in the midst of the smoke and flame, fighting the fire on the floor below. I only hope that it gives him the intense personal satisfaction when he crowds the gas that he took with the purse in the bureau drawer; that he is proud of the fact that he is spending the last bill of a widow who has been out of work for six months. HIRAM JOHNSON WILL SOUND OUT ILLINOIS ON 1932

Seen by G. O. P. as Possible Rival for Hoover.

BY PARKE BROWN.

An entirely new phase was put on the Illinois Republican situation yesterday by a quiet, private message that Hiram W. Johnson, United States senator from California, is coming to Chicago to ask what his prospects here would be if he were to become a presidential candidate.

Until receipt of the word, party leaders throughout the state had reached an almost definite conclusion that there was no likelihood of any substantial boom against President Hoover in the preference primary and the election of delegates next April. They had canvassed the field with the possible exception of Frank O. Lowden, former governor, and had been unable to find any one they thought measured up to the call of the hour.

Well Received in Illinois.

Senator Johnson has been well received in Illinois in the past, first as the vice presidential nominee on the Roosevelt ticket in 1912, and later as a presidential candidate in 1920 and 1924.

But a more impressive factor in the minds of those who conferred about the more or less secret message was the argument that Senator Johnson has opposed all of the Hoover policies that have proved almost universally unpopular in this state and this section of the country.

Both city and state leaders—without exception so far as is known—admit that this unpopularity would be a severe handicap to the party in the state next year, and they admit that their biggest hope has been for the appearance of a national standard bearer who would have none of the Hoover burden to carry and would be well known to the voters on a record centering upon opposition to the world court.

Illinois G. O. P. Hopeful.

At first glimpse the Illinois Republicans who knew of the late development said they were inclined to think perhaps Senator Johnson was the answer to their prayers. They said, however, they would give it serious thought for a second time.

A particular angle upon which they will deliberate is the effect upon the state ticket if Senator Johnson comes into Illinois as a presidential entrant. Privately the state leaders have admitted for months that there is a reluctance here to run on a ticket headed by President Hoover's name. They have felt that the anti-administration sentiment would show itself even in the primary and probably would be overwhelming in the election.

BISHOP IS IN FAVOR OF CHURCH STUDYING POLITICAL ISSUES

Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago yesterday told the Evanston League of Women Voters that the church should enter politics via discussions of political science. He spoke before the league at the Orrington hotel. However, the bishop denied the right of pastors to denounce or support particular candidates from the pulpit. Such denunciations, he declared, is cowardly.

The Chicago bishop condemned church lobbies and stated his opposition to churches running governments. This, he said, has been tried and the result has always been to secularize the church that tries it. On the other hand, he pointed to the domination of the church by the state.

"The state never can control my conscience," said Bishop Steward as he pointed to the recent Supreme court ruling in the Macintosh naturalization case. "The Supreme court decision declared that conscience should be controlled by the state. I deny the state that right."

CENTRAL WEST'S DREAM, NORRIS SAYS, IS RADICAL

Thinks It Will Refuse to Support Hoover.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York could easily defeat President Hoover in Nebraska and other western states, it was predicted today by Senator George W. Norris, the Nebraska Republican insurgent who bolted his party to support ex-Gov. Alfred E. Smith in 1928.

"In most of the western states," added Senator Norris, "any progressively minded man could beat Mr. Hoover."

Although he has been mentioned as a possible candidate on a "progressive" ticket next year, Senator Norris said he had no intention of running.

Silent on Navy Dispute.

In suggestions of a nonpartisan coalition to consider needed relief legislation Senator Norris took little stock. He announced that he would oppose the results of the Hoover-Laval conferences if they involved international arrangements, as he now thinks probable.

Senator Norris said he had in mind a legislative program which he will submit to a "progressive" conference next month before congress convenes. Paramount in it is a proposal for a three billion dollar bond issue to build roads and thus aid unemployment.

No Cooperation: Harrison.

A meeting of the Democratic leaders in congress to map out a legislative program for the coming session will be held next week. In announcing this Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.] asserted that there will be no cooperation with the administration on general legislative matters.

The plan of the Democratic leaders, he said, would be to agree on tariff, taxation, and farm relief measures and avoid coalition with other groups. Matters of nonpartisan nature such as the debt moratorium and credit and financial legislation that were the subjects of the recent White House conferences will receive Democratic approval, Senator Harrison said.

"The Democrats do not intend to avoid responsibility," he said. "In the house a complete legislative program will be worked out with the approval of the party leaders."

Haste Makes $1,500 Loss for This Gang of Bandits

Three bandits invaded the offices of the Martin Dawson Confectionery company at 1520 South State street yesterday. They herded eight employés in a corner and demanded the pay roll. William Hackett, 133 West 74th street, the cashier, said: "It has not come yet." The bandits appeared undecided for a moment and then fled in their automobile. A messenger, bearing the $1,500 pay roll, entered the offices as the bandit car sped around a corner.

VETERINARIAN DIES SUDDENLY.

Dr. Thomas A. Newell, 65 years old, 3011 Sunnyside avenue, a veterinarian with the state department of animal husbandry in the stockyards, dropped dead of heart disease yesterday after running up the stairway to the elevated railway platform at East 63th street and Indiana avenue.

NEBRASKA BALKS AT WINKLER DEAL IN BANK THEFT

Chicago police and the Secret Six, it was stated yesterday, are about ready to cease working with Nebraska authorities with whom they have been dealing in the attempt to bring about the return of $400,000 in securities stolen in September, 1930, from the Lincoln National Bank and Trust company of Lincoln. It is said that the securities are held by a Capone hoodlum, Gus Winkler.

Winkler has offered to return the bonds and to furnish proof that more than $2,000,000 in nonnegotiable securities, also stolen from the bank, have been destroyed, in exchange for assurance that he will not be tried for the robbery. He has been indicted, but claims an alibi.

Yesterday Alexander G. Jamie, chief investigator for the Secret Six, and Sergt. Roy Steffens, assigned to his office, revealed that the offer to return the $400,000 securities was made three weeks ago, but County Attorney Max Towle of Lincoln has not yet made a decision as to whether he will accept it.

The bargain has been approved by Roscoe Saunders of the Illinois Bankers' association and by Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce and head of the Secret Six.

Winkler is a pal of Fred Burke, bank robber, who is serving life sentence for murder in Michigan. Last summer Winkler was captured in St. Joseph, Mich.

Towle returned to Nebraska and conferred with Attorney General C. A. Sorenson and with Gov. Charles W. Bryan. It is understood these officials do not favor dealing with Winkler.

Belgian Prince Back Home from Tour of America

BRUSSELS, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Prince Charles, second son of King Albert and Queen Elisabeth, returned yesterday from America after a seven months' absence. Traveling incognito, he arrived in New York last April and began a tour which took him over most of the United States. He studied mechanical methods in a number of factories and generally acquainted himself with the people.

FOOD REAL TREAT FOR CHILDREN IN STEEL MILL AREA

Go to School Hungry Day After Day.

Cash contributions to the Hungry School Children's Fund will be received at the following Tribune offices: 1 South Dearborn street, 1101 East 63d street, and 4152 West Madison street.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Bleak and ugly, stretching away to a horizon dimmed by a sooty haze, the South Chicago steel mill district is less than ever a juvenile paradise in these present days. Necessity, not choice, dictates the location of thousands of homes within its borders, and now that hard times have come knocking at the doors of flat and bungalow, life has become almost an endurance test down there.

Little Lupe, 6 years old, with soft brown eyes and tumbled dark bobbed hair, is storing away memories for the future no child of her intelligence and sweetness should be compelled to look back upon when she is grown. Lupe's home is a coal shed; her meals are on a hop, skip and jump schedule, and her pathetic wardrobe is all on her back whenever she starts for school.

Four Others to Feed.

Lupe's father has four dependents as well as himself to feed. When he had a job in the coke ovens things were not so bad. The little girl and her brother and baby sister had regular, nourishing food, her clothing was adequate, and her progress in school was gratifying both to her parents and her teacher. It has been many a day, though, since that happy state of affairs.

Day after day she comes to her classes faint from hunger, quiet and meek, languid about her recitations and interested only in the noontime bell. Usually then Miss S—, the teacher who knows her plight, slips a few pennies into the youngster's hand, and Lupe, alert once more, makes a beeline for the lunchroom.

Malnutrition Makes Mark.

Jonas and Carl, 6 and 7 years old respectively, are two grinning, thin little fellows from one of the large families in the district, schoolmates of Lupe. Malnutrition has set its mark on their painfully gaunt faces, the blue veins standing out beneath the pallor, yet they are active and bright. Neither had had a meal for two days last week when one of the teachers found out about it and marched them to the lunchroom. Then she brought them to the principal's office.

"We had two sangwidges and two cups o' cawfee," announced Jonas, delightedly, as the story was told.

"And how do you feel now?" asked the principal.

Takes One to Mother.

"What's that you have in there?" she asked Carl. He beamed back.

"That there's one o' my sangwidges," he revealed. "I'm saving it to take home to my ma. She hasn't had anything to eat much lately."

Large industrial concerns of this area have done a great deal for the families left without support when their work was lost to them, school authorities of the district report. The situation, however, is far beyond their control, and extreme distress in numerous homes is vividly revealed either in the conduct or the appearance of children at school.

Applications for help for these institutions from the Hungry School Children's fund have been received and are being handled as speedily as possible. The situation in general is conceded to be as bad if not worse than anything on record in any part of Chicago.

Contributions to help out the fund and to help provide these boys and girls with the necessities of life may be sent to THE TRIBUNE, directed to the cashier at Tribune Tower. A coupon to accompany the gift appears in an adjoining column.

10 Seconds to comb

COMB your hair and brush it—ten seconds more for this and your Vitalis workout is done! Notice how lustrous your hair has become, how full of life it is, how much better-looking you are!

50 Seconds to rub...

RUB—50 SECONDS. Give your scalp a workout twice a week! Vitalis and massage will stimulate the circulation—renew the nourishing oils—bring health to tight, dry scalps and good looks to lifeless hair!

Time up!

TIME UP! Your scalp is a-tingle with health. Your hair looks fine! You're ready to step out. You know your hair won't spoil your looks. It's well-groomed, rich-looking, handsome as never before!

Keep your scalp healthy and active—with Vitalis and massage

But don't think that combing and brushing and plastering down is all the care it needs. The good looks of your hair depends on the health of your scalp!

Your scalp needs a 60-second workout! Once every three or four days. To loosen it . . . nourish it . . . bring it back to life. It needs Vitalis and massage to work up the circulation and provide the nourishing oils that keep hair alive and good-looking!

Don't begrudge that two minutes a week—that's all it takes—not one-tenth of the time you spend shaving . . . and you've got a live, naturally lustrous head of hair to show for it! No more worry about the threat of loose dandruff and falling hair. No more tight, dry scalp. No more dull and unkempt hair. And no more "patent-leather" look, either!

Let your barber start you off with your first 60-second Vitalis workout today. Vitalis is a pure vegetable oil preparation. Get a bottle from your druggist and keep on with Vitalis and massage at home—twice a week. Then your hair will be healthy, rich, good-looking—always well-groomed.

Ask your Barber . . .

Your barber gets a close-up of your hair every time you go to him. He sees what it looks like—and he knows what it needs. When he suggests Vitalis, listen to him! He's giving you sane, sound advice—and you'd better take it!

KEEPS HAIR HEALTHY AND HANDSOME

Stain-removal is easy . . . WITH CLOROX

WHEN Clorox is used in soaking suds or first rinse, ordinary stains disappear from white cottons and linens in the laundering. Of course, stubborn stains—ink, iodine, mercurochrome, dye, fruit, berry, tea, coffee, chocolate, flower, grass and blood—require a slightly stronger solution. Even scorched spots and mildew can be easily removed with Clorox. It is important to follow directions and to remember that the Clorox magic is for white cotton and linen fabrics only.

As a stain-remover Clorox is as valuable in the kitchen and bathroom as it is in the laundry. Wooden drainboards and shelves, porcelain sinks, basins, bathtubs and toilet bowls, linoleum and tile are all made stain-free with Clorox.

Nor is that all. For Clorox not only removes stains—it also bleaches, destroys odors and kills germs whenever and wherever it is used. It is this priceless double-action—cleansing plus disinfecting—that makes Clorox unique and indispensable, so that housewives from coast to coast say they "couldn't keep house without it." Try a bottle. You, too, will count it among outstanding aids to easier, more efficient housekeeping.

TOO MUCH SMOKE; JANITORS OF SIX SCHOOLS CALLED

11 Others Summoned to Explain Violations.

The janitors of six school buildings were summoned yesterday by Frank A. Chambers, chief city smoke inspector, to explain violations of the city's smoke abatement ordinance. Eleven other persons and business concerns also were summoned to appear at Chambers' office today.

Chambers says public buildings should set an example in smokeless firing for private concerns to follow. He may ask the board of education to take disciplinary action against the janitors if schools stacks continue to smoke.

Appeals to U. S. Treasury.

In carrying out his policy of abating first the smoke violations from public buildings Chambers wrote to Perry K. Heath, assistant secretary of the treasury, in Washington, D. C., complaining of the federal building stack. He received a notice that the custodian of the federal building has been instructed to give special attention to the firing of boilers hereafter.

The schools where the smoke inspectors noticed violations were the Hibbard, Calhoun, Longfellow, Parkside, Avalon, and the Cyrus H. McCormick. The others served with summonses were:

Walter La Buy, 420 Aldine avenue.
D. Quasemag, 805 North California avenue.
Arthur J. Ross, 1643 East 67th street.
Phoenix-Hermetic company, 2444 West 10th street.
Mutual Malt Products company, 2150 South Spaulding avenue.
George J. Kalegiannis, 3947 Lawrence avenue.
Transo Envelope company, 3520 North Kimball avenue.
Lawndale Scrap Iron company, 2840 South Kedzie avenue.
M. Dotz, 4504 North Kedzie avenue.
John Chitra, 1924 South Western avenue.

Twenty-seven violators appeared before Chambers yesterday and warned that suit would be started against them in Municipal court if a second violation was permitted.

Smoke Detector Used.

Officials of the International Harvester company reported to Chambers that for a year they have been using an apparatus that immediately detects the presence of smoke and notifies the boiler fireman so the condition can be remedied. The apparatus, which costs less than $100, consists of an ordinary light bulb and a reflector installed on one side of the stack which focuses light on a photo electric cell.

Any changes in the light caused by smoke causes a variation in the current from the cell and operates a buzzer. The electric eye, the officials said, has been successful in letting the fireman know whenever smoke is being made.

FAST MACHINES TO AID BUSINESS PUT ON DISPLAY

National Show Is On; Speed Is Theme.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Ways of increasing efficiency in offices were displayed yesterday at the opening of the National Business show in the exhibition hall of the Stevens hotel. The show will continue through Saturday.

Office equipment valued at more than a million dollars is on display. A machine signs checks at the rate of 2,500 an hour. Another cancels checks at 1,000 a minute. An electrically run device cuts 500 envelopes a minute. A new device which can be applied to any typewriter makes from three to five carbons by means of additional ribbons, without any carbon paper.

A new machine both writes and signs checks, adding and subtracting, dating, numbering checks and recording amounts. The machine is proof against altering accounts, as it is impossible to clear out totals without unlocking the machine. Each time it is unlocked the fact is recorded.

A giant machine makes up the payroll, analyzes it, makes up budget reports, takes inventories and compiles sales statistics and labor costs. It is wired like a telephone switchboard and is automatically controlled. A telephone device which amplifies sound for hard of hearing persons and a teletyper which automatically reprints forms as typed in another office, being connected to that office by telephone wire, also are being shown.

A new listing equipment enables the office girl to have 14,000 names at her disposal, with information she desires on each, which she can secure at the rate of nine seconds a name.

A machine for metered mail seals and stamps 2,000 letters an hour. It eliminates facing, cancelling and postmarking in the postoffice. The amount of postage used and the balance on hand are recorded by the machine.

A new typewriting-bookkeeping machine with a keyboard dater was watched with interest by hundreds of high school students and business and commercial college students yesterday.

DANNY STANTON PLACED ON TRIAL FOR GUN TOTING

The trial of Danny Stanton, Capone hoodlum, on a charge of toting a gun, will be completed today before Judge Phillip L. Sullivan. The defense waived a jury. Assistant State's Attorney Charles Bellows is the prosecutor. James McDermott, attorney for Stanton, asserted that there is no case against his client because of a recent decision of the Supreme court in another case against Stanton ruling out ballistic evidence, by which the state hoped to send Stanton to Wisconsin for the assassination of Jack Zuta, vice monger. Stanton was arrested in September of 1930, riding in a car driven by his bodyguard, Edgar Smith, since murdered. In the pocket of the car next to Stanton was a loaded revolver.

James P. Thomas, 56 years old, shot and probably fatally wounded himself last night in his room in the Washington hotel, 92d street and Commercial avenue. He was found unconscious with a bullet wound in his head by James and Nicholas Stamos, the owners, when they entered his room after hearing the shot. At the South Chicago hospital it was said Thomas probably would die. He left a note addressed to his brother, Grant Thomas, of Ensley, Ala., stating: "The battle isn't worth it," and leaving instructions as to his burial.

BURY JIM GENNA OF ALKY GANG FAME TOMORROW

The body of Jim Genna, one of the last of the Genna gangster brothers, was lying in an ornate casket last night in an undertaking parlor at 1139 West Grand Avenue. The funeral will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow from Our Lady of Pompeii church at Sibley street and Oregon avenue.

Three of Jim's brothers died violent deaths, but Jim died from a natural cause. He had a malignant disease, which, one policeman said, was caused by drinking his own alcohol. Death came Sunday after an operation failed to help him.

Angelo and Tony Genna were killed in gang assassinations, while Mike was killed by a police bullet. Jim, Peter, and Sam fled out of the country six years ago to escape gang vengeance, but Jim and Sam returned. The funeral arrangements are in charge of Sam, who lives at 1021 South Ashland avenue.

THEATER OWNER ROBBED.

Harry Tarus, owner of the Calo theater, was robbed of $700 and a $1,000 diamond ring by two gunmen near his home at 1141 Independence boulevard early yesterday.

IL DUCE FORMS CREDIT INSTITUTE TO AID INDUSTRY

State Will Issue Loans Up to $259,500,000.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Nov. 9.—Another decisive step to consolidate Italian industrial life and create a system of state controlled economics was taken by the council of ministers today.

On Premier Mussolini's proposal the council decreed the organization of a new state governed and state subscribed credit institution with a capital of 500,000,000 lire [$25,950,000] authorized to issue bonds up to 5,000,000,000 lire [$259,500,000] to extend credits of not more than ten years' duration to Italian industries and agriculture. It will be called the Italian Credit institute.

To Be Run by Board of 15.

The institute will be administered by a board of fifteen directors, five appointed by the government and ten chosen by enterprises which subscribe the capital. Senator Teodoro Mayer, president of the senate finance commission and proprietor of the newspaper Piccolo di Trieste, was named president of the institute today by Antonio Mosconi, minister of finance. Mosconi will also name the vice president and two other members. Giuseppe Bottai, minister of corporations, will appoint one member.

The whole board of directors may be ousted by the council of ministers in case of "grave nonobservance of laws or grave irregularity of management."

Out of the capital of $25,950,000, half will be contributed by the government savings and loan bank, Cassa Depositi, and the other half by the Society for the Subventioning of Industry, in which the Bank of Italy and various other local semi-governmental savings and loan banks participate.

Takes Stocks as Security.

The credit institute will issue bonds against stocks pledged to it by enterprises granted loans. These bond issues may not exceed ten times the capital stock.

Twenty per cent of the profits goes to the reserve account, and a 5 per cent dividend on the capital stock forms the next obligation. Out of any remaining balance, 75 per cent goes to the reserve and 25 per cent may be used for extra dividends. The state guarantees the 5 per cent dividend on the capital stock. It is stipulated that the ministers of finance and corporations shall keep strict vigilance over the institute.

INQUEST UNCOVERS NO SLAYING MOTIVE IN GIRL'S POISONING

Ottawa, Ill., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—A coroner's jury today was unable to make any progress toward a solution of the mysterious death of Marian Walker, 14, Seneca school girl. A verdict showing that the girl died of arsenic poison administered by unknown persons at a time unknown to the jurors was returned.

DR. W. D. McNALLY. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Sheriff E. J. Welter will continue his investigation in an effort to locate the source of the poison which killed Marian Walker and made her older sisters, Caroline and Marjorie, ill.

Dr. W. D. McNally, former Cook county coroner's physician, testified that he found one-tenth of a grain of arsenic and traces of alcohol in his anaylsis of the contents of Marian's stomach. Dr. J. W. Landgraf, Dr. W. D. Coulter, and Dr. J. H. Edgcomb, who attended Marian all testified that they learned with surprise that arsenic was found in Marian's stomach, as the illness appeared to have been ptomaine.

Mrs. Mabel Walker, the dead girl's mother, wept as she testified. She told of her daughters being stricken, and of having called a physician to attend them.

SOUTH BEND MAN SLAYS WIFE AND ENDS OWN LIFE

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—Louis Harris, 42, an automobile salesman, shot and killed his wife, Marion, 35, in their apartment here late today, and then fired a bullet into his own head. He died several hours later.

The double shooting was discovered by Harry Harris, 11 year old son of Mrs. Harris by her first marriage. He walked into the house and found his mother dead. Terrified, the boy rushed outside, and summoned neighbors. They came upon the body of Mrs. Harris in the bathroom, and a few moments later, discovered Harris unconscious in bed.

Apparently Harris had shot his wife as she stood in the bathroom, and had then walked into the bedroom. There he stood before a dresser mirror, looked at his reflection as he placed his revolver to his head, and fired.

GERMANY ASKS FAIR PLAY IN DISARM 'GAME'

Demands Same Security Other Nations Have.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 9.—On the eve of the thirteenth anniversary of Armistice day disarmament is holding the spotlight in Germany.

GEN. WM. GROENER [A. P. Photo.]

Gen. Wilhelm Groener, chief of the reichswehr, today outlined Germany's stand on disarmament. He was one of Germany's most brilliant generals during the world war and President Paul von Hindenburg hopes that he will accept the nomination to run as his successor in the presidential elections next spring. He is minister of war and minister of the interior and therefore speaks not only as a soldier but as a high official of the republic.

Asks for Fair Play.

"Germany has the right to the same treatment as all other nations," Gen. Groener began. "She is entitled to the same security and to the same methods of disarmament as other nations. It was expressly guaranteed in 1919 that the other powers would follow the path Germany took when she was disarmed. Our nation belongs to the league of nations and under article 3 of the league covenant all members are assured national security. It must, therefore, be Germany's aim to reach national security again through the adoption of the same method of disarmament as by other nations. That is to say, no other state should be permitted to have weapons and reserve forces which are forbidden to Germany.

"When we disarmed we were forbidden to possess heavy artillery, tanks, war planes, submarines, and warships over 10,000 tons. Even anti-aircraft artillery was prohibited. Military conscription was forbidden, and Germany was instructed, even to the slightest detail, on how to organize her army.

"The result is that Germany is utterly disarmed. Measures have been taken to guarantee an effective disarmament. Would it not be flying in the very face of all logic, and would it not be a violation of the solemn obligation to disarm entered into by all other nations, if the forthcoming disarmament conference would now seek to apply other methods than those tried out on Germany?

"Therefore we object to the drafts of the disarmament agreement as worked out by the preparatory disarmament commission at Geneva. It is a violation of the principle of the equality of nations if it tries to make eternal the difference between the victors and the vanquished by freeing the victors of their obligations to disarm and making the vanquished bear the full brunt of the disarmament clauses in the Versailles treaty.

"Geneva's preparatory project disregards reserves, men, and materials, in which lies the strength of the most powerful armies in the world. It does not prohibit weapons denied to Germany. In short, the present project will not further disarmament, for which the world is longing. On the contrary, it will make disarmament impossible."

Caste System Called Curb to Unity of India

Patricia Kendall Tells of Britain's Difficulties.

BY CLIFTON M. UTLEY.

[Member, the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations.]

"Speed with Me to India," by Patricia Kendall. [Scribner's.]

PATRICIA KENDALL has produced a vigorous and lucid handbook of contemporary India which will earn for her both high praise and bitter denunciation.

The praise will come first from the Anglophiles, who will thank the American author for her deep understanding of the difficult problems confronting the British Indian administration.

PATRICIA KENDALL

In addition to this admittedly partisan audience the volume is certain to receive a sympathetic reception from the thousands who have come to acquire a student's understanding of the Indian question, but are bored at reading the necessary dry and somewhat tedious jottings and figures. This group cannot fail to be appealed to by the technical skill with has enabled Miss Kendall to weave a fabric of necessary political, and geographic and historical information without interrupting the sequence and continuity of the narrative.

Miss Kendall wants you to take seriously the title, "Come with Me to India." On the first page she starts you on escorted journey, you enter India at Bombay, are taken to Northwest Frontier provinces, and subsequently throughout most of the countryside of the subcontinent, seeing Indian provinces and native states, country life and the big cities. This is browse, not merely a Cook's tour. Whatever the thorough understanding of any section of the country requires historical background, Miss Kendall gives her narrative and supplies it. She does likewise when important economic, social and political information is required.

In discussing such questions, she is not ready to give her personal conclusions. Therefore the work is assured an ample supply of enemies.

Foremost among these latter will be the Indian nationalists themselves and their sympathizers in the United States and elsewhere. They will complain that she has been taken in by the British imperialists, and denounce her for having missed the deep spirituality of the Hindu religion.

Quite to her is not only an evidence of social backwardness, but a definite bar to that degree of unity which the people of a given territory must attain before they can maintain a stable independent or even autonomous government. Child marriage she regards not principally as a moral wrong, but as a factor making for abnormal physiques and unfit people.

In fact she declares: "Hinduism today contributes the main factors that render the Indian population physically unfit to sustain a stable government even if they could construct one."

Her reflections on Indian nationalism and Mr. Gandhi, both discussed with insight and discernment, are complimentary to neither. Anent the latter she remarks:

"As long as his legions were without the prospect of tangible reins, he was adequately ambidextrous to impel them concurrently to tear down law and hold up order. But to incite an army of a varying minority of 300,000,000 illiterates to a passion for revolution and to expect the flood of their fury to halt short the moment the bulwark of government is smashed is to recognize all the laws of physical and emotional momentum known to this universe. That his Indian campaigns have invariably led to bloodshed he has always regretted—but never remedied."

GASOLINE ALLEY—4-11

THE STAGE

"BLOSSOM TIME."

As operetta adapted from the German by Dorothy Donnelly; score founded upon the melodies of Franz Schubert by H. Berte and Sigmund Romberg; given at the Grand Opera house Nov. 9, 1931.

THE CAST.

Mrs. Kranz	Sallie Stembler
Novotny	Robert O'Conner

And others.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

THE current performances of "Blossom Time" at the Grand Opera house represent the sixth engagement of this charming operetta in Chicago in as many years. It has inherited a touch of immortality from Franz Schubert, its hero and the creator of its best melodies, and ever since 1925, when it was launched, it has run blithely on—a valuable "property" for its impresarios and a source of delightful refreshment for its audiences. Although of German origin, it seems to be gaining the status of an American folk opera.

In its present interpretation, "Blossom Time" cannot be called a "revival," for the history of the piece has been continuous. It has not faded away and retired to the storehouse, like its many competitors of the past six years. "Blossom Time" kept right on blooming as the theatrical seasons came and went. This is a remarkable record, to equal which you will have to hark back to the dawn of the Gilbert and Sullivan period.

But "Blossom Time's" long distance achievement should not be taken to imply that the production now on view is a travel-stained and timeworn affair. Quite the contrary. It wears a bright and shining face; its costumes are fresh and gay, its stage settings are not old campaigners. This show is offered as something new, not as an old war horse. Its principals may be called veterans, for some of them have passed the 2,000 mark in performances, but nevertheless they have not lost the air of youth.

J. Charles Gilbert is the best of the various impersonators of Franz Schubert for me. He suggests the familiar portraits of the young composer; he has the dignity of musical genius, and he handles the sentimentalities of the rôle without getting mushy. In other words, this Mr. Gilbert plays the rôle well. He also sings it with fine authority.

Kathryn Reece is adroit and winning in the rôle of Mitzi, Joseph Wilkins is excellent in voice and presence as the romantic Baron Schober, and all the others are sound representatives of the best "Blossom Time" traditions.

The engagement is for three weeks, and probably will be followed by Al Jolson in "The Wonder Bar."

Peter Arno's musical comedy, "Here Goes the Bride," was added to the list of Broadway failures last night. It closed suddenly, after giving only seven performances, and the gossips are saying that it represents a loss of $150,000 for the caricaturist who became an impresario. But Mr. Arno bears up bravely, for a certain "Jock" Whitney, of the millionaire family, is his backer. He nonchalantly proclaims an intention to try his luck in the theater again, with a revue.

"Bundy," the play announced for a premiere at the Cort theater Nov. 22, has been called off. The cast had been engaged, but Laura D. Wilck, its manager, changed her mind.

Five plays ended their Broadway careers last Saturday night. They were "Lean Harvest," "Ladies of Creation," "The Breadwinner," "The Venetian," and "The Constant Sinner."

Good Morning!

Women Shoppers, Attention!

The Rialto, home of burlesque, has been transformed into the Loop-End, vaudeville and first run picture house!

I just want to assure you that when you're shopping in the lower end of the loop and have an idle hour on your hands that the Loop-End is a perfectly nice clean place for you to slip into. I know how you felt about viewing a movie at the old Rialto, because I felt the same way. You were apt to find yourself the only woman there, surrounded by men and boys who looked at you askance. Well—NO MO'. There were loads of nice women at the now charmingly decorated and cozy Loop-End yesterday morning.

The vaudeville bill offers Mae Murray as star attraction. Then, as feature picture, it has "The Road to Reno," which is surprisingly good, considering the old material it has been cut from.

The story concerns a much married lady who, with her young daughter, goes to Reno to secure her fourth divorce. She's a gay, perennially young and butterfly-brained person who takes life lightly and laughingly until tragedy sweeps into it on the whirlwind of unhappiness she has caused her daughter and son. Then—well—see the picture.

Government Picture.
Presented at the Orpheum Theater.

To the Orpheum, Patriots, double quick time—and buy a ticket for "Gold Chevrons"!

This is a government full length picture composed of actual war shots photographed by the United States signal corps during the world war. It is comprehensive, gripping, pitiful, inspiring, tragic—and authentic! The camera follows our boys from their training as rookies, overseas on the transports, to the front line trenches, and on fields of battle.

You see the actual bombing of battle ships by submarines, the actual encounters on the riddled areas of combat. Big Berthas, air squadrons, tanks are discovered at their deadly business. You clench your hands and pray as you watch:

"O, God, DON'T ever let there be another war!"

See you tomorrow.

Official Contract

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight.")

Slam, slam, slam! This is the constant theme song of the various inquiries that come in to THE TRIBUNE bridge department. I suppose it is natural since every one is interested in the unusual rather than the common run of things.

And yesterday's play-a-problem was another one.

East was the dealer and opened with a bid of two no-trumps, holding a no-trump count of 19. Having three suits stopped, he needed a count of 19 in place of the usual 17 with four suits stopped.

South passed and West, holding 3½ high card tricks, made a jump shift game demand bid of four hearts. North passed. East bid five hearts. South passed and West bid six clubs.

This bid by West served the double purpose of showing the clubs and of denying a five-card heart suit. North again passed. East was now able to picture West's hand with a fair degree of accuracy. East knew that West held 3½ high card tricks. There was little room in either spades or diamonds for high card tricks in West's hand. Therefore, East pictured West with the ♣ A-K and the ♥ A-Q.

Of course, East realized that the half trick might be the ♠ Q-J in place of the ♥ Q. But this was unlikely since West had shown his heart suit to be biddable. East, therefore, felt pretty sure that if West did not hold the ♥ Q, he at least held the J with ½ trick in spades. With either of these combinations, the little slam in no-trump seemed assured. East, therefore, bid six no-trump.

As the hand was played, South opened the ♦ 10, dummy played the 8, North the 2 and East the J. East then led the ♥ 3, South played the J, dummy the A and North the 4.

East then ran his spade suit by leading the 4 from the dummy, overtaking it with the K in his own hand, returning the 3 from his own hand and overtaking with the Q in the dummy. Dummy then led the 9 which East took with the A. Having found a lucky break in the spades and so clearing them in these three leads, East now proceeded to cash his fourth spade, South, West and North discarding diamonds. East then led the ♣ 3, which he took with the K in dummy and then led the A from the dummy's hand. To the ninth trick dummy led the ♥ 4 which East took with the K in his own hand, returning the ♦ A.

There is nothing North or South can do to help themselves. Regardless of their discards they are squeezed and East will make his little slam and an extra trick.

East now leads the ♦ K, South plays the ♦ 9, dummy the ♣ 6 and North the ♣ Q. East then leads the ♣ J, South plays the ♣ 4, dummy the ♥ 9 and North the ♥ K. East now plays the ♥ 7, which is taken by dummy's Q and the game, slam, and extra trick are in.

Have you entered the Golden Card tournament? It is such a small amount to give to our school children and our unemployed. And you should have a really good time. Remember it will pay you to have your entries in before this week is over.

PLAY-A-PROBLEM: SOLITAIRE OR PARTNERS

Play this hand tonight at your bridge game. Keep a record of the bid and play in the spaces provided. Numbers in the bidding squares are for successive rounds. Check your results with tomorrow's answer.

To play "Solitaire": Record the bids you think each hand would make in the bidding squares. After the final declaration has been made start the play, leading from the hand at declarer's left. As you play each card cross it off of the diagram and record it in the proper square, as 5, 3, H, K, etc. In the column indicate the hand which won the round and lead from that hand on the next round.

Distinguished Audience Attends Recital.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Mary Garden did much in and for opera during her association with the Chicago company, but chances to hear her in concert came seldom. Now having laid aside the pomp and circumstance of opera, at least for the time being, she returned to Chicago and appeared in a recital at Orchestra hall last evening.

The event was given for the benefit of the Country Home for Convalescent Children, and the auditorium made a brilliant spectacle.

President Robert Maynard Hutchins of the University of Chicago, with which the home for children is affiliated, made a speech of acknowledgment and thanks to the stars and the audience on behalf of the board of managers.

It is always pleasant to learn that a benefit concert has prospered in its financial affairs. The intake of this one was estimated to represent about $20,000.

It also is pleasant to realize that patrons of such an event have contributed to hear an interesting program in addition to a worthy cause. Miss Garden has the instinct for concert quite as strongly developed as for opera.

Glittering and white of costume, she beamed upon the audience individually and collectively, waved to gallery and main floor, and at once established friendly relations with all. She sang in Italian, French, and English—first rate English, by the way, just as she has always done—and whether it was art song, aria, or dialect Scottish folk song, her auditors were her admirers.

Assisting her on the program was Barre Hill, Civic Opera baritone, whose brilliant voice was a delight.

Society at Concert

The audience included many box parties seated in the regular dress circle, in groups of seats on the main floor designated as boxes by bright colored coverings, and in a row of boxes on the stage, making a colorful background for the singers. Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers were Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Reynolds, and Col. Frank Knox. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Insull had with them Mrs. John W. Gary, Mrs. Secor Cunningham, and Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody. Others in the regular box circle were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bissell, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hamill, and Mr. and Mrs. William Prescott Hunt, who occupied Mrs. J. Ogden Armour's box; Mrs. Nevins Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Swift, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hibbard, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Swift.

Occupying a stage box were Mr. and Mrs. James Ward Thorne with Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick and Mr. and Mrs. Earle H. Reynolds as their guests. Mr. and Mrs. Stuart H. Otis, the Shreve Badgers, and Miss Genevieve Carpenter, just returned from the east, were in an adjacent box. Mrs. Sheldon Dick, Mrs. Huntington Henry, and Mrs. Henry Field were others whose decorative costumes showed to advantage on the stage.

Others in the audience included Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine and Miss Harriett Stuart, whose guests included Mr. and Mrs. Eames MacVeagh and Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis; Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Mrs. William C. Pullman, Prince and Princess Rostislav, Mr. and Mrs. William O. Goodman, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy A. Fuller, Mrs. Walter Borden, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Morton, Miss Peggy Hambleton, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel T. Chase, Arthur Meeker Jr., Mrs. Robert J. Dunham, Miss Cornelia Conger, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Barnes, Mr. Harry Lee Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose C. Cramer, Arthur Meeker Jr., Miss Eleanor Holden, Miss Janet Fairbank, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wolfe, Mrs. Warren C. Fairbanks, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Garfield King, Dr. and Mrs. Wilhelm Ludwig Baum, Mrs. John G. Shedd, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe, and the Patrick Valentine Jrs.

Dickens Fellowship Club.

The Dickens Fellowship will hold a dinner meeting this evening at 6:30 p. m. in St. Hubert's Grill. A. W. Edwards, secretary of the London branch of the Fellowship, will speak on "The London of Charles Dickens."

THE TRIBUNE, on Oct. 27, printed a dispatch from Council Bluffs, Ia., telling of the expelling from the city of George Papcum, organizer of the Trade Unity Union league. The message, through an error by the Council Bluffs correspondent, made it appear that the American Legion had a part in the deportation. The correspondent has telegraphed THE TRIBUNE that the Legion was not involved.

An item erroneously stated that Mrs. Robbins Gilman, president of the Federal Motion Picture council, in a speech before the Woman's City club, had said she was opposed to censorship of the films. Mrs. Gilman urged the safeguarding of the censorship board and government regulation of the industry.

The Armistice dance of First Division Cantigny post of the American Legion will be given tomorrow evening. The date was given in the SUNDAY TRIBUNE as Sunday evening.

Quong Quok Wah, president of Ning Yung Benevolent association, states that his organization has not pledged any aid to the government in its drive against unauthorized aliens, as reported in THE TRIBUNE, but has protested strongly against any more raids by immigration officials in China-town.

THE STORY OF SAN MICHELE

DUTTON

Fashion's So Full of a Number of Sleeves, We Can Select One

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

You're hearing much in the fashion columns, this season, about the importance of sleeves. Upon the sleeve rests the responsibility of the smartest kind of new fashion note, we're told. And sleeves are what they haven't been for many a season, as varied and wayward as a lady's moods. They are apt to break out anywhere on the way down from shoulder to wrist, or stop short at any point on the way, refusing to budge an inch further.

The sleeve responsibility doesn't apply to fashion only. Arm and silhouette beauty may be extracted from the same source; also, it may be cut off or stopped short if the sleeve isn't right.

You've noted how the old fur cuffed line has been shifted, either higher or out of the picture entirely. Here fashion conceded frankly to the improvement of the silhouette. Heavily furred cuffs, it was observed, added inches to the hips, especially if they were of a light, contrasting fur. The lady with hips found if her fur sleeve trimming was cut down to a narrow band and used between elbow and wrist her hips gained in slenderness.

Some found the complete elimination of the cuff even better. The woman without hips naturally found that her heavily furred cuffs were kind, and so she holds to them.

The sleeve with puffs that break out at the elbow are a godsend to the one with sharp pointed elbows and because the line in this sort of sleeve extends down taperingly to a tight-wristed finish the arm is giving quite a new and merry look.

No one this year need be without her own consoling sleeve. If the arm is heavy, it's owner won't accentuate its breadth and thickness with one of the cute, schoolgirl arm puffs tied at the base in an intriguing little knot. She'll aim for the long, unbroken line of sleeve to the wrist end. If it is only the elbow that isn't as curved and dimpled as might be, the sleeve stopping point can be just below the elbow.

The thing is to watch out for that sleeve. See that it doesn't add breadth and thickness to the silhouette, that it doesn't stop short just at the arm's worst point. What can't be cured [in a hurry] in arm discrepancies can be covered up, tricked out in a most fetching way, this smart sleeved fall and winter season.

Sullen, Selfish Girl Rates Minus Zero as Matrimonial Asset

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Jack" is engaged to a girl who is easily hurt. He tries to be congenial, but it is almost impossible to get a word out of her when she has one of her "mads" on. And these apparently come often.

Jack has to do all the entertaining on a date. She seldom talks, and if he doesn't keep up a running fire of conversation and keep the interest up generally, she acts bored and disagreable. He proposes that they call the marriage off. There are other girls he feels would offer a cheerier companionship. But she isn't keen about letting him go.

Extricating oneself from a marriage promise with one of those sullen, selfish sisters isn't an easy riddance by any means. A man has to steel himself for the task—put on double plated armor and be hard as nails.

The thought of what a wife such a girl would make should help in the steeling process, however. Fancy a married existence with a woman whose feeling would be hurt over every little thing! No! Marriage has complications enough without adding a hyper-sensitive partner to the plan.

And, anyway, to make marriage a go there has to be more unity of thought and action than is promised in the picture of the girl outlined above. She'd be a terrible wet blanket. A girl who can talk an arm off is more fun for all year round living than one who goes into silent retreats and refuses to come out of them until her feelings are salved. Run from that type with all the speed you've got in your legs, boy!

But how to get away from her is something else again. You might try not escorting her anywhere, never phoning her, leaving her quite alone. You might even step out with one of the more logical candidates. You can't be sued for that. Anyway, you'll have to be immune to her pleas for another trial.

Refuse to let her crocodile tears get you. Just be Mr. Hardboiled who has had enough, and the sooner you're out from under the depressing influence the better.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Unrequited Love.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a boy who doesn't know it. I do not know if he cares for me or not. Please advise. PEGGY."

He would be attentive if he cared.

SOCIETY AT THE OPERA

A rival attraction, the Mary Garden-Barre Hill benefit concert at Orchestra hall depleted the ranks of fashionables at last night's performance of "The Magic Flute." Empty boxes yawned in both tiers.

During the single intermission, however, we glimpsed Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, hostess in her box to Mr. and Mrs. Graham Aldis, Mr. and Mrs. Huntley Gilbert, and Edwin Krenn. James C. Ames had as his guests Mr. and Mrs. Gustavus Swift, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Stanley and Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Laing were hosts to Miss Naomi Donnelly, Mrs. Ernest Freund, Prof. John M. Manly, and Dwight Harding. Mrs. Charles Harrington Chacwick's guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Hackett and Mr. and Mrs. David B. Gann.

In the Frederick Haskell box Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ballard had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Burnham and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Ballard. Mrs. Moses J. Wentworth had turned her box over to Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Shaw, who entertained their niece, Miss Elisabeth Worthington. In the Henry J. Hilton box Hoyt Hilton was host to Miss Janet Stiver, Mrs. H. P. Conway, Mrs. W. J. Ferguson, and Mr. and Mrs. John Roebaugh.

George W. Dixon's guests were Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Downes, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Zaring, and George Dixon Jr. In the Samuel Insull box Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Doyle entertained Mr. and Mrs. John G. Larned and Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord Freeman.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Clothing, Stove Needed.

"I have been given a couple of rooms without rent to tide me over the winter or until I find work, and I need a cook stove for them which I can't buy. Could you get me one through your column, also some heavy underwear, size 36? I would appreciate it so much. M. K."

This woman, who suffers the penalty of health and is really not able to work, struggles on to take care of herself the best she can. If you can provide her with these necessities it will be an immense help to her during the coming winter.

COLDS fill handkerchiefs with GERMS!

Avoid self-infection and infecting others . . . use

KLEENEX

Disposable Tissues

THE handkerchief has been found so dangerous that no person should tolerate it during colds.

Tests discovered as many as 240,000 living germs in a handkerchief used a single time! You expose yourself and others to danger if you keep such a germ-trap about you.

Use Kleenex—destroy

Fortunately, a new discovery makes it unnecessary to risk self-infection from handkerchiefs any longer.

This discovery is Kleenex, a tissue of rayon-cellulose, that costs so little you may destroy it after a single use!

Thus you destroy all germs. You save handkerchief washing. And you have a nice, clean, fresh, dry tissue every time!

Has many uses

Kleenex has been declared the safest means of removing face creams. Its powerful absorbency assures removal of all dirt. Try Kleenex for wiping razor blades, to save towels. At all drug, dry goods and department stores.

Germs in Handkerchiefs that have been used during colds include Micrococci Catarrhales, Pneumococci, Streptococci and Staphylococci. When you use Kleenex, you can destroy these germs at once.

KLEENEX disposable TISSUES

At the First Sneeze

and leave it to

Mistol

Tilt your head back and drop soothing Mistol into your nose until it runs back into your throat. Mistol holds its healing balms in contact with the deepest nose and throat passages. Quickly soreness vanishes, colds are relieved, infection checked. Your doctor approves. At all drug stores.

REALLY there's so much happening in the realm of fashion and society these days that it's impossible to expatiate in very great detail about all that goes on. Even then, in necessarily abbreviated form, is some of the news of import and interest that came to light yesterday.

Mrs. Albert Smith of New York, who was Mrs. Lawrence M. Viles when she was last a Chicagoan several years ago, is in town. She was at the Drake over the week-end and went out to Lake Forest yesterday afternoon to be the guest of the Ralph T. Poles for the week.

Mrs. Wirth S. Dunham and her daughter, Miss Jane Dunham, are to spend the winter abroad. They're to sail on the 17th—that's next Tuesday—and will be in Florence, Italy, with Mrs. Dunham's brother and sister-in-law, Count and Countess Morelli.

Brig. Gen. William Mitchell of Middleburg, Va., arrives this morning to spend a few days with Mr. and Mrs. John F. Jelke Jr. in Lake Forest.

Chas. Fee . . . Ira Nelson Morris is back in town after a long summer on the continent [Paris for business, Deauville for a visit, and the Riviera for a vacation], and is here for the week in his apartment at the Lake Shore Drive hotel. Mrs. Morris, who spent a few days in London with her son, Mr. Enrique de Paats, wife of the former Argentine minister to Italy, before she sailed, is at the Morris country estate at Manchester, Mass., and will come on to Chicago in mid-month.

Now there are two interesting items of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Curtis at the Presbyterian hospital on Saturday, and of a son at Sunny of the Chicago Lying-In hospital to Mr. and Mrs. James Miller Rogers of 25 Scott street. Mrs. Curtis was Mrs. Doris Russell Barnitz until her marriage last winter, and Mrs. Rogers is the former Jane Linn. The Rogers baby has the same birthday as his paternal grandfather, Bernard F. Rogers, and is the first grandson of his mother's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Weber Linn.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Reynolds Give Ball with Friends.

Mr. and Mrs. George M. Reynolds, Mr. Allen M. Clement, and Mrs. Joseph B. Defrees have departed on a pleasant little pilgrimage to New York City to go shopping, see the new plays, and do all the other nice things there are to do in New York in the fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Schulze Jr. of 1311 Lake View avenue announce the birth of a son, Nov. 3, at the Passavant hospital. He is named after his uncle, Capt. Walter H. Schulze, a flyer, killed in the world war. Mrs. Schulze, before her marriage, was Grace Mary Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy S. Cook.

It was a nice donation the Joint Emergency Relief fund received yesterday from the Service club. Mrs. Stanley Swing, the club's president, stated it said it was a check for $1,500, part of the hard earned proceeds of the Service club's annual charity revue given at the Opera house a few weeks ago.

Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis and the Alliance Française, of which she is president, are to give a reception next Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock for Miss Jeanne de Mare in the Alliance Française rooms in the Fine Arts building. Miss de Mare is to speak on "Trends of Thought in France."

Howard F. Gillette, chairman of the men's committee for the charity ball to be held at the old Auditorium theater on Dec. 15 has called a meeting for this afternoon to complete the committee assignments, etc. Joseph T. Ryerson is to be chairman of the entertainment committee and will be assisted by Ernest Byfield and John R. Winterbotham Jr. J. Russell Forgan is to be chairman of the music committee, and Mrs. Morris Leidy Johnston is to "do" the publicity.

The Society of Mayflower Descendants in Illinois is to hold its 35th annual banquet on Saturday evening, Nov. 21, at the Blackstone. The Rev. James M. Stifler, D. D., trustee of the University of Chicago and chairman of the committee on development, is to give the address of the evening, and his subject is "Benjamin Franklin, 'the Puritan.'" Henry A. Rumsey is governor of the society, and Mrs. Seymour Morris of Winnetka is secretary.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew R. Sherriff are to have a meeting of "The Green Room" at their apartment at 1320 North State street at 8:30 o'clock this evening.

Chicagoans in California and Some Others in New York, Etc.

More notes concerning fashionable goings-on—Mr. and Mrs. George E. Marcy have returned to California, and are at the Hotel Huntington in Pasadena for the winter . . . the Clarence B. Mitchells have returned to Santa Barbara after a visit with their various relatives here. . . . Mrs. Cuthbert C. Adams of Winneka is in New York City for a week's visit with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson Lusk. . . . Mrs. Leslie Wheeler lands in New York City tomorrow on the Ile de France from her short trip to Europe. . . . Miss Rosamund Moore of New York City is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Ezra J. Warner in Lake Forest, parents of her fiancé, Ezra Jr. . . . Chrysanthemums from the Marshall Field conservatories on Long Island won several blue ribbons in the Nassau County Horticultural society's show at Glen Cove, L. I., last week, and the largest bloom in the show, a "Red Majestic" measuring 20 inches in circumference, was also from the Field greenhouse.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S DRESS.

The lines of this dress are especially slenderizing for the matronly figure. The new skirt, cut with its clever diagonal lines, reduces hip bulk, and the cross-over bodice has an applied band trim that is becoming, besides giving a flat line much appreciated by the larger figure. Black crêpe satin, with white vest, patterned silk crêpe with a blending shade of plain crêpe, and dark green patterned sheer woolen with eggshell crêpe for the vest, are pleasing suggestions.

The pattern, 3173, comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 4 yards of 39 inch material, with ½ yard of 39 inch contrasting and ⅞ yard of 3 inch wide lace.

Church Group Attacks Wars as Barbarism

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

War is a superstition and belongs in the ages of "trial by ordeal" and the burning of witches. So declared Rabbi Louis L. Mann of Sinai temple. Yesterday he opened the 16th annual good will conference of the World Alliance for International Friendship Through the Churches. The sessions are in the Palmer house. Rabbi Mann argued that as trial by ordeal seldom revealed a criminal, so war never shows who is wrong.

He declared that very few churches will bless any future war. He asserted that "God has nothing to do with such hellish business. Those few churches that continue to pray for divine blessing on war will not last long."

Rabbi Mann cited a recent questionnaire which reached 19,000 pastors of all faiths which asked their attitude toward a future war. Fifty-four per cent of the replies promised complete noncoöperation, even as chaplains. Rabbi Mann declared the work of chaplains is largely that of bolstering the morale of an army by invoking age long superstitions.

The Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, radio preacher of the Federal Council of Churches, principal speaker of the afternoon session, declared that he did not so much fear the present situation between Japan and China in Manchuria as he does fear greater nations of Europe and America.

"The most dangerous nations of the world are the so-called Christian nations," Dr. Cadman declared as he cited what he called "the inconsistent attitude of those nations that drift toward war despite their repeated condemnation of it."

"This attitude," Dr. Cadman continued, "constitutes a far more dangerous betrayal of the rights of God and man than any theoretical atheism. The most dangerous atheists do not speculate on atheism. They practice it. They are frequently the atheists of the front pew."

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Nov. 9.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Field are passing the late autumn at Caumsett, their estate at Lloyds Neck. They will remain there until after the Christmas holidays. They will go abroad in January.

Mr. and Mrs. Seth Low have taken an apartment at 24 East 71st street.

Mrs. Ten Eyck Wendell Jr. has returned from Casenovia, N. Y., and has joined Mr. and Mrs. Ten Eyck Wendell at their home, 299 Park avenue, for the winter.

Mrs. George A. Gordon, wife of the counselor of the American embassy in Berlin, is due on Wednesday on the Ile de France.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hitchcock have returned from their wedding trip to Bermuda. Mrs. Hitchcock was Miss Marie Louise Smithers.

DISCUSS LATIN AMERICA

The pilgrimage of President Hoover to the Latin American countries following his election, and the "lyrical speeches" of the international chamber of commerce will not make up for the "stern fact that Pan-Americanism as a great vital force does not exist." That was the statement last night of Dr. Hubert Herring of New York. He spoke at the Chicago Woman's club last night before the Chicago committee on cultural relations with Latin America. Dr. Herring said the committee sought a real but unofficial Pan-Americanism.

Preceding this Dr. Herring had engaged in a verbal duel with Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch, chairman of the committee. She presided at the meeting and said she would offer "a dollar to help pay the passage to South America of any man nominated for the presidency of the United States so he'll get a substantial idea of the value of the great American countries down there."

"I agree with Mrs. McCulloch," Dr. Herring began, introductory to his speech, "that for the good of their souls the presidents-elect should take a South American trip. But I hope in the future they won't go on battleships."

"To what better use could a battleship be put?" Mrs. McCulloch asked.

To that Dr. Herring replied:

"Mrs. McCulloch knows where battleships belong—at the bottom of the sea."

J. D. Rockefeller Gives New Dimes to Bridge Builders

White Plains, N. Y., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—John D. Rockefeller was the first person to drive over the new 750 foot steel bridge which carries the Bronx parkway extension over the Croton reservoir, the Westchester county park commission revealed today. Mr. Rockefeller marked the occasion by distributing new dimes to workmen.

Eskimos' Radio Taste.

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 8.—(AP)—Radio programs intrigue modern Eskimo women, says the veteran trader, Col. J. K. "Jim" Cornwall, but broadcasts of the latest fashions are a total loss as far as ladies of the arctic are concerned. Jazz and even classical music or dramatic presentations are welcome, he adds.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—The debutantes of the season had their first formal entertainment tonight when Mr. and Mrs. William Laird Dunlop gave a black and white ball at the Mayflower. Many dinner parties preceded it. Miss Jean Wingfield of Chicago was among the debutantes. She came to Washington Saturday with her mother, Mrs. George Wingfield. The decorations were all of white blossoms and black streamers. The girls all wore white gowns and the matrons and the man were black and white.

Mrs. James F. Curtis, daughter of the late former governor of Minnesota, and Mrs. William R. Merriam gave a dinner tonight in honor of Mrs. Deering Howe of New York, who is visiting her.

WHEN YOU OVER-INDULGE

THERE are times when we all are tempted to take a holiday from the usual prudence.

Where is the person who wants to be discreet in diet every day in the year? It isn't human!

And it isn't necessary!

Your stomach won't be poisoned by every little indiscretion if you will just remember to give it the friendly aid of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It will sweeten the sour system and put things to rights.

Suppose you do overload your stomach with those things that bring on acidity? Phillips' Milk of Magnesia will neutralize many times its volume in acid. Just take two spoonfuls before and after such over-indulgence. It's a very simple way to prevent those miserable mornings which follow too much to eat and drink.

When you over-indulge—eating, drinking, smoking—don't suffer for hours! Nature will restore a proper alkaline balance in time, but Phillips' Milk of Magnesia acts immediately. A creamy, pleasant-tasting emulsion that sweetens the stomach, dispels that sour gas, and relieves the nausea and headache, and feeling of biliousness due to overdoing. (Phillips' mild laxative properties always help the bowels at such times.)

Make sure it's genuine. The signature of Chas. H. Phillips on the wrapper and bottle will tell you it's the real product endorsed by the medical profession. Less perfect preparations do not act the same.

For a Healthy Mouth

Use Phillips' Milk of Magnesia as a mouthwash every evening before retiring. Use Phillips' Dental Magnesia, a superior tooth-paste, to keep the teeth clean and white.

PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA

COLDS

RUB Musterole well into your chest and throat—almost instantly you feel easier. Repeat the Musterole rub once an hour for five hours . . . what a glorious relief!

Those good old-fashioned cold remedies—oil of mustard, menthol, camphor—are mixed with other valuable ingredients in Musterole to make it what doctors call a "counter-irritant" because it gets action and is not just a salve.

It penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

The Marriage Racket

By VINA DELMAR

SYNOPSIS.

Irma Corbin, while playing in vaudeville in Thrace, an upstate New York town, is showered with invitations by Bill Fitzroy, friend of her pianist, and Wallace Graham, a widower friend of Bill's. Wallace asks Irma to be his wife. Bill's proposal to her is of a different nature. Irma marries Wallace and leads a dull existence as his wife. Wallace's young daughter, Mildred, and his aunt live with them. A son is born to Irma. He becomes the center of her universe. Wallace and Irma go on a trip to Europe. Irma worries continually about the baby. They meet Russell Byrnes, a wealthy bachelor from New York who has a cabin on a boat sailing in two days, which Irma persuades him to sell to Wallace. Back in Thrace they find the baby well, but Mildred planning a casonic marriage with Scott Avery. Wallace appoints Irma to guard her. Mildred eludes her guard and elopes with Scott. Wallace and Irma quarrel. Irma decides her marriage is a flop and takes the baby to New York. She gets an engagement dancing in a night club where she meets Russell Byrnes. Irma becomes Russell's mistress because he can give the baby everything Irma thinks he needs. Russell is called to Paris on business and Irma moves her menage over there. Bill Fitzroy visits Paris and meets Irma.

INSTALLMENT XLIV.

WORRISOME NEWS.

Bill put his hand on Irma's forehead and the weight of it made her fall faster so that she hit the bottom of the thick blackness with a thud that hurt her head. That had been mean of Bill.

Then there were other voices. Strange voices. Both male and female, both French and American. Bill and Russell were lost. Then suddenly they were back again.

Russell said, "I haven't been able to sleep."

Then Bill died. He must have died for he spoke no more though Russell kept shouting questions at him. Irma wished the baby would come back from Duclos' house. She wanted to see him. Maybe if she called him he would come. Perhaps later she would call him after she'd had a little nap.

Just now she had that second dance to do with Carlos. Where was he? Their music was playing. She'd have to go on alone. How beautifully she danced. Carlos had made her dress. It had a thousand yards of black velvet in it and a hundred bands of trailing black jet. A many-tailed comet she circled about the stage. Faster, faster always faster. She held her audience enthralled. Now was the place where she leaped across the stage into Carlos' arms. But he was not there. Well, she would leap anyhow. Perhaps he would be there in time to catch her. But he was not. She landed with a horrible crackling sound on the floor. Every bone in her body was broken.

She heard a man whisper, "Stop kidding me. Just exactly what are her chances for pulling through?"

There was no answer. Carlos had come in late but he was ready now. She would have to do the dance again but this time he would really catch her.

Irma tried to rise but found her body unwilling to serve her.

"Hello, there, lady. How are you?" It was an American voice that addressed her.

Irma moved her tired eyes sidewise. A cheerful faced young woman in the stiff, white garb of a nurse stood looking down at her.

"My question doesn't need answering, Mrs. Graham. Don't try to talk."

"You've had typhoid fever."

For a moment Irma lay quietly considering that reality was almost as strange as the dreams which had pursued her. Then she spoke. Her voice was thin and weak. It startled her as she said, "Is my baby here?"

"Your baby? No, dear, he's safe at home. I'll try to tell you everything you'll want to ask. It'll save your strength. This is the American hospital at Neuilly. You've had typhoid fever. You're not going to die and nobody caught it from you. Let's see what else. O, you've been here three weeks and——"

"Three weeks!" Irma's voice rose in a shrill cry and she made an aimless motion as though to leave her bed. "Can I see Mr. Byrnes?"

"When you're stronger. Now rest."

The nurse went outside and Irma lay for a long while trying to think but everything got cluttered in her mind. All she knew was that she yearned to see Martin. It was cruel of them to keep him away now that danger of contagion had passed. As soon as they let Russell in she would make him take her home.

But it was three days later before Russell was admitted and then for only the briefest of instants. She saw that his face looked drawn and weary. His eyes were wet when he stooped to kiss her forehead.

"I'm all right, dear," she said.

He could not answer at once. She caught his hand and whispered, "Dearest, take me home."

"Soon, Irma."

"Today."

"O, no, darling, you're too weak to be exposed to a change yet."

"I want to see Martin so much."

"I know, dear." He turned his face away from her.

She had a sudden sharp pang of terror. "Russell, look at me! Is something wrong with the baby?"

Miss Kingman arrived with her familiar flat-footed tread. "Sorry, Mr. Byrnes, I have to put you out now."

"Russell, answer me before you go. Don't leave me to guess. Is the baby all right? I'll go crazy through the night if you don't tell me."

"Careful, Mrs. Graham."

Russell stopped with his hand on the doorknob and faced her. "Darling, I swear by everything holy that Martin is well. Don't worry."

"Are you lying?"

"Goodby."

"Well, I'll be darned if I call him a soothing caller," Miss Kingman remarked when the door closed. "We'll have to watch your company if you're going to shoot fireworks like that all the time."

"Will you let my baby in to visit me?"

"No, that would be foolish. By the time you're strong enough to see him you'll be strong enough to go home."

"O."

"Besides," Miss Kingman added, "you won't want to see him till you have a wig, will you?"

"No, that's right. I'd forgotten." Irma sighed ruefully. She had given very little thought to the loss of her rich, dark waves. How her appearance must have startled poor Russell. Certainly the turban she had made by tearing a piece of silk from a nightgown hadn't been very decorative.

It was a day over four weeks before the doctor was willing to see Irma leave the hospital. On the night before her departure Russell had dinner with her in her room. There was something he had to tell her before she went to her apartment.

He dreaded the task before him. She would hate him but it was not himself he pitied. He pitied her. She looked so like a sick child with her small wasted hands and hollow cheeks. If only she need not hear worrisome news till she was strong again.

"If this wig ever flies off while Martin's around he'll have a spasm laughing," she was saying as she placed a hairpin where one was needed.

"Yes," he agreed absently. Then after a minute, "Irma, did you know we thought you were going to die?"

"Did you? Fooled you, didn't I?"

"Yes, thank God. Irma did you ever think what you would want done with the baby in case you passed away while he was young?"

"No. Say, is this your usual sick room line?"

"Well, I thought so much about it while you were ill it seems natural to talk about it. Besides, being responsible for Martin when he's so precious to you was awful. I dreamed he was under truck wheels and I saw the apartment building on fire every time my imagination wandered. You never put me in a position where I was free to live with him so that I could watch. I didn't know how to cope with it."

"What do you mean you didn't know how to cope with it?"

"I wasn't free to move about your apartment. If I had, the child would have wondered why it was my business. When you got well you would have been furious at me for blasting everything you'd so carefully built. On the other hand to stay away drove me crazy. If anything happened to him I was the one you'd blame. I was the one responsible. If you didn't survive I had the child to explain to a gaping world. Now, Irma, that was the situation."

"Go on, you're not talking for fun. What's the finish?"

"Martin is in America."

"In America? Good God, you sent him to America?"

"Yes, Bill Fitzroy took Martin and Mademoiselle back with him. I knew Bill was a person you trusted."

"They're in the New York apartment?"

"No."

"Where are they?"

"Irma, sending Martin to the New York apartment was worse than having him here. I sent him to the only other person besides you who should have him. He's in Thrace."

"My God, Russell, you ought to be shot. Just plain yellow, that's what you were." She slumped down in her chair and tears ran jaggedly down her thin face.

"Look, Irma, I've got some cables to show you. Here's the one from Bill that says they arrived safely. And here's a lot of others. One comes every day that says Martin's fine. They're signed Mildred."

Food Talk.

At that same fair I told you about yesterday there was a most obliging man in charge of the poultry division who answered innumerable questions. To, "Will you please explain to me why some eggs are white and others brown?" he took up a little bronze hen and showed her ear, a hole just behind the eye. Under it was a patch of red skin.

"This hen will lay brown eggs and so will all other hens whose ear lobes are not white. It is an innate, inherited characteristic."

He said that people in Boston insist on brown eggs. This is because most of the hens around there are Rhode Island Reds and lay brown eggs. Before the days of quick transportation and effective preservation these were the only available fresh eggs, and the color naturally became associated with freshness. San Francisco is a white egg town, and Chicago is rapidly becoming so. New York is not only a white egg town but the Jewish trade there demands a yolk that is as pale as possible. It is produced by eliminating from the hen's diet yellow corn, greens, and other foods that produce yellow coloring. Unfortunately, this also takes out a good deal of vitamin content.

Hens are now larger than they used to be. Now they weigh about 4½ pounds, a pound more than they used to. They are fed a balanced ration which contains a good deal of codliver oil. My poultryman friend suggested that it was a better plan to feed the hens the oil and serve the eggs to the children than to omit the hen from the codliver oil diet.

Six months are necessary to build up size and reserve enough to make a hen a consistent layer. At the fair they had ten pens of White Rocks that were as comfortable as you please, with their own mash sent from home, straw to scratch in, and laying boxes. They were not at all abashed by spectators, and some of them had not missed their daily egg for almost a week.

BAKED EGGS WITH TOMATO SAUCE.

Break an egg [two if you wish] into a greased baking cup, season, and pour over it part of a can of tomato soup. Bake in a fairly hot oven till the egg is set.

FROZEN PEACH PUDDING.

1 cup peaches crushed [either fresh or canned].
3 tablespoons sugar.
¼ cup water.
20 marshmallows.
½ pint whipping cream.

Mix the sugar and fruit and let stand while the water and marshmallows steam in a double boiler. When the marshmallows are melted, place in a refrigerator, and when they are cold and slightly stiff, beat in the fruit, then the cream, beaten stiff. Freeze in a refrigerator tray. The speed of freezing depends on the regulation of your refrigerator, but it ought not to exceed eights hours in the slowest.

Adjustable Evening Wrap Is Short or Long

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Irene Dana has settled the question of the long or short evening coat by designing one that is both long and short. This coat is made of Persian blue duvetyne. Lots of evening coats are being made of wool, this fall. It has a short jacket, shown in the larger sketch. This jacket has very reduced leg o' mutton sleeves and a big collar of blue fox fur. It has a short, unflared peplum and is belted in at the waistline by blue duvetyne ties. That is the short of the coat.

An instep length blue duvetyne skirt, open up the front, and lapped over in wrap-around fashion goes with this coat. You tie it on over the jacket, with the band and ties that are sewed to its top, when you want a long evening coat. It then looks like the small sketch at the top, and is suitable for all kinds of wear, as it covers the dress completely. This skirt may also be worn with the dress alone.

Even Parents Make Mistakes and Wise Ones Will Admit It

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

"If I say 'No,' that settles it. I never go back on my word."

Are you like that? Have you made it a rule never to reverse your own decisions?

In writing yesterday about how to prevent or cure teasing I advised, "When you say no, stick to it." And then, because I was afraid some parent with more thoroughness than wisdom, might always hold to her "No," I hasten to add, "But not always."

In order to keep your child from getting the teasing habit you don't have to be adamant. Even a fine piece of advice has to be followed with judgment, so when you decide to say no and stick to it don't let that mean always. And don't let it imply th you expect your child to be, as a result, so well trained that he'll never be human and ask a second time for anything.

Here's where it becomes important first to be slow with your denials and, second, to try to be absolutely fair. Those are two habits you need to form as a father or as a mother. Don't say no unless you need to and unless it is fair to say it.

But, being human, you're quick, or irritable, or tired, and you do say no when you shouldn't. Or, being human, you are sometimes unjust in your decisions. Do you reverse yourself then? I hope you do. I hope you're big enough and wise enough not to put something over on your child just because you've committed yourself—because you think your power over him will be lessened if you don't. Or because you think your prestige as a parent will suffer. You're not infallible. Say no and stick to it always—except when you've made a mistake.

We have an informal study plan for parents which will be full of interest fc you if you are thoughtful about your work as a father or mother. It will be sent on receipt of a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt Tells Rules of Happy Marriage

New York, Nov. 9.—[Special.]—Modern people must "expect to adjust," Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the New York governor, says in an article in the December issue of Pictorial Review. Those three rules summarize one of the ten rules she gives for successful marriage. Briefly, the others are:

Have a definite life pattern.

Keep a household budget.

Apportion between husband and wife the home-making duties as well as individual responsibilities.

Let neither husband nor wife attempt to dominate.

Be honest with yourself and with the other.

Be loyal; the less said about married troubles, except between yourselves, the better.

Talk things over; meet every situation in the open.

Avoid trivial criticisms.

44 WONDERFUL WAYS

IT'S a fact! There are 44 different ways of serving Eatmor Cranberries. Each is appetizing and delicious. Each can be prepared by you at home. Be sure you get your copy of "44 Ways To Serve The Tasty Fruit" at the Tribune Cookery School. In the meantime follow this recipe for Perfect Cranberry Sauce:

"TEN MINUTE" CRANBERRY SAUCE

4 cups (1 lb. or quart) Eatmor cranberries
2 cups water 1½ to 2 cups sugar

Boil sugar and water together 5 minutes; add cranberries and boil without stirring (5 minutes is usually sufficient) until all the skins pop open. Remove from the fire when the popping stops, and allow the sauce to remain in vessel undisturbed until cool.

A GOOD TIME FOR EVERYBODY

HOUSEWIVES! Today is the big day! Today the Chicago Tribune School of Cookery opens its doors to the women of Chicago's great North Side.

Last week thousands of women living on the South Side attended this new and different cooking school, conducted by Ida M. Chitwood, nationally known home economics authority, in co-operation with Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune cooking editor.

This week it's the North Side's turn. At 1:45 this afternoon at the Aragon ballroom, 1100 Lawrence Avenue, the North Side division of the Tribune School of Cookery will go into opening session.

You'll enjoy every minute of it. The lectures and demonstrations will give you a wealth of new knowledge about cooking and baking. Famous artists of the stage, screen, or radio will be on hand to entertain you. Noted choral conductors will direct the community singing. In addition, hundreds of valuable prizes will be awarded to women who attend.

It's all free! There is no charge for admission. You don't need any ticket or coupon. No collections are taken inside. Just come and you will be shown to comfortable seats by courteous ushers.

Come alone or with a party of friends. You DON'T have to live on the North Side to attend the North Side sessions. You are invited no matter where you live. Come early. No one will be admitted after the sessions get under way.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

LEWIS, MACHINE GUN INVENTOR, FALLS OVER DEAD

U. S. Spurned Weapon; British Pay Fortune for It

New York, Nov. 9.—(Special.)—Col. Isaac Newton Lewis, 73, who invented the first portable, aircooled machine gun, fell dead of heart disease this afternoon in the Lackawanna railroad station in Hoboken, N. J., while awaiting a train for Montclair, his home.

Ironically, his own government rejected the Lewis machine gun when it offered it to the ordnance bureau in Washington as a gift in 1913. Subsequently the British, to whom he sold the manufacturing rights, found it one of the most effective weapons with which to win the war and paid him a fortune in royalties.

West Point Graduate.

Col. Lewis was born in New Salem, Sept. 12, 1858, and was graduated from the United States Military academy at West Point in 1884, entering the second field artillery as a second lieutenant immediately afterward. While stationed at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., in 1909, he invented and developed the first successful artillery range and position finder.

Among other inventions for military use were his time-interval clock and set of signals for batteries, a self-reading mechanical vernier for artillery defenses, and a quick firing gun and mount.

The Lewis machine gun is credited with being the first weapon to prove effective against the Zeppelin. Col. Lewis spent years trying to get the government to adopt the gun but met only with rebuffs. Finally, in 1913, he retired from active service to go east to Europe and effected an arms manufacturing alliance with the Birmingham Small Arms company of Birmingham, England. When the war broke out England made use of the American invention. More than 100,000 Lewis guns were used by the allies during the war.

Tied by Courtesy of British.

Although the weapon played a decisive part in the war, the American government continued to give it a cold shoulder, thereby provoking controversy in congress and in the press. Col. Lewis said he was so discouraged that he considered making his home in England. Toward the end of the war, the air forces decided to give the gun a new trial and found it so satisfactory that it was used by them by courtesy of the British.

MAYOR REVEALS POLICE MATRON'S REDUCING COURSE

Mayor Cermak told a story yesterday at the luncheon of the Bohemian Women's club to illustrate the conditions existing in the police department at the time he took office.

"At one police station," he said, "I found that the patrol wagon was not available for police duty at a certain time each morning. Upon investigation I found that the wagon was assigned to meet a police matron at an elevated station and drive her to the police station. She was too fat to walk.

"Three policemen had been driving the wagon five miles every day since 1931 to accommodate this matron. The matron now has started on a reducing program by walking from the elevated to the station."

The mayor also revealed that some of the police stations will be closed, thereby releasing 37 men from inside duty at these stations for patrol duty.

One man was killed and four others were critically injured when their automobile overturned in a Dempster street, at Potter road, Des Plaines, early this morning. All were on a hunting party, bound for the lake region at the time.

The dead man was identified as Frank Pamilio, 27 years old, of 1501 Cleveland avenue. The injured are Emilio Chicken, 1301 West Erie street; Sam Ansaloni, 1118 North Franklin street; Joe Calendar, 1510 Larrabee street, and Frank Camelo, 245 West Goethe street. They were taken to the Des Plaines Emergency hospital by Morton Grove county highway police.

The deaths of Pamilio and five others in Cook county yesterday raised the 1931 toll to 1,101. The 1930 death toll, the highest ever recorded in the county, was 1,136. The present year's toll is 35 short of this mark with more than a month and a half of the year remaining. The other victims:

Otto Rickert, 5 years old, 4900 West Congress street. Fatally injured yesterday when he was struck by an automobile while playing in the street at Lavergne avenue and Van Buren street. David Harris, 15 years old, 4835 West Adams street, a pupil at the Fenwick High school in Oak Park, was the driver.

Miss Grace Hannappel, 40 years old, 5686 Ridge avenue. Died at the Edgewater hospital from a skull fracture suffered when she was knocked down by an automobile at Broadway and Bryn Mawr avenue. James Donahue, 1534 Ardmore street, was the driver.

Mrs. Hannah Cronin, 70 years old, 3144 South Ashland avenue. Fatally injured when she was struck by a newspaper delivery truck at Ashland avenue and Robinson street. The driver, Andrew McGoldrick, 4048 North Richmond street, was held.

Charles Bowles, 59 years old, 1322 South Kolin avenue. Died in the Garfield Park hospital of injuries suffered Friday when he was struck by an automobile at Crawford avenue and 13th street. Charles Rogers, 2146 Pearl court, the driver, was not held.

William Connelly, 55 years old, 128 South Sacramento boulevard. Fatally injured by the automobile of Adolph W. Olsen, 40, of 255 North Wood road, Riverside, in Jackson boulevard at Sacramento boulevard. Olsen was held.

EX-CONGRESSMAN FRED J. KERN OF BELLEVILLE DIES

Belleville, Ill., Nov. 9.—(AP)—The funeral of Fred J. Kern, 67, former congressman, former mayor, former president of the state board of administration, and editor and publisher of the Belleville News-Democrat, will be held at 3:30 p. m. Wednesday at the home. He died today after a paralytic stroke, the third since last New Year's day.

Kern's vigorous editorials were widely read. He was a farm and mill worker and a rural school teacher before he became proprietor of the Belleville daily in 1893. He was in congress from 1901 to 1903, and mayor from 1903 to 1910. For the next four years he was president of the state board of administration, which then controlled state institutions, by appointment of Gov. Edward F. Dunne.

[Find the Hidden Factor!]

Four-color center-spread "A"

No. 3 in LIBERTY'S Twin-ad Tests

This is the third of 45 cases where the same advertisement appeared in LIBERTY and one or more of the other mass weeklies during the period of the Gallup Tests—and was checked for variation in reader interest in each magazine. Watch for the next one—a week from today.

Four-color center-spread "B"

Each burst forth from the same mold. Favored alike by copywriter, art director, engraver, typographer and executive blessing.

Yet one of the twins stopped five persons for every three who noticed the other. Won readers at less than half the other's cost per reader. Why? In the interest of your own advertising success–WHY?

The Hidden Factor

Hard times have put advertising on the pan. Copywriters are told to hitch hooks onto their metaphors. Art directors to drop atmosphere for "the goods."

The more widely seen ad was published in Liberty.

The other in another mass weekly.

And the importance of the hidden factor—the magazine—in affecting advertising results is shown clearly by a check of this and 44 other advertisements which appeared in Liberty and, in duplicate form, in one or more of the other mass weeklies during last July and the first two weeks of August.

The Gallup Tests

During those six weeks, 15,000 homes in six cities were visited by Dr. George Gallup, Professor of Journalism and Advertising, Northwestern University, and his staff. Wherever a reader of a current copy of one of the four mass weeklies was found, he or she was conducted through his or her copy, page by page. Every advertising and editorial item recognized as having been seen or read was tabulated. (In three of the six cities the Association of National Advertisers acted as official observers.)

Inspired by the need for more accurate facts, this is the first attempt ever made to go beyond editorial judgments, circulation analyses or reader votes to find out comparative reader interest in magazines. It marks the first tabulation ever made of exactly what magazine readers actually see and read.

What They Found

Out of all 45 advertisements that had appeared in duplicate in Liberty and others of the mass weeklies—

Three-fourths had stopped more readers in Liberty than in any of the other weeklies—

Nearly all had stopped more in Liberty than in one of the other weeklies.

Why LIBERTY Gives Space Buying New Importance

The first "different" mass weekly in many generations...paced to war-changed manners, modes and reading tastes . . . Liberty is closer to the American Public . . . proves, as in this case, that choice of the right magazine may make a 70% difference in your advertisement's "stopping power."

Liberty's fast moving, brief, newsy editorial material, by the best authors and artists. . .

Made easy to read by its compact size, every-story-complete-in-consecutive-pages-makeup (putting every ad next to live material instead of back-of-the-book runovers). . .

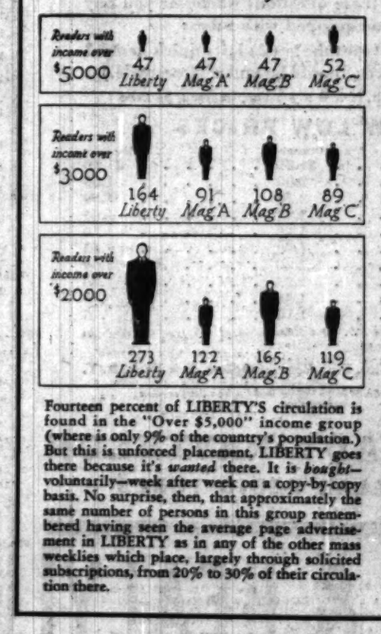
Checked by the fact that 99% of its circulation is bought over the counter, copy-by-copy, 52 times a year, without need for soliciting profitless subscription contracts. . .

Has logically made Liberty "America's best-read weekly."

As such, Liberty offers 52 opportunities a year to advertisers interested in getting more out of their advertising.

If you are one of these, a copy of the Gallup report is available without obligation. A note on your letterhead will bring one post-haste via a Liberty representative. Address Liberty, 420 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y.

Actual READERS-per-page-Advertisement that your dollar will buy:



Fourteen percent of LIBERTY'S circulation is found in the "Over $5,000" income group (where is only 9% of the country's population.) But this is unforced placement. LIBERTY goes there because it's wanted there. It is bought—voluntarily—week after week on a copy-by-copy basis. No surprise, then, that approximately the same number of persons in this group remembered having seen the average page advertisement in LIBERTY as in any of the other mass weeklies which place, largely through solicited subscriptions, from 20% to 30% of their circulation there.

TWO TEAMS TIE FOR SIX DAY BIKE RACE LEAD

THIS SPORT OF FOOTBALL HAD A STORMY YOUTH

Kings Warred on It, but Lost.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 9.—The game of football, which will come under the final whacks at the end of the present season, has always been a troublous sport. The historians of the game report that football, like golf, was forbidden by royal order in England as early as 1314 because men paid it to the neglect of their archery.

It seems a definite human fault to love a ball, however, for football has been discovered in one crude form or another among primitive peoples, in all climates, who apparently thought of the sport themselves.

In the English clods probably confined to play their game of football, adding death not only at play but by the hand of displeasure, just as the stubborn Yankees somehow have managed to yodel in secret since Mussolini forbade the yodel as an unpatriotic and pernicious practice.

King James I. Opposes Game.

Subsequent royal orders in England applied the earliest one on the same grounds, and King James I. forbade football on the additional and not foolish ground of brutality. The now venerable American football writers, in their studies of the game, have hinted from the encyclopedia, all except in their professional lectures and outlines, without crediting this information to its source, as I have to do, that this monarch described football as being "meeter for boys than making sons the users thereof."

For this matter, if his Royal Godship had pointed the difference between sports then practiced by various colleges in the United States he would have no trouble at all promoting an argument to the effect that football, the manbuilder, on the coaches and other leaders for the game and their various pertinent jobs describe it, is really a meanwrecker and still "meeter for loosing than making sons the users thereof."

Overacting Is Here Damaging.

However, I do not wish to join the denunciations of the game, series of ills, on this ground, realizing that more men are damaged worse by indirect eating than by football, and that the casualties of the field, including even the deplorable major injuries and deaths, are few by comparison with the casualties of other pastimes which draw no general condemnation. A man can't spend his life sitting under the bed.

In Boston the other day I read that in the state of Maine, where extraordinary legal precautions are taken to protect the hunters from one another in the fall, there had been nevertheless either eight or twelve—I forget which—fatalities in the woods.

It was frightful to watch Dick Sheridan, the little cadet of the West Point team, dying of football injury a short time ago, but it would be quite as feasible to watch in an intimate way the sporting struggles of the people who are destroyed in traffic accidents on the highways leading to and from the football arenas.

Amateurs Seem Often in Peril.

One night coming from a big game in Yale I counted five thorough washouts between New Haven and Westport, Conn., and since it is the pleasant, almost the patriotic, duty of Americans to get more or less tight at big occasions nowadays, football undoubtedly entails worse consequences to the spectators than the players.

The original game from which American football, soccer, and English rugby were derived was that unpublished free style ruckus which the English people were forbidden to play but played anyway until the need for archery had been outlived, and long beyond. In its beginning it was a sort of pleasure fight between gangs, often played in the narrow streets of London.

At that stage, however, football was hardly a game or disorder of the lower classes and scorned by the upper classes on the ground, no doubt, that no good ideas could come from below.

At Cambridge in 1697.

In my reading on the subject, and I may as well confess that I am not omitting all this from my personal observation, I have been unable to discover when football invaded the English schools, which were upperclass, of course, but my encyclopedia tells me that football of a sort was played at Cambridge in 1697, as shown by an order, forbidding, in effect, the students to get drunk in celebration of their football games. This would seem unduly severe in the United States today.

It appears also that on Michaelmas day there was always a big game, comparable, let us say, to a modern homecoming game in this country, and that the freshmen had to make speeches or buy drinks for the crowd. It is just possible that this was the origin of the custom still practiced at West Point in making the plebes "stand off" with "fixed opinions" at mess. I believe something happens to a plebe who does not sound off to a fixed opinion.

Leader—Letourneur.

BULLETIN.

In a series of jams immediately after midnight four teams tied Walker and Horder for the lead in the six day bike race. They were McNamara - Guerra, Letourneur-Guimbretiere, Georgetti - Debaets, and Coupry-Pecqueux. The five ply tie was shortlived, however, for at 12:15 a. m. another big jam restored McNamara-Guerra and Letourneur-Guimbretiere, the same riders who led the race throughout the day and early evening yesterday.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Cecil Walker and Harris Horder, a couple of Australian gents who have enjoyed a degree of fame in outdoor riding of bicycles at high speed, last night rode into the lead in the six day bike race at the Chicago Stadium.

Neither ever has won a six day race, although Walker for seven years has been the all round champion of America and for the last two years the American sprint champion. Horder twice has been the American sprint champion.

The rumor recently has been going the rounds that the track boards seem harder to Walker indoors than they do in the fresh air—a phenomenon in fluctuating courage that no cycle expert sought to explain, though many freely intimated that Cecil didn't like the going in a hall with a roof on it.

Cecil Flouts Critics.

Cecil didn't like this scurrilous line of comment, so he ups and plans a demonstration of valor with his landsman, Mr. Horder. It became apparent immediately that Cecil had decided he did not care how often or how viciously the pine planks of the Stadium saucer came up to dap him on tender parts of his anatomy. Horder liked the idea of the new Walker courage and a great deal of ultra brave peddling ensued.

The whirl continued violent up until 11 o'clock with spills abounding until seven of the brethren went down in one heap. Thereafter the artists were very cautious until shortly before midnight. Another jam started at this time, but it was less than a half minoid when another spill brought the hiatus bell.

At 11 o'clock, when Walker and Horder assumed the lead, there was a flight of five teams in a mileage tie for second place. On the point system McNamara and Guerra were second, Letourner and Guimbretiere were third, and the teams of Coupry-Pecqueux, Spencer-Crossley, and Georgetti-Debaets ranked in the order named.

At the 11 o'clock juncture 55 laps had been stolen to bring the total of the race to 130.

Five Spills in 3 Hours.

There were five spills during the period between 8 o'clock and 11 o'clock, two of them rather severe. Harry Horan suffered a bad gash on the back of his head which caused a 15 minute suspension of the race. A little later seven riders piled up, including both members of the team of Coupry and Pecqueux. Coupry was injured on the head and legs and the others consumed a lot of tape as a result of splinters and lacerations. The seven man wreck apparently took much out of the victims, for there was very little riding zeal for an hour after the pile up.

Serious artistry made its first appearance of the evening at 7:40 o'clock, when Stockholm and Horan precipitated a joust which lasted for six minutes before Guimbretiere took a big skid for himself.

As soon as Guimbretiere had been patched up operations were resumed and by 8:10 21 laps had been gained, the most progress being shown by the French newcomers, Coupry and Pecqueux, who in 25 minutes advanced from eleventh place for a mileage tie for second place. In the meantime, however, the McNamara-Guerra and the Letourner-Guimbretiere were able to protect their two lap lead.

2—Horan, Buyse, O. Nickel, Martinetti.
3—Debaets, Buyssenhout, Walker, Pecqueux.
4—Horan, Guerra, De Lille, O. Nickel.
5—Crossley, Seufert, Warner, Pecqueux.
6—Spencer, Horder, Horan, Buyse.
7—McNamara, Crossley, Letourner, Warner.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BIG TEN TITLE.

IT is unfortunate for public interest, and therefore attendance, that the Big Ten gridiron title appears determined two weeks before the end of the season. Of course Northwestern is not "in" mathematically, but few either Indiana or Iowa to turn back the Wildcats would be a form reversal that on the turf would take Coach Hanley before the board of stewards for questioning.

DICK HANLEY.

At the start, Northwestern, Michigan and Purdue were picked as championship contenders. Since they did not meet each other, speculation was rife whether there would be a triple tie at the end of the season with three unbeaten elevens. Then lo and behold, Michigan took it on the chin from Ohio State and Purdue from Wisconsin. Northwestern, in turn, howled over Ohio State and Minnesota, the only remaining undefeated teams after the Gophers had vanquished the Badgers.

That Northwestern is stronger than Michigan or Purdue is not proved in fact because they have not met. Yet by the percentage system used in determining unofficial Big Ten titles, the Wildcats stand above them. Perhaps Northwestern and Michigan will meet in a post-season charity affair, although there are distinct rumors that Northwestern would like a Pacific coast game on New Year's day if conference sanction were granted.

This discussion is wandering rather far afield from what we started to say—that the season is ending in anticlimax as far as title games are concerned. In single games of merit, none will find fault with frays between Ohio State and Wisconsin and Michigan and Minnesota. That latter contest at Ann Arbor may be one of the very best of the season. Many critics think the Wolverines of today would reverse the previous verdict with Ohio State if the game were to be played now.

The Day Is Ending.

And the shadows fall;
Then I know that God is sending
Lovely nights to all.
When the dawn is softly stealing
In and shadows go—
Then I know that God is giving
Lovely days—and lo,
All is bright with dew;
Then I know that God is loving
Just as we should do.

Football Retrospect.

In Saturday's football forecast, The Wake landed on 49 winners, 5 losers, and two contests ended in ties. That was pretty good guessing, even on a day devoid of notable upsets. Season to date: 301 winners, 50 losers, 22 ties.

Arousing the Wildcats.

When Northwestern's Wildcats retired to the dressing room between halves of the Minnesota game with the score 14 to 7 against them, their seven points having been acquired in the last minutes before the half ended, all was not well in the Purple ranks. Coach Hanley walked into the dressing room and inquired sarcastically: "Would any of you gentlemen like a cup of tea?" and said no more. Then Pat Hanley, assistant coach, delivered an exhortation talk. Perhaps this version is fiction, but it's what a Northwestern player told The Wake.

BIERMAN GAINS SUPPORT AS '32 GOPHER COACH

Crisler Plans to Stay as Director, Report.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Bernie Bierman, former player at the University of Minnesota and now head coach at Tulane, will take charge of football at Minnesota next year if any credence can be placed in persistent reports from Minneapolis. Fritz Crisler, according to this information, will remain as director of athletics.

Since Minnesota has one more important Big Ten game, that with Michigan, and a charity contest, which probably will be played against Illinois, the authorities can not be expected to confirm or deny Bierman's selection. Bierman was a candidate for the position two years ago when Crisler was given the double responsibility of directing athletics and coaching football. Those who supported Bierman then since have gained sufficient backing to secure his appointment, it is said.

Crisler Dislikes Double Burden.

The move also is said to have Crisler's approval. Crisler is popular with Minnesota alumni and students. His administration as director of athletics has been successful, and apparently there are none who wish him to drop all connection with Minnesota athletics. However, by Crisler's own admission during the first year of his regime, the double burden of administration and coaching is heavy. Given a choice, he probably would prefer to remain head of the department.

Crisler has demonstrated that Minnesota can play an open type of football. In other years those victories achieved by the Gophers were scored by superior force, a monotonous succession of line plays. In 1930, when he was starting the present system, Minnesota won one conference game, beating Indiana, 6 to 0. The Gophers lost to Michigan, 7 to 0; Northwestern, 27 to 6, and Wisconsin, 14 to 0. Michigan and Northwestern, undefeated, tied for the conference title. Minnesota also tied Stanford that season, but lost to Vanderbilt, 33 to 7.

Beat Two Big Ten Foes.

Crisler's record at Minnesota this fall already shows two conference triumphs against one defeat. The Gophers have beaten Iowa, 34 to 0; Wisconsin, 14 to 0, but lost last Saturday to Northwestern, 32 to 14. If Minnesota can win from Michigan it should finish high in the first division.

Tulane university, under Coach Bierman, has lost only one game in three years. This was a 14 to 0 defeat by Northwestern in 1930. Tulane defeated Georgia last fall, 25 to 0. Saturday Tulane and Georgia meet again in a game which will decide the championship of the Southern conference.

ARRANGE CHARITY GAMES.

The athletic directors of the Western conference will meet here next Sunday to arrange the post-season schedule of charity games. While no announcement can be expected before that date, it is common belief Michigan and Northwestern will be matched. Purdue is expected to play Ohio State, while Illinois will be scheduled with Minnesota at Minneapolis.

The other teams probably will be assigned as follows: Indiana vs. Wisconsin and Iowa vs. Chicago. One advantage of this set of games is that none of these teams have met during regular season play. All promise close competition.

The football coaches are said to be opposed to counting the charity games in the final Big Ten averages. However, the fans undoubtedly will want them counted. The charity games may complicate the championship. Unless Northwestern whips Michigan [granting it beats Indiana and Iowa before that time] the charity games can produce a tie. Michigan could, by defeating the Wildcats and Minnesota, wind up with five victories and one defeat. Ohio State also could finish with five victories and one defeat if the Buckeyes beat Purdue after having disposed of Wisconsin and Illinois.

A WILDCAT NAMED JAKE

Another fellow for Indiana to worry about. John (Jake) Sullivan, Northwestern sophomore half back, played so well against Minnesota that Coach Dick Hanley will nominate him for action in the Indiana game Saturday. Sullivan prepped at Loyola academy.

Levinsky to Meet Carnera Here Nov. 19

The Illinois athletic commission yesterday approved a ten round match between King Levinsky, west side puncher, and Primo Carnera at the Chicago Stadium Nov. 19, subject to Carnera's payment of a $1,350 fine assessed against him by the Italian Boxing union for failure to fulfill a contract in Italy. Carnera's representative said the fine would be paid tomorrow. Primo and his party will arrive tomorrow.

PRIMO CARNERA.

Approval also was given for a ten round bout between Bat Battalino, featherweight champion, and Bushy Graham, Utica, N. Y., supporting the Levinsky-Carnera match.

The boxing commission yesterday postponed until next Monday the case of Ralph Lenny, whose bout with Sammy Mandell was called no contest. The eastern boxer was unable to appear yesterday.

Tuffy Griffith, heavyweight boxer, underwent an operation for appendicitis yesterday, which will keep him out of the ring for several months. His condition was pronounced satisfactory.

Larry Johnson, south side fighter, will make his last battle as a heavyweight until after the light heavyweight tournament here when he faces Jack Roper, eastern boxer, at the West Side Knights of Columbus clubhouse tomorrow. Johnson will weigh about 180 pounds for Roper, but he said he can easily make the light-heavy poundage of 175.

Jackie Fields, ex-welterweight title holder, is training at the Arcade gym for his combat with Jimmy Belmont at Pittsburgh Nov. 16.

Frankie Battaglia, Winnipeg middleweight, will wind up drills tomorrow at Brown's loop gymnasium for his bout with Raoul Rojas at Milwaukee, Wis., Thursday. Tait Littman and Lou Scozza meet in another ten rounder on the card.

Dusek Wins Match from Zaharias in Straight Falls

Rudy Dusek defeated George Zaharias by winning two straight falls in the feature match of Promoter Doc Krone's wrestling show at the Coliseum last night. A crowd of 1,500 paid $2,500 to see the program.

Dusek won the first fall with a body slam in 16 minutes 46 seconds and was awarded the second on a foul in 15 minutes 8 seconds. Zaharias drove his knee into Dusek's back and then threw him to the mat, but Referee Walter Evans ruled that Dusek had been fouled. Dusek weighed 215 pounds and Zaharias 239.

Earl McCready, 240 pound Oklahoman, used a series of flying tackles to subdue Milo Steinborn, German strong man, in 12 minutes 10 seconds. The latter gave the Sooner youngster a good argument until he neglected to sidestep Earl's rushes.

A series of headlocks, followed by a body slam, sufficed for Gino Garibaldi to pin Jack Washburn in 10 minutes. Fred Grohmier, Iowa body scissors specialist, tossed Marshall Blackstone of Georgia in 10 minutes 47 seconds with a body scissors.

COACH MATHESON OF BLACKHAWKS GOES TO HOSPITAL

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—Godfrey A. Matheson, coach of the Chicago Blackhawks, was stricken with a stomach ailment today and taken to a local hospital. The physician in charge of the case said it was extremely doubtful if Matheson would be able to take charge of the team for two weeks at least. During his absence Emil Iverson, physical director, will take over Matheson's duties.

Blackhawk officials announced that Pat O'Shea and Frank Donald, youthful amateur defense players, were returned to their homes today. Their showing during the training period did not warrant holding them and as it is a violation of Canadian and American hockey rules for an amateur to play in a game—exhibition or otherwise—with professionals, it was deemed unwise to impair their amateur standing at the present time.

'32 SOX HAVE BIG DIAMOND SUPPLY, BUT LACK CARATS

37 on Spring Roster; New Material Fails in Luster.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

There doesn't seem to be any particular economy wave in effect among the American league owners. At least not in the number of players who must be fed and housed in the training camps next spring.

The league's official reserve list for 1932 was released yesterday by President Will Harridge, assisted by Publicity Director Henry Edwards and seven of the eight clubs have loaded up to or close to the limit of 40 athletes. The Yankees lead the field with the maximum number, followed closely by Detroit and Cleveland with 39 and 38, respectively. The White Sox and Washington are even with 37 apiece, but the latter finished third last season and the Pale Hose in the cellar.

The basement occupant as far as the reserve list is concerned are the St. Louis Browns, who have listed only 29 players. But the Browns have farms they can draw on before next March if they think such procedure advisable.

Fonseca Listed as Player.

Among the 37 listed as prospective White Sox employes is Lewis Fonseca, who also happens to be the new manager. He is the only pilot in the league billed among the playing eligibles. Fifteen of the others are pitchers, at least by reputation. Those of the throwers who are new cannot be regarded as outstanding possibilities, but the Sox always have been lucky in coming up unexpectedly every few years with a youth of particular mound attainments. The last of this kind was Pat Caraway, the lengthy southpaw, who in 1930 was quite a sensation, but not so hot last season.

The choice of the Sox' new pitching crop, as far as can be judged, is R. L. Erickson, plucked off the Shreveport Texas league club roster. On his form alone he is reported to be a prospect worthy of consideration. Another on the list is Ed Walsh Jr., who is back after an indifferent year in the American association. There also is one Paul Gregory, whose chief recommendation was that he was in 45 games for Atlanta last season. Despite his many appearances, he was credited with only 8 wins and 6 defeats.

Expect Much of Campbell.

Among the outfielding talent is Bruce Campbell and much is expected of him. He's the youth who worked out with the Sox for the better part of 1930, and Donie Bush, then manager, decided the lad had possibilities. He was shoved into a few games late that season and last spring was shipped to Little Rock, Ark., for seasoning. He hit so well down there that carpenters are still busy putting the Southern association fences back in place. Campbell, barring the acquisition of better men in trades, will be given a shot at regular employment next spring. Jolley, Reynolds, Fonseca, Watwood, Fothergill, Simons, and a few others will be his competitors.

All of the infielders, with one exception, are the same who were in last year's training camp at San Antonio. The exception is Carey Selph, drafted from Houston, Tex. He is being counted on as a second sacker, but probably will not measure up to Johnny Kerr, who has survived bids made by various minor league "phenoms" for the last several years. The Sox' complete roster follows:

Pitchers—Joseph Bartulis [University of Illinois], Grant Bowler, Pat Caraway, R. L. Erickson, Urban Faber, Vic Frasier, Louis Garland [Dallas], Paul Gregory, Ted Lyons, Harold McKain, Jim Moore, Al Thomas, Ed Walsh, Wilbur Wehde, Bob Weiland.

Catchers—Frank Grube, Benny Tate, Frank Garvitt.

Infielders—Luke Appling, Lu Blue, Chalmer Cissell, Robert Goff, Irvine Jeffries, John Kerr, Gregory Mulleavy, John Ryan, Carey Selph, William Sullivan.

Outfielders—George Blackerby, Bruce Campbell, Lewis Fonseca, Robert Fothergill, Smead Jolley, Willis Norman, Carl Reynolds, Mel Simons, John Watwood.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

SAMMY MANDELL.

From now on it will be Manager Sammy Mandell. He is lining up a stable of fighters and expects to make enough out of this end of the game to protect the earnings he has salted away.

"I am leaving the game without any regrets," he said last night. "I have received more than a just reward. I have had more than ten years of intensive campaigning in which extraordinary good fortune has been my lot and where all my contacts with patrons and associates have been kind and friendly.

"When I realize the struggle thousands of boxers experience in reaping success I am more than grateful for my own good luck. In payment for the loyalty of my friends I have tried to keep in good condition so as to give them my best. I realize that it is an injustice to them to continue.

"I am retiring with best wishes to every one connected with the sport."

The Illinois athletic commission yesterday paid Sammy the $1,250 it had ordered held up after his bout with Ralph Lenny last Wednesday night had been called no contest.

And so another great fighter has come to the end of the trail to join Pal Moore, Joey Burman, Bud Taylor, Joey Sanger, and a dozen other boys who popularized the game in Chicago.

Somehow or another Sammy Mandell is a hard guy to quit. I went for him hook, line, and sinker when he was a scrawny kid of 17 fighting preliminary bouts at Camp Grant. I know that if he were to continue he never would have the ambition, the burning speed, the fighting spirit he once had.

I realize all that, yet I can't forget those dramatic moments in his career—the night at Aurora when he whipped Pal Moore to convince every one he was a topnotcher, the evening at Milwaukee when he popped Joey Sanger 22 times in the seventh round without a return, the time at Louisville when he was almost knocked out by Jack Bernstein only to rally with a furious attack that left the New Yorker groggy and bewildered at the finish.

These are photographic flashes the years have not erased. Maybe Moore was only a slapper like many said; maybe Sanger was a puny lad who never had a chance to achieve ring greatness; maybe Bernstein was only a tough boy with a terrific punch. Still I can't forget the way Sammy polished them off.

Good judgment, if I had any, should prompt me to forget all his exhibitions of boxing wizardry and concentrate on the picture I saw at the Stadium last Wednesday night—a Mandell lacking defensive skill, lacking snap in his punches, lacking speed of foot, lacking poise, lacking everything.

Sammy started out as a flyweight but first attracted attention as a bantamweight. After whipping all the leaders in the division he moved up to the featherweight ranks, where nobody succeeded in stopping his rise. He didn't seek a title fight because he knew 126 pounds was not his natural weight, and it was only after he came out as a lightweight that he went after the championship.

He won the 135 pound title at Comiskey park on July 3, 1926, from Rocky Kansas in the first match held in Illinois after boxing had been legalized. He defended it successfully against Phil McGraw, Jimmy McLarnin and Tony Canzoneri before running into Al Singer's left hook on July 17, 1930, in the first round of their bout at Yankee stadium, New York.

Since losing his title Sammy has been campaigning as a welterweight. Added weight took away his old speed and he never was able to approach the form he showed as a lightweight.

DR. FREELAND IS PIMLICO WINNER OVER MR. SPONGE

Takes Baltimore Purse by Length and Half.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—For the third time in five years the colors of Walter J. Salmon were borne to victory in the Baltimore handicap, feature at Pimlico today. Dr. Freeland, winner of the 1929 Preakness over this course, got home on the front end in a field of ten to duplicate the scores of Display in 1927 and 1929.

Dr. Freeland won by a length and a half from Mr. Sponge, while Pittsburgher was a fast going third two lengths back of Mr. Sponge. After the placed horses the order was Tancred, Tred Avon, Plucky Play, Inception, Valenciennes, Sidney Grant, and Glastonbury.

Dr. Freeland has rarely, if ever, run a better race than that today when he finished a mile and a furlong in 1:51 1-5, a fifth of a second back of Watervale's track record set 20 years ago. The son of Light Brigade and Tondle earned $5,080 to bring his total close to $100,000.

Willie Nertney, apprentice boy, was upon the winner and scored a triple for the day. Nertney rated to behind the pace set by Mr. Sponge and Pittsburgher. Those two were heavily backed, but Dr. Freeland was the public choice, his return across the board being $6.30, $3.70 and $3.00.

TRAMBLIE STOPS JOHNNY CLINE IN SECOND ROUND

Trambile, who weighed 157 pounds, knocked Cline down once in the first round and twice in the second round before the bout was stopped. Cline weighed 159.

In the eight round semi-final, Tony Cancela, Tampa, Fla., light heavyweight, outpointed Tom Jones, Chicago Negro, who substituted for Matt Adgie of Philadelphia. Adgie appeared with an injured arm and was not permitted to box.

Jackie Davis, Springfield, Ill., lightweight, won a decision over Johnny Rich, Cleveland, in six rounds, and Ed Steeve, Champaign, Ill., middleweight, won from Jud Judkins, South Haven, Mich., in another six rounder.

CLEVELAND AND CHICAGO BOXERS FIGHT TONIGHT

HORTON SMITH PLANS WINTER OF PRO MEETS

Springfield, Mo., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—Horton Smith, professional golf star, who has been spending the summer and fall at his home here, will leave next Sunday for San Francisco, where he will start his fourth trip around the winter golf circuit. The first tourney will be the $7,500 open at San Francisco.

FAVOR ST. JOHN'S OVER CULVER IN CADETS' BATTLE

Culver, which beat St. John's last year, will be the underdog when the rival military academy elevens meet at Soldiers' field Saturday for their second annual service game, proceeds of which will go to charity.

The greater weight of the St. John's team and the development of its backs as steady ground gainers on power plays bodes no good for Culver.

Culver Has the Speed.

While St. John's has the power, Culver can boast of great speed and efficiency in the air. If the Maroon strikes its stride early and gets its passing game working, the weight advantage of St. John's may be entirely wasted.

Followers of St. John's point to the fact that the Wisconsin eleven carries not only weight but speed. Its back field, made up of Conrad, Bender, Rohr, and Calvano, runs swiftly behind the heavy line.

Wiswell to Play Guard.

Jim Wiswell, speedy Chicago boy, seems to have been shifted definitely from end to guard in the St. John's lineup. Wiswell, a star end, was moved to a guard position several weeks ago when injuries depleted the squad. He did so well that Coach Harry Wilhelm apparently has decided to leave him there. Pat Carroll, who reported as a tackle, has taken over Wiswell's old end position.

The St. John's line looks like a college forward wall in point of weight. From end to end it shows: Schreiner, 180; McLaughlin, 220; Maino, 165; Mengel, 186; Wiswell, 168; Wray, 230, and Carroll, 178. That is an average of 184 pounds, and an average of 193 from tackle to tackle.

WHITE CAPTURES 4TH GAME FROM CAMP, 100 TO 74

Major White of Chicago won his fourth game in five starts by defeating Marcel Camp of Detroit in the all-star pocket billiard tournament at Bensinger's Randolph street billiard room yesterday, 100 to 74, in 28 innings. White's high run was 22, Camp's 24. In the first afternoon game Walter Franklin of Kansas City defeated Al Miller of Racine, Wis., 100 to 70, in six innings. Franklin's high run was 42, Miller's 6.

Pasquale Natalie holds the lead with three victories and no defeats and Bennie Allen is second with two wins and none lost.

This afternoon Johnny Layton will oppose Miller and Natalie will meet George Nuss. Tonight Miller will play Coy Julian and Allen will face White. The standings:

	Won.	Lost.	High run.
Pasquale Natalie	3	0	76
Bennie Allen	3	0	58
M.J. White	4	1	40
Walter Franklin	2	1	64
George Nuss	2	1	40
Johnny Layton	1	1	28
Marcel Camp	0	1	24
Coy Julian	0	4	37
Al Miller	0	5	36

Coast Race Driver Dies from Injuries Received in Crash

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 9.—(AP)—Injuries received when the wheels of his racing car became locked at a turn on the Ascot speedway Saturday caused the death of Herman Schurch, 27, late that night.

Schurch had gained a reputation here and in the east as a fearless racing pilot. Witnesses said when the car wheels locked he was thrown high into the air. The machine crashed into a wall. His bride of a few weeks survives him.

1,600 Cheer Catholic Youth Boxing Bouts at Waukegan

Sectional preliminaries and finals were held last night in the Lake county section of the north district of the Catholic Youth organization amateur boxing tournament at Waukegan High school before 1,600.

At the end of a night of milling six survivors were left to carry the banner of the section in the district competition to be held at Loyola gymnasium the night of Nov. 20.

Frank Gercher, Mother of God, Waukegan, proved to be the outstanding boxer of the evening. Fighting in the 135 pound division, he knocked out two opponents in the first round. There were six knockout in the fourteen fights staged. Results:

112 pound division—Oscar O'Hanion, Immaculate Conception of Waukegan, knocked out Chester Orachcht, Holy Rosary, North Chicago (1). O'Hanion won on default over Joe Wiser, St. Peter's, Volo, Ill.

118 pound division—George Haberski, Holy Rosary, North Chicago, stopped Joe Nanned, Immaculate Conception of Waukegan [2]. Haberski beat John Grzupcenik, Mother of God of Waukegan [3].

135 pound division—Frank Gercher, Mother of God of Waukegan, knocked out Paul Shinka, Mother of God of Waukegan [1]. Gercher knocked out Lewis Okara, Mother of God of Waukegan [1].

147 pound division—John Pechovitch, Holy Rosary of North Chicago, beat Bud Courson, St. Anastasia, Waukegan [4]. Walter Lavin, St. Anastasia, Waukegan, stopped Dudley Kennedy, St. Peter's of Antioch [1]. Lavin defeated Pechovitch [2].

160 pound division—Joe Drenka, St. Anastasia of Waukegan, beat John Gercher, Mother of God of Waukegan [3]. Albert King, St. Mary's of Lake Forest, beat L. Clara, Mother of God of Waukegan [3]. King defeated Drenka [3].

ST. AGNES PICKS STARS.

A large crowd watched the preliminary of Sacred Heart section at St. Agnes gymnasium, 3325 South Washtenaw avenue, last night, where 150 boys did their best to qualify among the 32 that will box in the formal preliminary. Winners and parishes they represent in the various classes:

112 pound—Frank Scorza, Assumption; Edmond Jawar, St. Anne; Matt Polvie, St. Procopius.

Heavyweight—Frank Kettler, Our Lady of Vilna.

ST. MEL'S MEET TONIGHT.

The boys of St. Mel's division will fight it out for the honor of representing 17 west side parishes in the sectional pre-preliminaries of the Catholic Youth organization amateur boxing tourney tonight in St. Mel's gym, 4322 West Madison Street.

There are 144 entries for the events, including heavyweights and seven other classes. This field will be narrowed down to 32 contenders following tonight's bouts, and the winners will meet again in the same place on Nov. 17 for the formal contests which will decide the eight standard bearers of the section in the west district quarter-finals which will take place Nov. 27, also at St. Mel's.

The matches will come to a close on the night of Dec. 4 when successful contestants, winners among 1,612 boys who have been entered from 402 parishes in the six counties making up the Chicago archdiocese under Cardinal Mundelein and Bishop Shell, will stage their finals and semi-finals in the Chicago Stadium.

K. OF C. SPONSOR DVONCH-KAETER BATTLE FRIDAY

Bronson council of the Knights of Columbus will sponsor an all-star amateur boxing show in conjunction with the Fronton A. C. Friday night at the Fronton arena, Clark street and Lawrence avenue. The committee from the council is composed of Marshall V. Kearney, James Leach, Thomas Pierce, and James Kane.

Duffy Dvonch, champion of the navy and Central A. A. U. heavyweight titlist, will meet Frank Kaeter, Lawndale gym star. The latter defeated Gene Klopack, local star, last week.

PORTSMOUTH PRO ELEVEN LOSES CLARK, STAR BACK

Portsmouth, O., Nov. 9.—(AP)—The management of the Portsmouth pro football team of the National league today announced that Earl [Dutch] Clark, the team's outstanding quarter back and leading scorer, would be out of the game for the remainder of the season with two broken ribs and other injuries suffered in Sunday's game with the Chicago Bears. An old injury to Clark's left leg was aggravated Sunday also.

Kaye Don Gets Plaque from U. S. Yachtsmen

LONDON, Nov. 9.—(AP)—J. Lee Barrett, secretary of the Yachtsmen's Association of America, today presented Lord Wakefield, backer of Kaye Don, a bronze plaque commemorating Don's bid for the British international speed boat trophy at Detroit.

"We pay tribute to Kaye Don and his sportsmanship," Mr. Barrett said, explaining that he presented the trophy on behalf of the citizens of Detroit and the yachtsmen of the United States."

Townsend Wins Ten Round Decision Over Andy Saviola

CARDS HOPE TO REPEAT HISTORY AGAINST PACKERS

The Chicago Cardinals returned from Cleveland yesterday and resumed training at Wrigley field for their battle with the league leading Green Bay Packers next Sunday. The game will be the sixteenth meeting of the two clubs.

Although the Packer game is the one toward which the Cardinals are pointing, they must play another foe before Sunday. One of the best semi-pro clubs in the country, the Grand Rapids Maroons, will be met Wednesday night at Grand Rapids. This contest brings the Cards against an undefeated team.

Boast Ex-College Stars.

The Grand Rapids club has been recruited from the ex-college stars of Michigan. Several of their players, including Hultman, left tackle, and Boelens, quarter back, attended Michigan State. Kelster, the right half, hails from Ferris college, while Woden, end, attended Western State Teachers' college.

The rivalry between the Cards and Packers began in 1921, and in the years following the Green Bay team annexed eight victories, while the Cards have captured five, two ending in ties. In 1930 the Green Bay club sweeping towards a title, knocked down a strong Card threat at Green Bay, 14 to 0, but the return game in Chicago was a different story. The fast Cardinal backs drove through the Packer line for gain after gain, and Green Bay's long victory string was snapped, 13 to 6. Belden and Nevers pounded across for Chicago touchdowns, and Nevers added an extra point.

Will History Repeat?

If history repeats itself, the stage is set this year, as it was last, for the Cards to halt the pennant rush of the Packers. The Green Bay eleven is nearing another title with nine consecutive triumphs, and it has numbered the Cardinals as one of its victims in a game at Green Bay.

Less handicapped nowadays

"New ideas on personal hygiene responsible," says doctor

THE DOCTOR in a leading women's college was comparing this generation of girls with those of 25 years ago.

"We don't have nearly so many illness excuses from girls nowadays," he said. "Not even at those times when there is perfectly good reason for their feeling below par. For one thing, girls have learned how important it is to keep their systems functioning normally at all times. And at times when they are most likely to be upset and thrown off balance, they take special measures."

What doctors advise girls to use on such occasions is Nujol—a spoonful every night for several days beforehand helps to keep everything normal even under abnormal conditions. For it contains absolutely no drugs or medicine. Perfected by the famous Nujol Laboratories, 2 Park Avenue, New York City. Try this treatment for the next three months, and see if it doesn't make things much easier for you. You'll wonder how you ever did without it.

Be sure you get the genuine.

ELP! MAROONS RAFT COACHES TO FILL UP LINE

Have No Fear, Illini, They Won't Play.

The fourth quarter relapse of the Indiana in which Arkansas passed and drove through center for two touchdowns last Saturday still was on the boys on the Midway yesterday. The weakness of the Maroon line against passes this season has been almost to courtesy, but the value of the line had been regarded as a virtue of the big time competition. Chicago meets Illinois for the 36th time at Champaign next Saturday, despite the fact that the Maroons lost Michigan to a much smaller team than did the Illini this season, a different brand of ball displayed by Chicago Saturday, and the strong showing Illinois made against Wisconsin, may give the downstaters the edge in the impending business of setting who gets tenth place in the Big Ten.

Coaches Are Drafted.

Injuries and classes reduced the squad for practice to a handful yesterday, and when several men had to work out, Coaches Weislow, Wathen, and Anderson were put into the line to make eleven. Pompeo Tripi, end, is out of the picture for the remaining two games of the regular schedule with a knee injury received while he was going down under a punt Saturday. Wayne Rapp is in the hospital with an infection, and Tripi and Buswell may not be ready for Illinois.

Coach Stagg's drill was devoted largely to defense against Illinois plays, particularly against passes. The closing minutes of the period were given to dummy drill on offense, with Schiltz, who put up a creditable game Saturday, carrying the ball.

Alumni Dinner Thursday.

The Maroon team will be fêted by the Chicago Alumni club at the annual dinner which precedes the Illinois game Thursday night at the Hotel La Salle. Amos Harper, who won his letter in both football and baseball in the halcyon days around 1906, and now is athletic director at Notre Dame, will do the speaking honors with Coach Walter Steffen.

SHIFTS ILLINI LINEUP

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—The University of Illinois football squad will start practice tomorrow with the hope of perfecting an attack capable of defeating Chicago here Saturday. The players rested today. Coach Zuppke may revise his lineup in several places for the Maroons. Scott Hunsicker will be shifted from end to tackle, allowing Ivan Schustek to return to end. With Art Schultz again available for full back, Ed Beatty also may be tried at tackle and Ed Schalk at half back. If Bernie Wefler is in condition he probably will resume his place at quarter back.

In the Chicago-Illinois series, the Illini have won 16 games, Chicago, 15, and four have ended in ties.

MICHIGAN EASES DRILL

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—Michigan regulars watched reserves wade through a team of freshmen this afternoon and then went to work on a series of new touchdown plays.

Coach Harry Kipke intimated that he would give his first string further light work tomorrow as he does not want them to be stale in the Michigan State game next Saturday. Considerable passing is on the program, indicating that the Spartans will have a look at a lot of footballs when on offense.

Lidberman was in uniform and may be able to play against State, but Tessmer watched practice in civilian clothes. He will not be ready until the Minnesota game.

Dibbler and Eastman dashed through the yearlings for three touchdowns in a few minutes and may be used on Saturday. Damm was the star in the reserve line.

N. U. Regulars Take It Easy, but Not Subs

While Northwestern regulars were given a rest yesterday, the reserves went through an intensive drill in preparation for Saturday's game with Indiana. All of the players who saw service in the Minnesota game were excused from practice.

Eleven Wildcats will play their last game at Dyche stadium Saturday. The seniors who are terminating their college careers this fall are Capt. Dal Marvil, Jack Riley, and Paul Engebretsen, tackles; Jimmie Evans, guard; Reb Russell, full back; Will Lewis, quarter back; Al Moore, Sid Burnstein, Luke Fossler, and Jimmie O'Mara, half backs, and Ralph Eylar, end.

Most of the ailing Wildcats are expected to be ready for Saturday's encounter with the possible exception of George Potter, whose injured side still keeps him from practicing. Reb Russell and Harold Weldin, the other two injured regulars, will be ready for duty in the event that Coach Hanley desires to call upon them.

Five Sophomores Make Good.

Jakie Sullivan, small but speedy half back, who played a major rôle in Northwestern's victory over Minnesota, is slated for a starting position against the Hoosiers. Although only a sophomore, Sullivan displayed sufficient ball carrying and defensive ability to warrant consideration as a regular. Sullivan is a Chicago boy, having prepped at Loyola academy.

Sullivan is one of five sophomores from Chicago and vicinity who have made good on the Wildcat eleven this fall. The others are Ollie Olson, full back, and Art Jens, end, of Wheaton; Ken Meenan, half back, of Oak Park, and Milward Froberg, center, Chicago. Froberg is a graduate of Lindblom High school.

LYONS REJOINS INDIANA

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—Indiana's battered football players rested this afternoon to recuperate from the drubbing they received at Michigan Saturday. The coaches must reconstruct the Crimson team for its engagement next Saturday with an even tougher foe, Northwestern at Evanston.

Lyons, Negro end, who has been out of the lineup for two weeks, may see action against the Wildcats. Indiana's ends blew up against Michigan and most of the Wolverine gains were made around the flanks.

With Sabik out for the season and Opasik injured, the Hoosier coaches also are seeking a new passer. The squad will be put through a stiff workout tomorrow.

NEW IOWA ENDS CLICK

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—Light practice for the battered University of Iowa regulars who played against Nebraska Saturday was ordered today by Coach Burt Ingwersen. The Hawkeyes play Purdue at Lafayette Saturday.

The Iowa coach was satisfied with the showing of the two new ends, Loufek and Clearman, against Nebraska, and used them in the signal drill.

Nelson Tompkins, injured guard, who has been absent for more than a week, did not report for drill. He is expected to turn out Tuesday or Wednesday and to be ready for Purdue.

Invite Trojans to Play Tournament of Roses Contest

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—Invitation tonight was extended by the Tournament of Roses football committee to the University of Southern California, prospective coast conference champion, to represent the far west in the annual intersectional New Year's day game in the Pasadena Rose Bowl, Jan. 1. The next step will be for Southern California to send an invitation to a middle west, eastern, or southern team.

PURDUE SEEMS WORRIED

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—Iowa's defense, as shown against Nebraska Saturday provided the main worry for Purdue's staff of coaches this afternoon as the Boilermakers prepared for their homecoming game with the Hawkeyes here Saturday.

"Any team that can hold Nebraska to one touchdown has a real defense," said Coach Noble Kizer. "Despite our offensive showing against Centenary our backs are going to have a lot of trouble getting by the line of scrimmage Saturday."

1910—Purdue, 0; Iowa, 16.
1911—Purdue, 0; Iowa, 11.
1915—Purdue, 19; Iowa, 13.
1916—Purdue, 6; Iowa, 54.
1921—Purdue, 6; Iowa, 13.
1922—Purdue, 0; Iowa, 56.
1923—Purdue, 0; Iowa, 7.
1929—Purdue, 7; Iowa, 0.
1930—Purdue, 20; Iowa, 0.

VACATION FOR GOPHERS

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—With a nonconference game against Cornell college of Mount Vernon, Ia., on the schedule next Saturday, Fritz Crisler called off Minnesota's regular practice this afternoon. Only the freshmen, working on Michigan plays, got into uniforms.

Crisler gave a short talk to varsity members this afternoon and then dismissed them. He may let a number of the first team rest tomorrow in order to get back in tip top physical condition for the Michigan game Nov. 21.

The players came out of the Northwestern defeat in good physical condition. Kenny MacDougall suffered a shaking up.

Parker Menaces Harrison Grid Title Hopes Saturday

Harrison Tech, which won the west section high school football championship last Saturday with a 39 to 0 victory over Crane Tech, now faces its greatest test of the season. It will meet Parker in one of the semi-final games for the Chicago Public High School Football league title at Mills stadium, Kilpatrick avenue and Lake street, Saturday afternoon.

The scene of the other semi-final contest between Tilden, central section, and Schurz, north division, will be Logan Square park, Kedzie and Elston avenues, it was announced by A. H. Pritzlaff, secretary of the league, yesterday.

Both Parker and Harrison are undefeated. Parker has hung up seven consecutive victories, four in winning the south section championship for the eighth time, and defeating three practice opponents, East Aurora, Kankakee, and Hyde Park. Harrison has won eight games. Moosheart, Ill., Wendell Phillips, and Morton were among its practice victims.

Brother Sylvester, president of the Catholic league, and A. H. Pritzlaff, secretary of the Chicago Public High School league, together with officials of the joint emergency relief committee, will decide the date and place of the charity game for the Chicago football championship today.

Officials of the Catholic league will meet tonight to make a decision on De Paul academy's football victories over Weber, St. Michael and St. Philip, which have been protested because De Paul used an alleged ineligible player, James Harrisco. He is said to have entered St. Mel before matriculating at De Paul. De Paul, by its 45 to 0 victory over Loyola, now is tied with St. Mel for the north section lead.

Mount Carmel, south section Catholic league champion, which will rest this week while the championship in the north section is being determined, will have two of its regulars back in the lineup for the league title game. Both Fogel, center, and Berry, guard, injured against St. Rita, have recovered.

St. Rita will conclude its south section schedule against Joliet Sunday afternoon at St. Rita field, 63d street and South Oakley avenue. St. Rita scored a 6 to 0 victory over De La Salle last Sunday.

NOW WISCONSIN AND OHIO TEAMS WON'T BE LONELY

Madison, Wis., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—Wisconsin's football squad began preparation today for its homecoming game with Ohio State here Saturday. The Badgers' victory over Illinois has resulted in increased ticket sales, and indications are that the game will be played before nearly 40,000.

Claire Strain, who doubled at full back and half back against Illinois, was again in the varsity back field and seems a fixture at half. Schiller and Goldenberg, who are suffering from leg injuries sustained at Minnesota, were absent from practice.

OHIO LOCKS GATES AGAIN

Columbus, O., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—After a meeting with his assistants today, Coach Sam Willaman of the Ohio State football team decided once more to invoke the secret practice rule in vogue at the Buckeye practice grounds last week.

"The sessions are not secret in the sense of the word that we do not want the reporters or general public to know what is going on, but we believe the effect on our players is such that a closed practice is best in the long run," the Buckeye coach explained.

Bill Carroll was taken to the hospital today to receive treatment for infected feet. Carroll has been used rather sparingly since before the Northwestern game. It is expected the star back field man will be able to take part in the game against Wisconsin Saturday at Madison.

Little work will be done on offense this week, according to Willaman. Special plays designed for use against the Navy last Saturday were not pulled out of the bag because the Buckeyes rolled up 20 points early in the game and coasted through to victory.

Pro Basketball Heads Meet at Cleveland Tonight

Club owners in the American Professional Basketball league will meet in Cleveland tonight to decide the fate of the league for the coming season. George Halas, president of the Bruins, will represent Chicago at the meeting.

Two courses are under consideration, it was learned last night. One involves temporary disbandment of the league pending a readjustment of economical conditions. The other entails a division of the league into a western and eastern section.

A number of the eastern owners are said to oppose both plans, desiring a continuance of the league as in former years. Halas is against disbandment, but favors the two division idea, he said, because of the heavy expenses involved in playing so far away from home.

Under the split league plan each division would play to a championship series, with the winners of the two pennants meeting for the league championship in the spring. The disbandment suggestion would mean that the teams would play independent basketball for a year or remain inactive, as the owners saw fit. Franchises and league rights would remain unimpaired under this plan.

A definite decision is to be reached at tonight's meeting, Halas said before entraining for Cleveland.

CHURCH A. A. TO HOLD ELEVENTH ANNUAL BANQUET

The Church Athletic Association of Chicago will hold its 11th annual baseball banquet Saturday night at the De Lazon grill, 127 North Dearborn street.

Brighton Mission, champions of the league, and four division winners, will be awarded prizes during the evening. Judge Edgar A. Jonas will speak.

North Section Billiard Meet Starts Today

Charles McCourt of Cleveland and Jack Henley of Des Moines will meet in the opening game of the four handed tournament for the northern sectional three cushion title at the Kleckhafer Recreation this afternoon. In the second game Joseph Moriarty will meet Len Kenney. Moriarty and Kenney are Chicago entrants. The winner of the first game will meet the loser of the second in tonight's clash.

Twelve games will be played in this tournament. Three games will be played today, three tomorrow, and two each on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. The winner will quality to compete in the world championship tournament.

McCourt won the east divisional tournament at Akron in a field of eight. Kenney finished in a triple tie, but won the playoff. Henley finished first in the west divisional at Milwaukee, and Moriarty was second.

Sectional finals will be held in three other cities starting today. At New York there will be four players—F. S. Scoville of Buffalo, Alfredo de Oro, Kinrey Matsuyama, and Joseph Cosgrove.

There will be four players in the western final at Oakland, Cal.—Henry Solomon, Charles Sibley of Seattle, J. N. Bozeman of Vallejo, Cal., and Harold T. Engle of Los Angeles.

Carnera Signed for Berlin Bout Dec. 15

BERLIN, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Primo Carnera, Italian heavyweight, has been signed for a match here Dec. 15 with Ernest Guehring, German boxer recently returned from an American tour, promoters announced today. Carnera was guaranteed 30,000 marks, about $7,200, and Guehring 20,000 marks, about $4,800, the announcement said.

Notre Dame Is Stopped —by Exams

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—The problem of the classroom got more attention from Notre Dame's 300 football players today than any worries they might have concerning next Saturday's game with Navy at Baltimore.

All freshmen and varsity players were excused this afternoon to concentrate on mid-semester examinations, which will last until Thursday. There will be light drills tomorrow and Wednesday. The squad will entrain for Baltimore Thursday immediately after the last examinations.

OLD SLOGAN OF MUCH VALUE TO MODERN HUNTERS

"Keep Your Powder Dry" Makes for Safety.

BY BOB BECKER.

"Keep your powder dry" has been a slogan handed down for many generations from pioneers to modern sportsmen. Today this slogan can be applied to shotgun ammunition, because old shotgun shells may not be safe to use in your gun if they have been stored in extremely moist, or hot places.

The question of how long one may keep shotgun shells around the house and then feel safe about using them was brought up a few days ago by A. H. Mogge, a reader, who wrote that he had some shells on hand which were 17 years old. They were loaded with 3½ drams of Du Pont, Ballistite, and other powders. He wanted to use them this fall. Was it safe to shoot them?

Experts Gives Views.

We asked Wallace H. Coxe, ballistic engineer of the Du Pont Powder company, Wilmington, Dela., to pass on this problem. His reply will be of interest to all hunters who have had shells around the house for a considerable time.

Mr. Coxe writes: "If the 17 year old shells have been stored under normal atmospheric conditions and subjected to the usual seasonal changes from year to year they can probably be used with safety. If, on the other hand, they have been subjected to excessive temperatures in the recent past they might develop high temperatures.

"Some time ago we made tests of 12 gauge shotgun shell ammunition which was 16 years old. The shells were regular 3¼ dram loads. They developed a mean velocity of 892 f. s. over a 40 yard range with a mean pressure of 10,000 pounds. These results compare favorably with our powder of present manufacture when loaded the same way.

Ammunition Improves Yearly.

"However, we do not recommend that shooters store shot shells for a number of years, as in this manner they lose the benefit of whatever improvements in ammunition are made from year to year. We are merely quoting the above experiment to show that ammunition stored under normal conditions can be depended upon. On the other hand, shells stored in extremely hot, dry or damp places over a period of years may not be safe to use."

In other words, shooters must not keep shells where they are excessively hot in summer or damp at any time of the year. They must be kept away from both extremes.

off satisfactorily, but one thing I am certain of: he is not compelled to buy beer or ale for the crowd.

Schools Modify Football.

As the schools took up football, however, they modified it. The lower classes had played it in huge gangs, with no apparent limit on the number to a side, and aside from the general object of kicking or carrying the ball somehow across the goal there were no rules. In the schools however, limits were set, objectives were stated, and tackling was forbidden or encouraged according to the nature of the battle ground.

Where the game was played in stone courts the kicking and dribbling style was favored and tackling, butting and so forth were avoided. At Rugby, where there was a grassy field, the opposite style was favored and here began the division. The kicking game developed into association football or soccer, which is a corruption of the word association, and rugby football was established as a distinct game of itself. The American national dementia was presently derived from rugby.

Garden Maps JackDempsey's Return Road

Jack Whips Three

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 9.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey knocked out one opponent and whipped two others in a four round exhibition here tonight.

Tommy Davenport, 192 pounder of Little Rock, Ark., was content to stay the two rounds and did not open up. Elijah Lee, 216 pound Negro from Augustana, Ga., attempted to battle with the former heavyweight king and lasted a little over two minutes. Lee was down for a count of six shortly before the final knockdown.

Dempsey's third opponent, Happy Shade, 196 pound Negro from Des Moines, fought the fourth round and went down for a five count, but rallied to stay the full three minutes.

New York, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey wired Jimmy Johnston at Madison Square Garden today that he would be here the middle of December to discuss, among other things, his fistic future.

When the resulting excitement died down, the new head of the Garden's boxing department outlined the propositions that will be laid before Dempsey if the former heavyweight king, now 36 years old, decides his exhibition tour has reconditioned him sufficiently to tackle another comeback.

The Garden will offer Dempsey no guarantees, Johnston explained, but he can have a handsome share of the receipts for a tuneup bout in Miami, Fla., in February, against one of four men—Tommy Loughran, John ny Risko, Paulino Uzcudun or Tom Heeney.

If Dempsey can knock out the man he selects for the battle of the south, he will be offered a match here in one of the ball parks with Jack Sharkey next May or June.

Another victory would rate Jack a September bout with Max Schmeling for the title he won from Jess Willard 12 years ago, lost to Gene Tunney in 1926, and failed to regain in his desperate duel with the marine in Chicago the following summer.

MAJ. CHAMBERLIN ON TANBARK WINS AT HORSE SHOW

New York, Nov. 9.—(AP)—The United States army made a bid for international jumping honors at the 46th national horse show tonight as Maj. Harry D. Chamberlin, commander of the team, sent Tanbark over the difficult Madison Square Garden jumps to his second consecutive victory in the $1,000 international military stakes.

While a crowd of more than 10,000 voiced its approval, Tanbark gave a perfect performance to tie with a stablemate, Representative of France, and the Irish Free State and then win in an exciting jump-off.

St. Viator Wins Over Eastern State, 13 to 9

Charleston, Ill., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—After spotting Eastern State Normal of Charleston nine points in the opening quarter, St. Viator college scored a pair of touchdowns and a 13 to 9 victory today.

A fumble behind his goal line recovered by Corcoran of St. Viator gave Charleston two points soon after the game opened, while a 44 yard dash by Titus and three plunges by McClane gave the Teachers their touchdown. Wasem raced around and for the extra point.

St. Viator staged a 69 yard march down the field in the second quarter which ended with Westray going over. Harding intercepted a Charleston pass in the third quarter on the Charleston 36 yard line and carried it to the 15 yard stripe. Six plays scored.

BANKING POOL EXTENDS LOANS OF 2 MILLIONS

Chicago Unit Aids Six Banks.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Planned aid for Illinois banks through the medium of the National credit corporation, the $500,000,000 relief pool, took tangible form late yesterday. The Chicago-Illinois group of the national corporation approved loans totaling about $2,000,000 to six banks, four of them in Chicago and two downstate. This action, which is the first actual functioning of the pool, was approved at a meeting of the committee in the Federal reserve bank building.

It was explained that these initial loans are only the forerunner of a broad policy for helping all solvent banks that have good but "frozen" assets. The Illinois group has received applications for a number of other loans, and these will be examined as fast as they come in. When passed, the applications will be sent to the directors of the national corporation in New York for final action, and, if passed, the money will be made immediately available for the banks.

To Call Subscriptions.

Preparation for making the loans, which involves subscribing to the big pool of banks to be called on to pay in 10 per cent of their subscriptions within the next day or two. These initial payments will total between $3,000,000 and $4,500,000 for the Chicago banks, and between $4,500,000 and $5,000,000 for all Illinois banks.

The subscriptions thus far received from the Chicago banks total around $2,000,000, according to James R. Leavell, vice chairman of the Chicago group and also president of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company. Still additional subscriptions are assured from both city and downstate banks as soon as they hold directors' meetings. It is expected that total subscriptions from the Chicago federal reserve district, which embraces Illinois, Iowa, and parts of Indiana, Wisconsin, and Michigan, will run close to $70,000,000.

Simultaneously with the call for initial payments in Illinois, it is expected that the reserve district and other parts of the country will call for 10 per cent subscriptions. This should give the National Credit corporation an initial fund of more than $50,000,000 to start making loans, according to George M. Reynolds, chairman of the corporation and director for the Chicago federal reserve district.

SEARS-ROEBUCK SALES

The effect of "Indian summer" in holding down seasonal retail trade is reflected in the monthly sales report of Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago mail order and chain store concern. Sales for the four weeks ended Nov. 4, which was the eleventh period in the company's thirteen month year, totaled $17,146,925, which was also the same figure as shown by the preceding period. The latest total, compared with sales of $14,888,125 in the seventh period of 1930, shows a decline of $1,442,300, or 21.5 per cent.

New Records for Advance Made in Grain

Chicago commodity and security markets, including the Chicago Board of Trade and Stock exchange and all banks and other financial houses, will be closed tomorrow, Armistice day. Business will be carried on as usual in the New York markets. Armistice day is not a legal holiday in New York state. Trading on the New York Stock exchange will be suspended for two minutes at 11 o'clock.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Speculative sentiment on the bull side of the grain market showed no signs of letting up yesterday. New high levels again were established on the deferred deliveries of wheat, corn and oats, while all rye futures sold at a new high for the season, with December rye the highest since September, 1930. There was, however, a distinct disposition on the part of the professional operator to act with caution on the buying side of the bulges and price fluctuations were more erratic.

At the top wheat showed a gain of 2½@2¼c over the recent low; corn, 1⅝@1⅞c; oats, 3c, and rye, 2½@2¼c. The greater part of the inside figures on all grain this season was made on Oct. 5. Profit taking was immense throughout the day in wheat and corn and the best figures were not maintained. Wheat had a range of 2⅝@3¼c for the day, with the finish at intermediate figures, prices being unchanged to ⅝c lower. the December finishing at 66⅛@66¼c; March, 70@70¼c; May, 71⅛@71⅝c, and July, 71⅛@71¼c.

News Two Sided.

There was sufficient news on both sides to keep the market active. A rush of selling developed at the start on the relative weakness in Liverpool, larger world's shipments than expected and reports of good rains in Argentina, but the break to 69⅛c for the May brought the same heavy and persistent buying in small lots which has been so much a factor in the market of late. Around midday there was a rush of buying on rumors that China had declared war on Japan, which carried the May up to 73c, but the failure of the rumor to be confirmed led to renewed selling and a sharp recession.

At times the quotations on the blackboard were out of line with the actual prices prevailing in the wheat pit owing to the rapid fluctuations. Bullish factors included reports of duststorms in parts of western Kansas, with damage claims received during the day from that section.

Frost reports from parts of Buenos Aires and the pampas district in Argentina had some effect on sentiment, and a London cable estimated that the Argentine crop had gone back 10 per cent in the past month. The markets there, however, failed to make an enthusiastic response to the frost news, and closed ¼@⅝c higher for the day.

Export Demand Lacking.

There has been a noticeable pause in the export demand for North American wheat of late, with only 400,000 bu Manitobas claimed to have been sold. The Liverpool December, which was 5⅝c over Chicago on Oct. 17, was only ½c over at the time the former market closed yesterday. Net losses of 1⅝@1¾d were reported in the English market for the day, with the December quoted at 66⅝c, with sterling figured at $3.77. Hedging pressure against Australian grain was a factor. Winnipeg was ¼c higher, with December at 70¼c in Canadian currency which was around 9¾ per cent discount.

A wheat crop of 240,000,000 bu for the three Canadian provinces was indicated by the Northwestern Grain Dealers association, compared with 376,000,000 bu harvested last year. According to a Russian report the spring crop of grains in that country was 240,000,000 bu less than last year. The trade was somewhat surprised by an increase of 1,597,000 bu in the visible supply, making the total 226,239,000 bu, against 198,442,000 bu last year.

Corn Market Unsettled.

The corn market was unsettled within a range of 1⅝@2¼c, running into aggressive selling by local professionals on the bulges, and the finish was ½c lower to ¼c higher, with December closing at 46⅞@47c; March, 50⅛@50½c; May, 52⅜@52¾c, and July, 54⅛@54½c.

Rye showed the greatest advance of any grain, showing 3¼@4c above Saturday's finish at one time as the result of commission house buying, and the greater part of the upturn was maintained due to a lack of aggressive selling, net gains of 2¼@3c being recorded, with December closing at 56½c; May, 62⅛@62½c, and July, 63⅛@62⅝c.

ELECT CHICAGO TRIO TO BOARD OF PARAMOUNT

New York, Nov. 9.—(AP)—New interests in the Paramount Publix corporation were given official status today when three Chicagoans, John Hertz, William Wrigley Jr., and Albert D. Lasker, were elected to the board of directors. Mr. Hertz was named to fill a vacancy and Mr. Wrigley and Mr. Lasker were elected to the posts of Albert A. Kaufman and Daniel Frohman, resigned.

The directors also elected William H. English to the newly created office of chairman of the board, and Mr. Hertz was chosen a member of the finance committee in place of Mr. English.

The board also declared the dividend of 2½ per cent, payable in stock as in the previous quarter, equaling one-fortieth of a share for each share held. This dividend is payable Dec. 31 to stockholders of record Dec. 4.

U. S. ESTIMATE PUTS '31 COTTON CROP NEAR RECORD ONE OF '26

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9.—(AP)—The crop indicator gauging the southland's 1931 cotton production today swung violently upward again. A government forecast added 619,000 bales to the prospective harvest—the second largest in history.

With huge surplus supplies already clogging market channels, the agriculture department estimated this year's crop would total 16,903,000 bales, not far below the record 1926 harvest of 17,977,000 bales. The increase since the October report was attributed to ideal weather, enabling farmers to pick their plants clean. Field loss last month actually was less than average.

Today's report came at a time when the farm board and southern bankers are attempting to complete a plan for holding 7,000,000 bales off the market as part of a program for increasing prices, now lower than at any time in more than 30 years. Five southern legislatures have acted to curtail the 1932 acreage by law and increasing interest in American cotton is being shown by foreign buyers. The department released a foreign outlook report which showed that the production in major producing countries this year will be about 600,000 bales less than last year.

Cotton Cloth Sales Soar.

New York, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Sales of standard cotton cloths during October amounted to nearly one and one-half times the amount produced during the period, the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York reported today. Unfilled orders at the end of the month were 51.7 per cent greater than at the end of September. This is the greatest improvement in unfilled orders in any single month since these statistics have been gathered.

"This rather clearly indicates," the report says, "that buyers generally are coming to the conclusion that the record low price on cotton and correspondingly low prices on cloth warrant more liberal purchasing policies. It also carries a reasonable assurance that the employés of the cotton textile industry will, in the main, be kept fairly busy during the coming winter."

Sales for October amounted to 333,679,000 yards, while production was 227,116,000 yards. Unfilled orders as of Oct. 31 were 344,639,000 yards.

General Tire and Rubber Purchases Yale Company

Akron, O., Nov. 9.—(AP)—Purchase of the Yale Tire and Rubber company, New Haven, Conn., by General Tire and Rubber company of Akron was announced today by W. O'Neil, president of General. O'Neil said, "The purchase by General of Yale indicates the further concentration of tire manufacturing in Akron."

Bank Group Favors Cuts in Rail Wages

BY SCRUTATOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Nov. 9—The Investment Bankers' Association of America, at its annual convention here today, went on record as favoring a reduction in wages for railway labor and lessening of the powers of the interstate commerce commission.

"We recommend," states the association report, "a reduction in wages commensurate with the decline in cost of living. Looking to a permanent solution of the railroad problem, we recommend greater freedom to the railroads to meet effectively, by rate changes, the competition of other forms of transportation."

Establishment of a national fund is proposed to assist the railroads in financing maturing obligations pending restoration of earning power sufficient to permit public financing.

Although the recommendation does not state specifically that the amount saved on wages would go to this revolving fund, the committee chairman in presenting his report interpreted it in that way.

See Additional Revenue.

This action followed the presentation of a report by Leo L. Daly of St. Louis, acting chairman of the railroad securities committee, arguing that because the cost of living has declined more than 11 per cent since June, 1929, a 10 per cent wage reduction would not lower the workers' standard of living and would yield the railroads an additional quarter billion dollars annually.

Former Gov. John J. Cornwell of West Virginia, general counsel for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, attributed the railroads' dilemma to government meddling.

"No matter how energetic or intelligent the efforts of railroad managements," he said, "the railroads cannot be kept safely solvent if they are to be hobbled and hamstrung by one bureau of the government, while another branch taxes them and uses the money to build up unregulated, tax free competition."

And in a report on general business trends a research committee headed by George N. Lindsay of the Bancamerica Blair corporation, New York, stated that it is a logical conclusion

New York, Nov. 9.—New high prices for the recovery were recorded by virtually the entire stock list today. At its best the market showed a reclamation of about 40 per cent of the ground lost on the long decline from late in June to Oct. 5.

While there was plentiful evidence of banking sponsorship in today's forward movement, the news budget yielded more than an average quota of items calculated to help bullish operations along. Unconfirmed rumors of actual declaration of war on the Manchurian front, a more optimistic tone in the weekly steel reviews, strength in cotton in the face of a bearish government forecast, and revived hopes for settlement of the rate and wage problems confronting the railroads were made much of by those taking the brighter view of the situation.

Large scale pool operations were reported to be in process in various directions—to the advantage of favorites here and there.

Business was again at an accelerated clip, the turnover mounting to about 3,100,000 shares.

CHICAGO STOCKS IRREGULAR ON ACTIVE TRADING

Rising Commodity Prices Encourage Bulls.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Speculative activity increased on the Chicago exchange yesterday and stocks moved ahead moderately under the influence of the bullish enthusiasm engendered by the rising trend in wheat and other commodities. The gains chalked up were marred somewhat by profit taking which came into the market in the late trading. As compared with last week's final quotations the closing prices were irregular.

Activity centered in the automotive accessory shares, all of which were selling above last week's prices when the trading ended. Borg, Cord, and Bendix were the leaders in the group. Utilities were irregular, with Insull Utility common closing lower and Middle West finishing unchanged. Slight gains predominated among the miscellaneous stocks. Total transactions increased to 120,000 shares.

Thompson Moves Up.

John R. Thompson shares were slightly higher on light trade, reflecting the upturn reported by the company in sales and earnings during the third quarter.

North American Car corporation shares were dealt in at slightly better prices on the news that the company had net earnings of approximately $112,000 in the September quarter. This was equivalent after preferred dividends to 44 cents a share on 150,361 shares of common stock outstanding.

In the preceding quarter the company earned net profit of $115,838, or 45 cents a share on the common stock, while net in the comparable period of 1930 was $175,950, or 85 cents a share. BANKERS FAVOR CUT IN PAY FOR RAIL EMPLOYES that the downward trend has run its course.

Also Suggest Easing of Control by I. C. C.

Improvement Waits Confidence.

Marked improvement, however, the delegates agree, waits upon restoration of public confidence in securities.

"The trend of the future," the business problems committee states, "must either be continued stagnation or improvement. It is clearly the duty of the investment banker not to sit by waiting for improvement to happen, but to assist vigorously in all measures that may aid in bringing it about."

A number of measures regarded as highly constructive have already been proposed and adopted.

Through the Institute of International Finance, the Investment Bankers' association will undertake to supply holders of foreign bonds with accurate and late information.

Aid for Bond Owners.

The association today voted to use the institute as an instrument to oppose the issue of securities on the credit of a country or its subdivisions, involved in an existing default, when to issue such would be to the disadvantage of the holders of such securities in default.

Lois K. Boysen, chairman of the real estate securities committee, outlined a program for the protection of real estate bondholders.

"A committee formed for the purpose of acquiring control of property or for unreasonable fees should be publicly exposed," he declared.

The convention indorsed Mr. Boysen's proposal that limelight be focused on the affairs of the protective committees.

The delegates took a similar stand toward investment trusts, declaring that the investors' chief protection lay in publicity covering holdings, income, leading charges, and capital distributions.

I. C. C. TO REOPEN EASTERN TRUNK LINE STUDIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9.—Acting by request of the presidents of the four major railroad systems in the east, the interstate commerce commission today issued an order for further consideration of its final plan of railway consolidation to determine whether it shall be modified so as to provide for four rather than five eastern rail combinations.

The commission set Jan. 6, 1932, as the date of the first of a series of hearings, the outcome of which will determine whether or not all eastern railroad properties are to be absorbed into the Baltimore and Ohio, the Chesapeake and Ohio, the New York Central, and the Pennsylvania railroads as jointly proposed by the presidents of these roads.

Commissioner Claude L. Porter, who championed the four system arrangement for the east when the matter was before the commission in 1929, will preside over the hearings. It was despite the arguments of Commissioner Porter that the commission's majority in its decision of December of that year provided for the establishment of a fifth eastern system, the Wabash-Seaboard.

WALTER W. HEAD NEW PRESIDENT OF MORRIS PLAN

New York, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Walter W. Head, chairman of the board of the Nebraska Power company and former president of the Omaha National bank and the Foreman State National bank of Chicago, became president today of the Morris Plan corporation of America, nationally known industrial banking organization.

Mr. Head succeeds Austin L. Babcock, who becomes executive vice president of the corporation. The corporation is the central organization for Morris Plan banks.

Mr. Head is president of the executive council of the Boy Scouts of America. He is a director and member of the finance committee of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway company, chairman of the board of the Union Life Insurance company, and a director of the United States Fidelity and Guarantee company of Baltimore.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was quiet today and as no sales were reported, prices were unchanged at 3.38s for spots. Futures were irregular, but prices moved within narrow limits. Approximate sales, 31,700 tons.
